The latest of these publications—"The Dominion of Canada," 174 pages—is full of interesting facts about our northern neighbor, next to the United Kingdom our largest customer, which we all ought to know, but don't. A country which for its love of liberty and ideals of right could raise and equip an army equal to 7 per cent. of its entire population—600,000 out of 8,000,000; spent nearly 15 per cent. of the entire national capital, equal to $300 for every man, woman and child, on the same objects; maintained its agriculture and created new industries in the face of a crippling shortage of men, challenges the interest as well as the respect of the world. Canada contains one-fourteenth of the entire land area of the earth, more than that of the United States with all its outlying possessions. In relation to nine leading industrial countries, Canada ranks second in potential water power, third in total railway mileage, fifth in total exports, sixth in pig iron production, total exports and foreign trade, but eighth in population. Ours was as large a hundred years ago. Leaving out of consideration the little-explored Northwest Territories, we have ten times as many people to the square mile. The natural resources are there; the people have courage, enterprise, intelligence and industry. Today they interchange more business with us than with any other country. It is up to us to see that we hold first place in the great future which is assured to Canada. It was with the sole purpose of impressing upon us our opportunity that this book was issued.

Inspirational Appeals.

The authoritative character of all these books has been recognized by colleges and universities both here and abroad, and all of them are in use as text books in the economic departments. "English Public Finance" is in use at Christ College, Cambridge, and at the University of London, and letters of commendation were received from 150 well-known English economists. It is being republished in England by a well-known English publisher for general reading. It has been taken up by Princeton and other universities here, who have shown the same interest in "Our Public Debt" and "American Merchant Marine."

America's opportunity and obligation at this time looms large in the publicity of all. Some of it is inspirational and general in character and some gives facts and figures. Not a little of it is applied to our foreign trade and relations in particular parts of the world—as "Our South American Trade and Its Financing," written by Frank O'Malley for the National City Bank, in whose 123 pages is packed about all the practical information possible to gain without actual experience; or "Trading with China," issued by the Guaranty Trust Company, which is calculated to correct many of the errors current about the Chinaman's dependence upon the outside world, and tells how he must be approached. "Trading With the Near East" does a like service for those contemplating trade with the Turk and the other peoples of Asia Minor.

In the first year after the enactment of the Webb-Pomerene law, which is designed to promote our foreign trade by permitting combinations of industries which would be prohibited in domestic commerce, more than 100 organizations filed papers with the Federal Trade Commission. "Combining for Foreign Trade" was complied especially to guide these and their like by the Guaranty. It gives the results of experience, outlines in detail the various plans and methods of operation, points the way approved by the informed and indicates the pitfalls. Nothing could be more eloquent of the wish to get the American manufacturer interested in world commerce than the care with which this pamphlet has been prepared and the comprehensiveness of its information upon all the practical questions which he would want answered at the outset.

But this is only a detail in the campaign which banks like this are making to induct the American business man into foreign trade. That they have no doubt of their success is further attested by the large investments in branch houses in foreign lands and the elaborate training of young men for foreign service. One such bank has 150 graduates of business schools and the business departments of the college and universities in such training now and expects to take that number annually. These are selected youths. They receive $100 a month while being thoroughly grounded in business and banking methods and in the special work for which they have been chosen. One of the faults of American business adventuring into foreign parts has been a disregard for foreign customs and foreign prejudices. These young men are being groomed to correct this fatal error and to pave the way for an entente cordiale between America and the countries to which they are sent.

The financiers at least have a comprehension of the fundamental importance of method and manners in dealing with the potential foreign customer, and there is evident a determination to ram this home with the prospective American exporter. The latter will be fondled, coddled and carried along, for the master minds are set upon building an international position upon the foundations created by present conditions, and the exporter is essential to their plans, but they do not intend to let any foolish ignorance or pigheadedness upset them. Not for failure has a single institution organized eighty-four branches throughou the known world. Having made their decision to carry American products to the ends of the earth, the financiers have set up the machinery, overcome legal and practical obstacles and devised plan and method. They are not going to stop there. Whether he knows it or not, the American manufacturer who turns out wares which can meet competition in the markets of the world is about to see his trade expand to those markets. The Great Medicine Men, whose magic only the dead ones can resist, have said so.

HELPING GIRL WORKERS.

THE Girls' Friendly Society, which helps its members to find homes, amusement, friends, good food at reasonable prices, and where to spend vacations, is conducting a drive for new members. This year the organization is particularly interested in three objects: the enlargement of the lodge, at 155 East Fifty-fourth Street, which since 1910 has sheltered more than 1,000 girls, at present paying from $7.85 to $9.85 a week for room and breakfast and dinner; to equip properly the vacation house at Huntington, L. I., which is open from May until October, and to acquire larger headquarters than the limited area used at 147 East Thirty-fourth Street.

There is a luncheon club at headquarters where girls working in the neighborhood meet once a week, and it is open several nights of the week so that girls may come in, cook their own suppers, freshen up and have their friends meet them, or rest and write and read; also a small library. Associates of the society are communicants of the Episcopal Church, but members are unlimited in creed. There are about 6,000 members in the diocese of New York, with 87 branches in 36 towns.

VAULTS FOR $20,000,000,000

Five-Story Treasury Maze Under New Assay Office Building in Wall Street

After various officials for fourteen years had attempted to persuade Congress to appropriate funds for the erection of a new United States Assay Office building in New York, $600,000 was set aside for the purpose.

The old building on Wall Street adjoining the Sub-Treasury was partially demolished, and work on the new building there progressed rapidly. The employes hoped to move into their brand new quarters not far from the middle of September or the first of October. Then came the Wall Street explosion. With the exception of the Morgan building the new assay building suffered more severely than any other structure. It was estimated that an additional sum of $50,000 would be needed to repair the damage. Not before the middle of March can the new building be occupied.

It was a heavy disappointment to those who had waited for many years to change their cramped quarters to the especially constructed modern ones, with every up-to-date appliance for assaying. Some of the attachés of the Assay Office have been there for almost half a century. The chief assayer's length of service in this post is 45 years.

So accustomed have average New Yorkers become to seeing the old building, and vaguely being conscious of its existence, that they have not realized that the New York United States Assay Office is the most important one in this country. How important this Assay Office really is can be gained from the knowledge that when the present superintendent of the building, Verne M. Covie, took charge in August, 1914, the deposits amounted to $45,000,000. At the present time they amount to $1,445,-000,000 in gold and silver bullion, mostly gold.

In the immense storage vaults excavated beneath the new building on Wall Street gold and silver bullion with other metals to the value of $20,000,000,000 can be stored.

Nobody could ever accuse the new Assay Office Building of being top-heavy, for while the structure is only four stories above ground it is five stories underneath. Naturally the storage vaults are situated near to the heart of Mother Earth.

During the war the Assay Office here, in addition to the performance of its regular duties of assaying and refining gold and silver, was required to test other metals. Platinum of the United States was commandeered by the Government, and used in the manufacture of munitions, airplanes, &c. This product maintained a value of $105 an ounce in the war period, and some 30,000 or 40,000 ounces were used in such manufactures.

Special apparatus for the handling of this was set up in the assaying department. Iridium, which was associated with platinum for war material, was tested there. This substance, a large part of which was brought from Russia, was valued at $175 an ounce. Palladium, valued at $135 an ounce, was still another working problem which came to be solved by Chief Assayer Comings.

Naturally the assaying department proper is the centre of interest in the building. One's impression on entering the chamber devoted to the assays is of being in a chemical laboratory enhanced by numerous glowing furnaces resembling, on a small scale, the stoking department seen in the bowels of an ocean liner. It is in these that the bullion is set. The receptacles in which the precious metals repose, little cups or crucibles, are made of calcined animal bones.

By means of a clever invention the particular degree of heat registered in any of these "furnaces" is indicated by a movable hand on a dial. Eighteen hundred degrees of heat in one of them is not uncommon.

So valuable is the material with which the assayers deal that even the floor sweepings are collected, burned and the gold and silver taken therefrom.

In addition to the task of assaying and refining all the gold and silver needed by the Government, assaying is done for private firms and individuals. Special fees are charged for this, and add to the revenues of the office. The degrees of fineness of the metals are accurately determined and specified.

The builders say the new storage vaults are impregnable. Steel and concrete and solid masonry have been so blended that they would seem able to withstand the assault of the heaviest siege guns.

It is safe to assert that if by any chance an intruder should happen to find his way into the maze of vaults, by no possible chance could he ever find his way out again. There is always a certain number of keepers on hand. Probably no other body of men is subject to such rigid rules and regulations.

In the reconstructed building is the cornerstone of the old structure. An inscription states that the stone was laid April 17, 1825. The building was erected for the Second National Bank of the United States, transferred to the Bank of the State of New York in 1866, and to the Government in the early '50s.

DUE to the tremendous crowds in our booth at the Auto Show, many were disappointed in not being able to examine our show models. Therefore our exhibit of Which is Your Curve?

The broken curve represents the progress of a man who quits school early in life, takes the first job offered, and makes no effort to improve his education and training along special lines. Youth and physical energy bring fair progress until he is 35 or 38 years of age—then he hits an almost straight line that shows no increase in salary for 15 or 20 years. At 40 or 42 he starts to go down—finally he slides off into the area of dependency.

Now—contrast the record of the broken curve man with that of the heavy curve man—who has realized the value of education and training. At 30 the heavy curve man has reached a salary of $3,000 a year. By the time he is 38, he has climbed up into the $5,000 a year class—and is still going up. Note how rapidly the distance increases between the two men after they are 30. The distance doubles, trebles, and still increases until at 46 the broken curve man has many salary squares to climb. He has been hopelessly outdistanced by the heavy curve man.

Take the chart above—go back to the time when you quit school and took your first job—trace in your line on the chart until the present time. Are you a broken curve man or a heavy curve man? Have you been in a rut or has your advancement been gradual and steady? Be honest with yourself! Are you headed upward toward the executive class—or are you headed downward on the broken curve toward dependency?

You can be a heavy curve man if you will but take advantage of specialized training such as you can now obtain without interference with your present position. LaSalle Extension University offers you a choice of twelve courses of home-study in specialized business subjects. If you want to increase your salary by making your services of greater value—you can do so by spending your spare time in training at home.

During this training under the LaSalle extension method you will have the advantage of the LaSalle "Problem Method" by which you will solve actual problems taken from modern business and you will be guided by a staff of over 450 business experts, law specialists, expert accountants, trained correspondents, experienced bankers, traffic experts, executives, and educators.

More than 253,000 ambitious men have already been helped to promotion, increased salaries and business success by LaSalle training. More than 50,000 men are now being trained annually by LaSalle.

Check in the coupon the course which especially appeals to you and get full information—also our helpful book, "Ten Years' Promotion in One"—which tells how men with the aid of LaSalle training have gained in one year promotion which men without this training have not realized in ten. Make your start today. Send the coupon now!

SACRIFICES FORGOTTEN

Public's Lack of Interest in Disabled Emergency Officers' Fight for Compensation

By GEORGE H. LYNCH.

THE pleasant phase "nothing is too good for the wounded" seems to have had its day. A proof of the lack of interest of the public is shown by the fact that not one in a hundred—perhaps not one in ten thousand—knows anything at all concerning the fight the disabled emergency officers have made for more than a year and are now making for treatment at the hands of their Government equal to that given the disabled officers of the regular army.

It is not my purpose to write a brief for the disabled emergency officers, but rather to give information and bring to light the fight, worthy or unworthy, that these disabled men have carried on from their sickbeds single-handed without the sympathy or even the notice of the public.

Just what do these disabled officers seek? Their purpose was stated as follows in a brief submitted to a Congressional committee: "In a very few words all the disabled emergency officers (those deprived of their means of livelihood by wounds or disease incurred in line of duty) ask is that in the matter of compensation they be placed upon an equality with the disabled officers of the regular army of like rank and like disability."

Despite the simplicity of the request and its apparent justice, these disabled men find themselves against a stone wall, apparently impregnable unless it be pushed down by public opinion. Congress, I believe, entertains a sincere sympathy for the wounded and would place all disabled American officers on the same footing as to compensation whether they were officers of the regular establishment or emergency forces, if prompted to do so by an expression of public sentiment. Just so long as the public forgets its war wounded, just so long will lethargy and indecision mark proposed legislation in the interest of the disabled.

Every one of the half dozen or more bills in Congress that would assist the disabled would now be law if they were backed by a fraction of the public support given the "bonus" bill. Direct and specific pleas for the bonus proposition may be found in every Congressman's mail. These same members of Congress hear very little in the interest of the disabled except in a more or less vague way. It is quite true that in many protests against the bonus the writer will wind up his letter with a paragraph about liberality to the wounded. Some of these letters are no doubt sincere, but much of the "liberality to the wounded" sentiment is by way of excuse for opposition to the bonus and not positive, clear, straight-from-the-shoulder sentiment for the disabled. Standing on its own feet, public sentiment for generosity in the treatment of the disabled is sadly lacking in any tangible form.

Red Tape and Inefficiency.

Writing in a recent issue of the American Legion Weekly, J. W. Rixey Smith, special Washington correspondent for that paper, said:

"So it is with the disabled veteran of the World War. Entwined in a thousand legislative difficulties, surrounded on all sides by red tape and inefficiency, confused and dazed by the multiplicity and duplicity of signposts in his wilderness of suffering, he has little ear for the sweet music of promises that some day everything will clear up and be all right. * * *"

It is to the American Legion's credit that in its efforts before Congress it is asking that legislation for the disabled be given the right of way before anything else.

As the law stands now, disabled enlisted men receive exactly the same compensation whether they were in the regular army or were members of the emergency forces. There is no discrimination between them. But when it comes to the officer personnel the disabled regular army officers are retired on three-fourths of their pay of rank, while the disabled emergency officers (Reserve, National Guard, National Army), who bore like responsibilities and suffered like disabilities, receive compensation irrespective of rank and equal to the flat allowance given disabled enlisted men.

The situation was first brought to the attention of Congress through a letter addressed to Senator James W. Wadsworth, Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee of the Senate, and signed by three officers. The Senator replied that he appreciated the claims made by the officers and he proposed a retirement provision for the officers concerned as a rider to another law. However, upon consideration, possible difficulties were foreseen defeating any action at that time on the measure.

Later, Representative Mason of Illinois introduced a bill in the House seeking to remedy the situation. As time went on and nothing was done by Congress, Representative Stevenson of South Carolina offered a bill in the House providing: "That any officer who has served in the military of the United States during the war with Germany and who does not belong to the regular army shall have the right, provided he has incurred disabilities while in the service during said war, to be retired on the same terms and on the same compensation as like officers of the regular army."

This bill was finally referred to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, which handled all compensation laws. Although hearings on the bill were held nearly a year ago, March 15, 16 and 17, 1920, no definite action has been taken. The case is now before the present Congress.

Some of the Difficulties.

There is no doubt that there are possible difficulties to be reckoned with in raising the disabled emergency officer to the same footing with the disabled regular army officer. Writing to the Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, Senator Wadsworth pointed out that if Congress retired the disabled emergency officers of the late war it might very easily follow that it would be called upon to similarly retire like officers of the Civil and Spanish-American Wars. He referred to the possibility of dissatisfaction among the enlisted men and perhaps as more controlling than anything else the Senator expressed himself as deeming it wise to go slow in what eventually might become a precedent for the country in its treatment of the disabled of future wars. Congressman Rayburn of Texas, a member of the committee which heard the arguments on the Stevenson bill, remarked that the matter involved a policy and not merely a question of giving the disabled emergency officers as much pension as the disabled regular army officers.

With relation to the probable cost to the Government resulting from granting the claims of the disabled emergency officers, a sharp difference appears between the estimate submitted by Secretary of War Baker and Congressman Stevenson, as disclosed during the hearings on the Stevenson bill. In his letter to the committee Mr. Baker stated that the estimated initial yearly cost would be $31,090,420. This estimate included all "probable successful applicants" for retirement, totaling 19,010, at an average of $1,562 per year. It must be remembered that disabled emergency officers now receive compensation and the extra cost to the Government would be only the difference between the compensation as received now and what they would receive if retired on three-fourths pay of rank, the same as disabled regular army officers. Secretary Baker's estimate covers the total cost without deducting what the officers now receive. The estimate also covers not only those now disabled, but as well those who may later become disabled and attribute their disability to their military service.

The Amount Involved.

In this connection Congressman Stevenson said: "The best information that we could get is that this will involve in the neighborhood of 1,800 officers, and involve an average compensation of $70 per month. Now in that way you can get an idea of the financial disbursement per month as the result of the legislation which is contemplated here. You will find that it is not so large." Prefacing his reference to expense, Mr. Stevenson remarked: "I take it that the committee will not consider seriously the financial view of it if it is a matter of justice."

Apparently the only organized opposition to the claims of the disabled emergency officers comes from the War Department or regular army. The retirement law for disabled officers of the regular army is a coveted spot in the military establishment. The emergency officers would do nothing to impair that law. It is easy enough to believe that in the extension of retirement to all disabled officers, the regular establishment foresees a possible curtailment of its own full privilege of retirement.

It is pointed out by the emergency officers that the difference of compensation between officers and enlisted men as exists in the regular army is based not only on the ground of relative responsibility borne, but upon the more important ground of the comparatively greater age of the officers, not only resulting in greater dependency but in less likelihood of success in beginning anew their life's work. If the difference is based on these factors why, the emergency men ask, is it that such factors do not apply to the emergency officers as well as to the officers of the regular army?

It is argued that officers of the regular establishment who are disabled have no other work to look to, having been trained only for military service. That statement so far as it goes is admitted as true by the emergency men. "But," they say, "the question at issue deals only with disabled men—those who have lost their means of livelihood—and a civilian (emergency) officer can be so disabled in the military service as not to be able to return to his former civilian duty, just as truly as a regular officer can be so disabled as not to be able to continue in the military service." The contention of the emergency officers is that for practical purposes, in a broad sense, some difference or preferential treatment may very well be allowed to the advantage of the officers of the regular establishment, but when the Government deals with the wounded no discrimination between the regular and emergency forces as a class can be justified. The emergency officers refer to the fact that pensions arising out of the Civil and Spanish-American wars are based on pay of rank. Further it is pointed out that the amount of compensation allowed by the compensation laws generally of the Federal Government and of the States are based on the pay received while in employment. The navy and marine corps retire their disabled emergency officers. The emergency officers of the army do not understand the reason why their case is made an exception to the general rule.

The American Legion, consisting of an overwhelming majority of enlisted men, has twice gone on record (by resolution at national conventions) as solidly supporting treatment in the way of compensation to the disabled emergency officer equal to that received by the like disabled officer of the regular army.

When we consider our comparative wealth as a nation and the comparatively few disabled indeed it seems that our duty is plain to make the phrase "nothing is too good for the wounded" no less true in fact than it is in sentiment.

SAVING BRITAIN'S BABIES

What Newly Formed Ministry of Health Is Doing to Protect Infant Lives

By STEPHEN DAKEYNE.

GREAT BRITAIN in the war which she is waging to save the lives of the babies is relying more on a national policy of health than is the case in the United States or in Canada. Both nations realize, however, that it is of permanent importance to save the lives of the next generation. Even more important than the actual deaths of infants under 1 year of age is the fact that the causes of a high death rate affect the health of the survivors.

The newly formed Ministry of Health in London is working so that infant lives may be saved, and so that the health of the surviving children may be protected.

Within the last ten years there has been an extraordinary improvement. In the Summer quarter of the year 1911 in England and Wales over 201 infants out of 1,000 died. This year only 65 out of 1,000 died during the Summer quarter. This figure is partially affected by the mild Winter and wet Summer, but, even so, it compares favorably with the figures of a city like Montreal, where the infantile mortality rate in 1918 was 191.5.

But England and Wales still lose 3,000 mothers a year in child-birth, and it is believed that this mortality might be almost entirely prevented. It is difficult, too, to overestimate the great amount of suffering and disability caused to the 700,000 mothers, due mainly to negligence, who every year give birth to children.

A National Policy.

The Ministry of Health has far more direct control of public health than the United States Public Health Service under Surgeon General Cumming, which is a department of the Treasury and is largely concerned with port sanitation. The American Public Health Service, which is closely in touch with the British Ministry of Health, is certainly trying to improve the care of children under its control. But, at present, it has been given little power or money, and, in fact, there is no Federal department in the United States which creates such a high disinterested standard in public health administration as the British Ministry of Health.

Nevertheless, the recent establishment in the U. S. A. of State Departments of Health or Hygiene and the growing demand for trained health officers is creating a general interest in the methods pursued in Great Britain.

Dr. Addison, the English Minister of Health, last year authorized a special department to care for the health of the mother and child, and appointed a special staff of women doctors and nurse midwives to supervise this work. The powers of other departments were transferred to the central office and a scheme of maternity and child welfare was inaugurated in every county with the exception of one in Wales, and all county boroughs. There are now in working order in England and Wales 1,754 maternity and infant welfare centres, 2,211 nurseries and 89 maternity homes. The midwifery service is also being reorganized.

The Ministry of Health works closely with each local authority, and grants are given, which last year amounted to over $2,000,000 toward the expenses of maternity and child welfare work. Almost all local authorities have trained medical officers who are permanent officials, as well as a staff of midwives and health visitors specially trained for this work.

The Bureaucratic Danger.

There is a danger which is thoroughly realized by most students of this subject in Great Britain of too much importance being attached to the work of officials, and not enough to the personal influence of voluntary workers. After all, the health of children really depends upon the mothers. Voluntary workers can often be more effective missionaries of hygiene than paid officials, whose advice is often regarded with suspicion.

In the number of voluntary organizations interested in health matters America is today leading the way. The American Social Hygiene Association and the American Child Hygiene Association, by their efforts for popular education and propaganda, have given great encouragement to similar bodies in Great Britain.

One of the first necessities dealing with any social problem is to have definite and accurate data to work upon. In England and Wales every birth and death is registered, and so the infant mortality rates provided by the Registrar General provide a reliable gauge of health. This infant mortality rate is one of the most valuable and sensitive indices of the health of this community.

The Problem of Maternity.

The ideal in a civilized community is that no child-bearing woman should be without adequate and skilled assistance at the hour of her need, and no baby without a birthright of health. Briefly, there are five methods essential to accomplish this ideal in both America and Europe.

1. Proper care of the mother.
2. Efficient and adequate midwifery.
3. Maternity homes and hospitals provided where home accommodation is unsuitable. This is necessary not only for women of the working classes, but for many in the middle classes. In England and Wales during the last year fifty new maternity homes have been provided by local authorities and voluntary agencies. But the present accommodation is totally inadequate to cope with the demand.
4. Home nursing and health visiting conducted by well-trained and intelligent women. There are too many of the old "Sairey Gamps" described by Charles Dickens in England. Progress is being made in this direction, and a roll has been completed which shows that there are now 35,046 trained midwives and 9,120 untrained midwives registered in England and Wales.
5. Infant welfare centres established in all large communities. These centres should be for the supervision of the normal baby and for the practical education of the mother.

Future Work.

These are the main lines on which this work is being carried out in Great Britain, but much yet remains to be done. Although there has been a steady decline in infant mortality since the beginning of the present century, on the average one out of every ten babies born dies before it is one year old. In the North of England, where women are employed industrially more than in the South, there is need for far more education. The present deficiency of houses is increasing the dangers of home confinements. There is need for more surgical cleanliness. There is an increasing lack of qualified women taking up this work. Undoubtedly steps will have to be taken to encourage such women as did work with the Red Cross during the war to take their place in the ranks of those who are fighting for the babies.

Nevertheless, the English people themselves have a newly awakened social conscience in respect of the physical well-being of mother and children. The professional and lay press in Great Britain are paying considerable attention to this question and are molding and guiding public opinion. Recently visits have been paid to America by experts studying American methods, and there is no doubt that a freer interchange of experiences between England and the American States will be of great mutual advantage to the cause of the health of both peoples in mind and body.

NEW THEORY AS TO MAN

Polish Mathematician's Conclusions That Human's Function Is to "Bind Time" Attracts Scientists' Attention

HOW many angels will three pigs and five Hottentots make?" That was one of the questions asked his interviewer by Alfred Korzybski, who has just written a book which sweeps aside all past conceptions regarding man's place in the universe. Man is not a higher animal to whom has been added a touch of divinity. Man belongs in a class to himself. He is a human being born with a specific attribute which separates him from any of the other classes known to the human mind; he has the power to bind time.

Count Korzybski is a Pole who saw active service in the World War. He comes of a family of mathematicians. What appears to the ordinary laymen as a brain-cracking problem in higher mathematics Count Korzybski treats as a simple problem in arithmetic. The new theory which he propounds, namely, that civilization has been askew these thousands of years because man was wrong in the primary definition of himself and applied to himself the laws of nature applicable to animals only, has the support of some who are prominent in the scientific world. Walter N. Polakov, well-known engineer of this city, is one; Robert B. Wolf, industrial engineer, is another.

The three definitions around which the material of the book is based are these: "Members of the plant or vegetable kingdom bind solar energy; members of the animal kingdom bind space; humans bind time."

A clarification of these definitions was given by Robert B. Wolf in a paper read before the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

"Korzybski," he says, "who had ample opportunity to observe the destructive effects of commercial competition in Europe, concluded that man must have a wrong conception of the reason for his existence. The human standards seemed to be but little above the animal standards and the survival of the fittest naturally resulted. It was in the hope that he could find a fundamental distinction between the various classes of life that he began his researches by studying the records of the past.

"He first turned his attention to the lowest form of organic life, the vegetable, and very soon found its main function to be the storing up of solar energy. The vegetable organism, which does not move about, but is attached to the earth, draws up through its roots the inorganic chemical substances from the earth and forms them into a cell in which the energy of the sun is confined. He therefore concluded that the function of the vegetable class of life is to 'bind solar energy.' Coal, for instance, is of vegetable origin and in burning it we release sun power.

"He next directed his attention to the records of animal life and at once noted that the outstanding thing which distinguished it from the vegetable is its freedom to move about in space. The animal is more concerned with giving out energy than with storing up energy; in fact, it can be likened to a firearm by means of which vegetable energy is exploded.

"As all life proceeds by multiplication, i. e., geometrical progression, each species of animal life was soon in conflict with every other species. This animal characteristic of movement in space, of occupation of space, resulted, of course, in a struggle for self-preservation. This was especially true in an environment which stimulated rapid production of the species. Darwin observed this when he enunciated the principle of the survival of the fittest—no two physical bodies can occupy the same space at the same time.

"These observations led Korzybski to his second generalization, namely, because of this fundamental faculty of movement in space the animal was destined to increase its power of movement by its occupation of more space. The animal, he therefore concluded, was a 'binding space' class of life.

"Having concluded that the function of the vegetable was to 'bind energy' and the animal to 'bind space,' he next turned his attention to the records of human activities. He soon realized that the outstanding characteristic which distinguishes the human being from the animal is its capacity to record past experiences, to make them available for future generations.

"All of the world's great religions were based upon the recorded teachings of their founders. Our whole system of law is based upon past precedents recorded in our law proceedings and modern science is primarily an accurate history of the results of past happenings in the organic and inorganic worlds. It is this recording of events in time which is a distinctly human faculty and through it man alone becomes conscious of the operation of the principles of causation, for without this power of recalling past events men could not have come to a realization of the absolute unchangeableness of natural law.

"This faculty of holding or fixing past events to make the knowledge of them a source of power for future generations is what Korzybski calls 'binding time.' His third generalization is that man is therefore a 'time-binding' class of life. The natural effects of this is that each succeeding generation of mankind is able to begin approximately where the preceding one left off, whereas in the animal world each succeeding generation is obliged to begin practically where the preceding one began.

"The far-reaching effects of this new realization of human life is expressed by Korzybski in his conception of what human competition should be, namely, competition in time. 'Survival of the fittest,' yes, but in time, not space. It is, he maintains, the application of space binding animal standards to the human being which is responsible for 'man's inhumanity to man.'

"The World War was the logical result of animal emotions controlling the terrific power released by human intellect.

"Man, therefore, by the basic law of his nature is compelled to work for posterity. The animal is conscious of one dimension of time—the present. Man alone consciously uses all three—past, present and future. That is why real education by means of the true presentation of facts of the past is the only cure for wars; also why humanity must resist any dogmatic attempt to keep the individual in ignorance. Safety lies in a true evaluation of the past in order that present humanity can consciously create a future which will be in harmony with the universal creative purpose."

According to Mr. Korzybski, there is nothing new in the presentation of the fact that man has the power of rolling up time with all its accumulated facts and using that power in solving the problems of the present and the future. The new point in his theory lies in the fact that it is this power of rolling up time or binding time which is the definitive characteristic of humans.

"Functioning is the aim and purpose of life," he said in further explanation of his theory. "The function of plants, as I have explained, is to bind solar energy; the function of animals is to bind space. The fact that man can chemically bind solar energy does not make him a plant; the fact that he binds space or can fight for his place in the sun does not make him an animal. It is not what an object has in common with other objects that defines it or places it; it is what it possesses apart from other objects that classifies it. A solid has line qualities, but a surface is not a line. In the same manner a man may have animal qualities, but that does not make him an animal.

"Mixing of terms is the one error into which the scientist and mathematician never fall. He knows that you cannot add a solid to a surface and get a logical result. Yet that is what human beings have been doing all along. Man is an animal, they say, to whom is added a special spark from divinity. In that one little definition three dimensions are mixed in a manner that brings distress to the heart of any mathematician. Man, animal and divinity. Yet this is the formula upon which our civilization is built. It is mathematical nonsense identical to such absurdity as x square inches equals y linear inches plus or multiplied by z cubic inches.

"If man, as I say, is in a class all to himself whose function it is to bind time, how do I account for the Darwinian theory? That's easy. There is no conflict between the two. The evolution of man was from the ape to the human. But just as soon as the ape began to remember things, just as soon as he began using and improving upon the utensils that his father made, he passed for all time out of the animal class. He began binding time.

"The whole point of the matter is this: Man is born with a time-binding cell not possessed by any other organism of which we are now cognizant. Take a new-born child, place him in the wilderness, and he will begin binding time for his children. Place him in the midst of civilization and he will take up the work of binding time where it was left off by the former generation. He must do that. That is his natural law. That is his function.

"Take a new-born dog and place him in the wilderness. He will fight for his existence and nothing else. He will do what the first of his kind did in the wilderness. Place him in the midst of civilization and he is still an animal. He still fights for his preservation, for his place in the sun. Time means nothing to him. The past, the present, the future. To him there is no connection other than the one of reproduction.

"How many angels will three pigs and five Hottentots make? This question is no more foolish than are the questions and statements made about divine sparks and higher animals. Don't mix your dimensions. That is the first law of mathematics. An animal has nothing to do with a human, a human has nothing to do with divinity.

"Higher classes are able to understand lower classes. Lower classes cannot understand higher. It is obvious that humanity can understand the lower life and the standards of animals, but it is utterly unable to have any conception and understanding of the fourth dimension or a higher power than itself.

"It is useless to attempt it. In the meantime, higher classes can be degraded to lower classes. It is absolutely clear that to have any conception of a higher class it is necessary to add to the lower class some unknown quality characteristic of the higher class which is beyond the power of the lower class. For instance, a pig's idea of the human who feeds it is no doubt that the human is some kind of a better pig, but a pig, nevertheless. We make a similar supposition when we attempt to go upward. Divinity is some kind of higher human. A human is some kind of higher animal.

"We forget that in doing that we lower a higher class to an inferior class by eliminating the higher function which characterizes the higher class."

RED CROSS IN PULLMANS.

"The traveling public is soon to enjoy comforts which, in these days of self-service, it would be lucky to get at home. A toothache, a bruised toe, a throbbing head, or just plain nerves, are to be ministered to and soothed by Pullman car maids trained in home nursing and first aid. Car sickness is to be banished and bandages and hot-water bags are to be always at hand, ready for use in emergencies.

"All this will result from the recent decision of the Pullman Car Company to have its entire force of maids reporting at the New York office—a force several hundred strong—given thorough instruction in home nursing and first aid through the Teaching Centre of the New York County Chapter, American Red Cross.

"It was last Spring that Mrs. Mabel Fitts, a Pullman car maid and manicurist of fourteen years' experience, completed a course in these subjects given in the Bronx by the New York County Chapter.

"Soon afterward she crossed the continent with a special train chartered by members of the National Electric Light Association, which at the time was holding a convention in San Francisco. A first aid kit and nursing equipment were provided for her use and many opportunities arose for her to be of real service. A sprained ankle required frequent rebandagings, many cases of headache and car sickness were relieved and one case of serious illness demanded her closest attention for several days.

"'Never before had I been able to be so useful,' said Mrs. Fitts recently in speaking of her trip. 'It was remarkable how much confidence people had in me as soon as they learned that I had taken Red Cross training.'

"So impressed was the Pullman company by the advantages of this new type of service that steps were soon taken to arrange courses of instruction for the remainder of the force. These are to be given by the Red Cross Teaching Centre at the Public Library at 103 West 135th Street, beginning very shortly."

A PERIODICAL
That is of a new sort

The daily newspaper editors carefully weigh every item of news that is published, verify the facts as far as possible, and seek to employ only reliable correspondents. Notwithstanding rigid precautions, wide differences in narrating the same episodes are found when the newspapers are compared. This is unavoidable.

Frequently only when time has thrown an event into perspective can its full truth and meaning be perceived. The function of CURRENT HISTORY MAGAZINE is to furnish this kind of record. By its unique and powerful organization — through the worldwide news agencies of THE NEW YORK TIMES—it has become the sole periodical which gives the sifted truth of occurrences of world interest within each thirty-day period, presenting the facts entirely without partiality or editorial comments.

The Magazine, moreover, contains the studied judgment of the world's eminent publicists in relating the outstanding events of the month, so as to acquaint the American public with the full significance of world affairs which vitally affect our individual lives and our country's interests—but always confining the features to topics of the history of today.

THE CO-OPERATIVE APARTMENT HOUSE

DEMAND ON THE INCREASE

Two Seventeen-Story Structures, Occupying Park Avenue Blocks, Practically Sold From Plans.

The housing crisis in New York City, as well as throughout the entire country, has brought forward many suggestions for solving the problem.

One plan that has been strongly advocated by many prominent citizens and realty men that has the advantage of not only meeting all the demands but combining with it thrift, economy and the assurance of a permanent home is the co-operative apartment ownership plan which entirely eliminates the landlord bugaboo.

Much has been said for and against the plan which many people are of the opinion is an experiment.

Co-operative apartment ownership is not an experiment and is not new. Years ago the idea was put in practice abroad. In this country it has been reduced to a science in New York City, where millions of dollars' worth of co-operative buildings have been built during the last twelve or fifteen years that have not only been successful in every respect but have yielded a handsome profit to the joint owners. Under the co-operative plan the objects are first and foremost a permanent residence in which are embodied in every room the owner's individual ideas as to floor plan and treatment. These features, together with many other distinct advantages, make the high-class co-operative building far more desirable than the ordinary apartment house. Many New Yorkers who had the courage and foresight to invest their money in this class of homes a few years ago are not only living in large, luxurious apartments practically rent free, but when they desired to sell did so at handsome profits, in many cases double the initial cost.

At a recent meeting of realty men, the matter was discussed at length and it was the consensus of opinion that the co-operative plan was growing in favor daily and that in the course of a few years the majority of the better grades of structures in Manhattan would be built and operated on this plan.

At the present time two seventeen-story structures occupying two entire blocks fronts on Park Avenue and known as 290 and 300 Park Avenue, are in course of construction and are being sold on the co-operative plan through Douglas L. Elliman & Co.

The best evidence that they have the approval of the thrifty business man is shown by the fact that the majority of the apartments have been sold from the plans. No. 290 Park Avenue, which is being built by Fred T. Ley & Co., Inc., occupies the entire block bounded by Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth Streets, Park and Vanderbilt Avenues. The first floor of this seventeen-story structure is to contain besides public space, a dining room and kitchen. The second floor will contain fifty-eight servants' rooms and trunk storage checking rooms. The other fifteen floors are designed for six apartments to a floor in varying sizes. There will be four passenger and four service elevators. Four apartments per floor will have kitchens and pantries. The other two, being smaller apartments, will have no kitchens.

The servant problem is solved through the hourly service plan. A staff of maids and butlers under the direction of a competent housekeeper is subject to instant call for any purpose and are paid for service by the hour.

A remarkable feature of 290 Park Avenue that eliminates endless financial troubles is that there is no mortgage on the building. The building is erected free and clear on land leased from the New York Central Railroad for a total term of sixty-three years beginning April 1, 1920, represented by three periods of twenty-one years each, subject, however, to the right of the railroad to buy the building at the end of the second period. The rent to be $45,000 a year during estimated period of construction from April 1, 1920, to Oct. 1, 1920, and $90,000 a year net for the balance of the first period of twenty-one years and at the same rate thereafter unless increased as the result of a reappraisal.

At the present time more than three-fourths of the apartments in 290 Park Avenue have been sold. Among the permanent buyers being Charles T. Baisley, C. L. Baugher, J. G. Bergquist, Holbrook Blinn, Edward N. Brown, Mrs. Stephen Brown, Mrs. James A. Burden, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Butler of Sandusky, Ohio, Percy M. Chandler, Mrs. Charles H. Clark, Henry F. du Pont of Winterthur, Del., Fred Edey, Edward H. Everett of Bennington, Vt., William A. [illegible]rn, Mrs. D. D. Forbes, William [illegible] Gray, Mrs. Charles C. Griswold, Mrs. Lawrence Jacob, Fred T. Ley, Louis K. Liggett of Boston, Mass., [illegible] McDonald, Mrs. Esmeralda E. Marcus, Paul McEwen, C. W. Nichols, W. H. Nichols Jr., W. H. Nichols Sr., Mrs. Robert W. Paterson, Geraldyn L. Redmond, Dr. Dudley D. Roberts, Mrs. [illegible] E. Robinson of Greenwich, Conn., Philip Ruxton, H. N. Slater, Edwin W. Sparks, Sanford H. Steele, John T. Terry, Frank S. Voss, James H. Wainwright, Whitney Warren, Mrs. George J. Jackson.

The seventeen-story apartment occupying the Park Avenue block between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Streets, also a co-operative structure, is being erected by the Thompson-Starrett Company, and is over 50 per cent. rented from its plans, on ten-year leases. Among the many prominent buyers of apartments in this house are T. Coleman du Pont, George L. Duval, F. C. B. Page, [illegible] Clark, L. J. Horowitz, Thomas [illegible] Co., B. B. McAlpin, W. D. N. Pa[illegible] M. Boomer, R. F. Boyd, Louis [illegible] Percy Rockefeller, L. L. Dunham and F. Coit Johnson.

DISCUSS SEWER PLANS.

Proper Equipment Essential to Growing Queens Borough.

The Board of Directors of the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce at its December meeting, approved the report of the Committee on Sewers of which F. Ray Howe is Chairman, relative to a plan of financing the cost of an efficient sewage disposal system for New York City. The following committee to co-operate with the Merchants Association of New York, the New York Chamber of Commerce, the New York Board of Trade and Transportation and other civic and public bodies to promote the passage of the necessary legislation was appointed: E. A. MacDougall, F. Ray Howe, Ray Palmer, C. G. Meyer, C. G. M. Thomas and Robert W. Higbie.

In his report, Mr. Howe made the following recommendations:

1. The immediate construction of large trunk sewers and disposal plants in the Borough of Queens is a matter of utmost importance, and no single factor will do more to retard its growth than a failure to provide these facilities.

2. The City of New York has so little margin for the purpose of borrowing that it is doubtful if much work in the line of sewer construction can be done under the assessment plan, as the city is compelled to finance by revenue bonds pending the collection of the assessment, and these bonds are deducted from the available borrowing power of the city under the debt limit.

3. There is no logical reason why the construction of sewers should not be handled in the same manner as the supply of water.

4. From the data submitted it appears that a moderate increase in the water rates would enable the payment of interest and amortization on a very large sum expended for sewers.

DEMAND FOR THE SMALL, MODERATE-PRICE, PRIVATE DWELLING BEING MET IN BOROUGH OF QUEENS

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and the Title Guarantee and Trust Company Make Big Loans to Finance the Erection of Hundreds of Houses Within Easy Reach of the Heart of Manhattan

The purchase last week by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt of a house in the new east side colony in Sutton Place, which is a continuation of Avenue A, between Fifty-seventh Street and Fifty-ninth Street, again calls attention to what is probably the most remarkable home-buying movement in the history of New York City real estate.

Only a few years ago Lexington Avenue was considered the dead line for the better class of east side homes; and real estate operators were amazed, right after the close of the war, at the sudden popularity of the section lying between Lexington Avenue and Third Avenue north of Fifty-ninth Street where, within a year, hundreds of houses were bought for occupancy largely by those who as a result of the housing shortage were crowded out of the section between Fifth Avenue and Lexington Avenue.

The crossing of Lexington Avenue seemed like a logical thing, and after it happened, every one wondered why it had not occurred before; but the jump across Third Avenue, Second Avenue and First Avenue to Avenue A is an entirely different proposition, and one which opens up possibilities along the same lines for the entire east side of Manhattan. It also raises the question as to why the high open land directly across the East River is not also particularly suitable for those who want to own their own homes in a close-in, restricted, moderate-priced neighborhood, in preference to going to the suburbs or to any of the outlying sections.

The selection of Avenue A for the homes of the Vanderbilts, Olins, Webbs, Marburys and others also calls attention to, the fact that a high-class neighborhood can be created by a colony of the right kind of people in any locality, regardless of the surroundings, for the location of Sutton Place can hardly be called ideal, as it lies almost directly under the shadow of the Queensboro Bridge, towering more than a hundred feet above it, while the two 200-foot chimneys of a factory immediately adjoin it on Fifty-ninth Street, large coal pockets border it on the south and the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island is directly east and only a few hundred feet away.

The twenty or thirty houses which comprise Sutton Place will, however, when occupied by the class of people who are buying them, create a neighborhood of themselves, independent of the surroundings, and other colonies of this kind [illegible] spring up between Fortieth and Ninety-second Street, which, from industrial and racial reasons, seem to mark the limits of the possibilities in this direction.

Directly across the East River from the upper east side of Manhattan and within five minutes' ride of the Queensboro Bridge by motor and subway, large tracts of high open land, protected by the zoning law from factory encroachment, are available for colony development, and two of the most attractive of these, Norwood Gardens and Arleigh, are now being improved by the Rickert-Brown Realty Company.

Norwood Gardens, the company's latest operation, is planned along different lines from any of the company's previous developments, and is designed to meet, at moderate prices, the requirement of the same discriminating class of buyers that have invaded the east side of Manhattan; that is, those who want a home of their own in a close-in restricted neighborhood having an atmosphere of its own by reason of the artistic design of the houses and the select character of their owners.

Norwood Gardens comprises about 200 lots, lying on the high land between Broadway and Grand Avenue and Sixth and Ninth Avenues, directly across the East River from East Eighty-sixth Street, Manhattan. It is within a few minutes' walk of the Broadway and Grand Avenue stations on the Ditmars Avenue branch of the Queensboro subway, giving it a 5 cent fare to all parts of the city.

Artistic individuality is the keynote of every house in Norwood. Nothing commonplace can be found. The front elevations were designed by Walter Hopkins of Warren & Wetmore, whose underlying thought has been to get away from the conventional city house and give to each the atmosphere of an individual home. The combination of tapestry brick and white stucco give a color effect that is accentuated by the iron balconies, the lattice work, the green blinds, the flower boxes in the windows and the flower pots on the roof.

The cornices, of tile on some of the houses and of brick on others, make a pleasing contrast, all of which, together with the cast plaques, reproductions of originals by well-known artists, create what may well be called "The House Beautiful."

The terraces, enclosed by hedges and separated from each other by evergreens and flowering shrubs, have given an opportunity for landscaping not possible in front of city houses as usually designed. In contrast with the usual city plan, the houses are set back twenty-five feet from the street, giving a clear space of 110 feet between the houses on the opposite sides, creating a park-like effect that virtually brings the atmosphere of the country into the city.

The interior plans are by Philip Resnyk, whose object has been to bring into the houses the fresh air, sunlight and easy housekeeping features of a home in the country. They contain eight rooms, two private baths and a two-car garage, with a private driveway in the rear.

The improvement of Norwood Gardens began about six month ago with the construction of thirty houses, the first of these now being ready for occupancy.

A few blocks north of Norwood Gardens and adjoining the new sixty acre waterfront park, is located Arleigh, the largest one-family housing operation in the Borough of Queens where, within one year, eighty houses have been completed and fourteen more will be ready for early Spring occupancy, at a total cost for construction alone of nearly a million dollars.

Sixty-two houses have already been sold and occupied, most of them as soon as completed. The property, which comprises more than one thousand city lots, is only one block from the Ditmars Avenue station on the Queensboro branch of the Dual Subway System, and only fifteen minutes from the Grand Central Subway Station.

Norwood Gardens and Arleigh have been made possible through the loan policies of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and the Title Guarantee & Trust Company, which have, within the last year, granted loans to the Rickert-Brown Realty Company amounting to more than two and a half million dollars for the development of its properties—the Metropolitan loans amounting to $2,150,000 and the Title Guarantee and Trust Company loans amounting to $368,000.

These loans have enabled the company to buy building materials in enormous quantities for cash, thereby entirely eliminating the profiteer, and to build houses at a cost that would be absolutely impossible otherwise. As all the loans of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company run for fifteen years, it eliminates the risk to the owners of securing new loans every three years, the time real estate mortgages usually run.

THE BRICK MARKET.

Manufacturers Selling Stock at Cost, and Demand Poor.

"The buyers' strike, aided and abetted by general financial conditions and old Jack Frost, has the brick giant rather flat on his back. His usually strong right hand, which lies over the New England States, shows some sign of life, and his toes, which are sunning in balmy California, are wiggling quite vigorously. It is thus evidenced that the old boy is not dead, but sleeping, and the activity around his pedal extremities indicates pleasant dreams of great vigor and action upon awakening.

"We can imagine that Old Brick has a vision of the millions of homes and thousands of factories, stores, schools and hospitals, so much needed, and just a little way off, and in the background, through vanishing forests, he sees the rising sun of his industry, and in the rays spreading over all the land he reads the promise of a wider appreciation of his great strength, utility and durability and a greater need in this country of that enduring service Brick has rendered to all ages, from the very beginning of civilization.

"This is another way of saying that the reports from 135 of our 350 members, received during the past month, show that while there is little demand for brick nobody is 'blue.' In the face of a big slump in building, the industry is sitting rather pretty, doling out its accumulated stock at cost or a little better, and hopeful for the future.

"There is a slight recession in price, averaging about $2 per thousand in the localities where new coal prices have taken effect. In all other sections the price at plant remains the same as on Nov. 1. Where there are exceptions, it means that some unusually high or unusually low quotation came in that was not recorded a month ago.

"The proportion of orders to stock has dropped to 41.5 per cent. from 53.5 per cent. on Nov. 1. Los Angeles continues to be the brightest spot, reporting 3,500,000 on hand, with orders for 15,500,000. The holding of prices under these conditions indicates that the manufacturers expect to readjust prices only after the readjusted manufacturing cost becomes a known factor. More than 40 per cent. of firms reporting see signs of downward trend in costs, while 51 per cent. report stationary costs up to date.

"Good labor supply is reported by 82 per cent., and of these 70 per cent. say labor efficiency is improved. The excess of 175,000,000 brick on hand over orders would not be serious if there was any demand, but this surplus will be increased rather than diminished during the next three months, as the small proportion of plants operating produce more than current consumption.

"Facts gathered do not suggest a sharp decline in price for 1921. It must be considered that the war years closed the brick plants and disorganized the business. They could not resume to meet demands of late 1919 upon an economical basis. There was no excess profit in the high price of 1920. Prices will go down from 1920 schedules only as cost of manufacture is lowered. Generally there is no water to be squeezed out."

THE SENATE REPORT ON HOUSING

By W. A. SADD,

President of the Savings Bank Division, American Bankers Association, and President Chattanooga Savings Bank.

The report of the United States Senate Select Committee on Reconstruction and Production, presented by Senator Calder on Dec. 14, 1920, is disappointing, although the country has learned to expect very little from such so-called investigations. The report fails to give any facts of value to either housing or construction interests, and even the conclusions appear to be based on such superficial reasons as to be worthless or even dangerous.

Turning first to the remarks on finance and taxation, the committee appears to favor (1) investment of time deposits of national banks in part in real estate mortgages, (2) exemption for a limited period of interest from real estate mortgages, (3) exemption from the income tax of profits from home building to the extent that they are reinvested in the construction of other homes, (4) bond issues by a Federal instrumentality for rediscounting mortgages on dwellings by building and loan associations and other institutions, and (5) development of a national savings institution in the United States Post Office Department.

Careful consideration of these various proposals seems to indicate that they are not only unsound in theory but actually unnecessary so far as they are not absolutely impractical. The only exception we would make from this general condemnation is that with reference to real estate loans from the actual savings deposits in national banks.

The present growth in the savings departments of those institutions gives some ground for a fear that the institutional support for real estate finance will not increase in proportion to the growth of the capital funds of the country.

However, it must not be overlooked that the housing and other real estate interests obtain but a small part of their loans from savings institutions and that our banking system should not be imperiled by requiring mortgage investments through institutions which, by reason of their small size or their special line of work, are not equipped to handle mortgage investments as trustees for their depositors.

It is difficult to discuss this question in view of the persistent neglect and even refusal of the Treasury Department to require national banks to segregate and report their savings deposits.

As to the need for exemption of the income from real estate mortgages, of revision of the taxation system does not restrict the issue of tax exempt securities," such action has been condemned in strongest possible terms by the American Bankers Association, the Investment Bankers Association, the National Tax Association, the recognized economists, and various other organizations and persons qualified to speak.

Not only has such a form of subsidy been shown to be fallacious from the viewpoint of borrowers, but it tends to defeat its own ends. Our program of war finance depends very largely for success upon the progressive system of income taxation, yet it will be defeated by mortgage exemption and thus increase the tax burden upon persons of small income through need of higher normal tax rates and the addition of consumption taxes. Those results would be hurried by the inevitable extension of exemptions to public utilities and other interests equally hurt by the Federal surtaxes.

But, aside from the above, it has not been shown that any increase in funds for real estate finance would lower the cost of habitations within the term of the present emergency to a point where wage earners can afford to invest.

The idea of tax exemption for profits from real estate operations which are reinvested in the construction of other homes appears to have been borrowed from the Merchant Marine act. It seems to be subject to all the objections which we have made above. All tax exemption schemes are vicious, undemocratic, and confer special privilege upon those most able to pay taxes.

The creation of a national instrumentality for rediscounting mortgages on dwellings would of necessity be accompanied by not only a national but a distinctly bureaucratic control of housing finance. Housing finance is essentially local in all of its characteristics. Its form varies according to the economic and social status of each community.

This is shown by the fact that the building and loan associations have assumed twenty or more forms as to plan of operation, and their actual local differences are almost as numerous as the associations themselves. In New York, where the mutual savings banks alone have over two billion dollars of deposits, of which half is invested in real estate security, the loan associations boast only about one hundred million dollars of assets.

In fact, the principal interest of the advocates of this plan appears to look solely to the subsidy of tax exemption from all taxes which the bill carries.

We are unable to concur with the committee that the Federal Home Loan Bank would be "a most desirable national facility and a most promising substitute for Governmental participating in the housing business." We are not looking for a substitute.

The committee advises that "all Federal thrift activities be consolidated under the postal savings branch of the Post Office Department" with "adequate" interest payable quarterly, and extra compensation to Postmasters to call forth "their energetic efforts in developing this important national facility."

Possibly we must read this in conjunction with the much discussed plan to have postal deposits invested in local real estate mortgages. This could not be more effective than any other scheme for Government loans to individuals. It would certainly lead to further steps into the field of private banking.

The committee also recommends the creation of "a Federal bureau which shall serve as a clearing house of the best knowledge and practices in construction work, to bring about greater uniformity in building codes, conservation in the use of lumber and other building materials; standardization of such parts of construction as may be standardized without interference with design; publication of fluctuations in wholesale prices, and publication of available quantities of supplies of building materials; publication of methods of city planning, as well as the sound methods of financing; all to the end that the best knowledge of the country may be collected and disseminated, so that private initiative may be encouraged and directed toward well-located, serviceable structures of good design, and at minimum cost."

Such of the above as relates to practicable and serviceable functions, we submit, is already in existence and far more effectively than could ever be expected of any Federal bureaucrat. Here, again, we must observe that local conditions are so variant as to make such a Governmental service of no utility which will be commensurate to its cost to taxpayers.

On the first part of the report, relating to the regulation of transportation and coal production, we would only observe that the situation requires a serious study with a view to developing public control and the avoidance of monopoly rather than any further tendency toward public ownership.

PROTECTING THE BEACHES.

Constructive measures to abate the nuisance of oil deposits on the bathing beaches is being taken by a committee of 100 composed of prominent people identified with the seashore resorts in New York and New Jersey.

For several seasons past oil deposits on the beaches have been on the increase and last Summer became so serious that bathing was difficult if not impossible on several days during the heated months.

Thousands of people have noticed what appears to be tar strewn on the bathing beaches by the action of the tide. Comparatively few people knew where this oil comes from. It is the residue pumped out of the bottom of tanks of oil-burning vessels and, being lighter than the water, floats and finally finds its way to shore. The story, which is a long one, may be summarized as follows:

Oil is pumped into tanks of vessels for fuel purposes. The pitching and tossing of the boats have the effect of separating the more solid portions of the oil from the lighter and they sink to the bottom of the tank. In a very short time a large accumulation of these solids forms.

Until very recently this residue was discharged into the waters of the harbor where the ship happened to be. This became such a nuisance and fire hazard that the Supervisors of Ports started to enforce the existing laws against the polution of harbors. Ship captains then ordered this discharge to be made at sea, keeping only a sufficient amount of oil to safely reach port, hence the present nuisance.

Three methods of stopping the nuisance have been suggested by the Board of Trade of Coney Island. First, by sending men down into the hull to remove the oil with sawdust in buckets. Second, by a vacuum system which would remove the residue into large tanks on barges, and, third, by the use of a separator which will separate the oil and water, making the former marketable.

In speaking of the oil nuisance, Joseph P. Day said last week:

"The oil deposits on our beaches are becoming a decided nuisance. The National Board of Fire Underwriters recently decided to make examinations of the principal ports along the Atlantic seaboard in relation to the fire hazard from oil deposits. The claim made is that the fire hazard is exceedingly great. Remedial legislation is now being prepared in several States.

"A short time ago it was decided to send broadcast wireless messages to sea captains, warning them that infringement of the laws would be prosecuted. These messages were sent at 8 in the morning, high noon and 6 o'clock in the evening. This started the unloading at sea.

"Means must be devised to make this oil residue marketable and then the trouble will be over. I believe steps are being taken in this direction and would not be surprised to hear of some practical device being invented in the near future."

LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Latest Figures Show a Big Increase in Membership.

The latest statistics show 7,788 local building and loan associations in the United States, known by various names, according to the annual report of Archibald W. McEwan, Secretary New York State and Metropolitan Leagues of Savings and Loan Associations.

The membership of these associations is 4,290,000, and assets have reached $2,126,620,000. The associations showed a 10 per cent. all around increase last year, and this year have increased in assets and membership at least 15 per cent.

There is a reason for this increase, and it is, according to Secretary McEwan, that thousands of persons have come to realize that these associations go further in solving the housing problem than any other agency in the United States that has stood the test of time, to say nothing of their being ideal thrift organizations.

In concluding his report Mr. McEwan says: "There are no other thrift and home-getting institutions which have the sanction of their State Governments that are so close to the common people—the man on the street, so to write—as these savings and loan societies. For example, take the thrift side. No other financial institution supervised by the State cares to bother with a man or woman who saves only $3 a month—yes, $1 a month has been received by many associations—and the $2 is welcomed because it shows a tendency to get under cover for the rainy day that comes to most persons during their lives.

"Then, too, every person who deposits money in one of these associations has a voice in the management and can find out where every dollar of the money is invested; the depositor or member gets 4½ or 5 per cent. for his savings; all the money received from savers is invested on small first mortgages on homes (the average mortgage in the metropolitan district is $3,700). No association can lend more than fifty miles from its office.

"These savings building loan associations are purely mutual, and have only two reasons for existence: Promotion of thrift and promotion of home ownership among persons of moderate means. Systematic saving is encouraged, and if a person saves only $5 each month (most persons can save this amount) he will have $1,000 in a little over twelve years with an association paying 5 per cent. dividends. This brings up the question: How can these associations pay 4½ and 5 per cent. dividends year after year with safety? The answer is that these associations as a rule are not open every business day unless they are large, and that considerable work is done without financial remuneration; the feeling pervades boards of management that it is constructive good citizenship."

BUILDING REPORTS.

December Figures Compare Favorably With November.

While the building permits issued at the leading commercial centres in the United States during the month of December were more than 50 per cent. below those of December, 1919, they were encouraging in that for the first time in several months they showed practically no loss from the previous month.

Permits granted at ninety-eight cities during the past month involved an estimated expenditure of $58,782,015, or 51.4 per cent. less than the $114,676,960 total of December, 1919. The figures for November, 1920, showed a decrease of 53 per cent. as compared with the corresponding month of the year previous.

Many cities, including New York, continued to show decreases as compared with the previous month and the same month a year ago, but several substantial gains were recorded, mostly in the Middle West and on the Pacific Coast.

The figures for New York City show a decrease in every borough as compared with those of the same month in 1919, and the total for last month represents only 39.1 per cent. of the December, 1919, total.

As compared with November the Bronx and Queens show good gains, while the other boroughs show similar decreases, indicating that much of the building at present is for residential purposes.

New York City Cuts Weed.

The Department of Parks of the City of New York is doing a splendid thing in the utilization of the dead trees in Central Park, says the American Forestry Magazine. "We have installed a portable drag saw," writes J. S. Kaplan, Forester of the Department, to the American Forestry Association, "which first bucks the tree up into logs, then a wood mill which saws the log into stove-wood length, and a splitting machine which splits these bolts into stove-wood size. The stove wood is distributed to the poor during the Winter. At times we were able to help out the Department of Education with fuel in various school buildings."

Commercial Leases.

The twelfth floor in the new fifteen-story Bankers Trust Building at Madison Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street has been leased by Snowden & McSweeney, Inc., now at 457 Fifth Avenue. The lease is for ten years. Albert B. Ashforth and Brady & Bowman were the brokers.

The Uneeda Pure Orange Drink Company has leased the Montrose property at the northeast corner of Lenox Avenue and 110th Street from the Investors Realty Corporation for a term of fifteen years.

Buyers at Montclair.

Mrs. Emma J. Beadleston has sold her residence at 386 Upper Mountain Avenue, Montclair, to M. J. Murphy of New York. It was held at $30,000. F. M. Crawley & Bros. were the brokers.

Arthur B. Russ has purchased at Montclair from William H. Speed the latter's residence in Princeton Place, fronting 100 feet. It was held at $17,500. The Simpson-Merritt Company acted as brokers.

Buys Sixth Avenue Property.

The five-story building at 41 West Thirty-seventh Street and the four-story building at 642 Sixth Avenue, both surrounding the northeast corner of these thoroughfares, have been purchased by S. May, the electricial, from George Andersen. Extensive alterations will be made. J. Arthur Fischer was the broker in the deal.

LEASE MAY CAUSE BUILDING DELAY

Main Section of the Twenty-three-Story Building Will Be Finished May 1.

A little difference of opinion regarding possession of the property at the immediate southwest corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-fifth Street is likely to lead to court proceedings, it was ascertained last week, to determine whether the Borden Building interests can obtain control of the plot next Spring for the completion of its twenty-three-story structure. The difficulty regarding the lease on this corner will not delay in any way the opening of the major portion of the big building, which is rapidly nearing completion, on a frontage of 168 feet on Forty-fifth Street, taking in the numbers from 14 to 22, inclusive, in addition to the parcel at 360 Madison Avenue, in the middle of the block. This main portion of the building will be ready for occupancy on May 1. The Borden Company will use ten floors, and judging from the number of inquiries for space the brokers, Brady & Bowman, fully expect that the greater part of the structure, if not all of it, will be entirely rented on the opening day.

The corner parcel, 352 Madison Avenue, fronting 75.5 feet by 21 feet on Forty-fifth Street, is owned by the Oceanic Investing Company, which took title last August, and has been leased for a long term to the Borden interests. The old residence there, altered for business, is occupied by the firm of A. Olivetti & Co., antique dealers. Mr. Olivotti had a five-year rental of the plot, divided into a three-year term with a two-year renewal, contingent upon a six months' cancellation clause. The three-year term expired on May 1 next, and recently Mr. Olivotti was ordered to vacate at that time. Mr. Olivotti claims that his cancellation clause allows him six months on the additional two years to move out. He said yesterday that he intended to stay until the expiration of that time, Dec. 1 next, and he has placed the matter in the hands of his lawyers in case ejectment proceedings are instituted on May 1.

The new headquarters of Cheney Bros. leased last week through Pease & Elliman the two lower floors and basement of the famous Waldo mansion at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Seventy-second Street. That building, which was never occupied from the time the Waldo family erected it several years ago, was purchased a few months ago by a syndicate of which Henry W. Healy, C. W. Hansen and W. L. Olcott are Directors, to be remodeled into small apartments. Mr. Olivotti expects to move into his new home before May 1, but will also continue to occupy his present Madison Avenue place for the greater part of the year. The question of his six months additional occupancy of the 352 Madison Avenue building, if it comes into the courts, will raise an interesting technical question regarding the rights of tenants under cancellation clauses and it will be watched with considerable interest.

The original intention of the Borden Company was to acquire all of the Forty-fifth Street frontage to Madison Avenue from No. 14 for the big structure, but all efforts to purchase the old house at 24 were unavailing. The plot has a frontage of thirty feet and is owned by the George F. Cornell estate and occupied by Mrs. Agnes Cornell. She has lived there for many years and expressed a determination to retain it as her home despite the fact that it will be flanked on either side by a towering commercial office building. The house at 24, adjoining the Madison Avenue corner, is owned by the Borden concern and will be added to the big building site as soon as possession is obtained of the Olivotti structure.

Construction of the main Borden Building on Forty-fifth Street has been very rapid, and when completed on May 1 it will be an important addition both from an architectural as well as a commercial standpoint to the many business structures recently finished and now under construction in the immediate neighborhood. Notwithstanding the irritating delay which may be occasioned from obtaining possession of the immediate corner, the entire edifice will be finished by the Spring or Summer of 1922.

The Borden Building is likely to be the first of the large office structures in that locality to be ready for tenants this season. Just below, occupying the greater part of the westerly Madison Avenue block front from Forty-third to Forty-fourth Street, the mammoth Madison Avenue Offices is rapidly rising to its height of more than twenty stories, and fast work is being done on the big Winchester-Ley building on the greater part of the Madison Avenue block front on the east side between Forty-second and Forty-third Streets, with large frontages on both of these streets. The new Strauss building, on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, covering the site of the lower half of the artistic Windsor Arcade, is also going up rapidly, and its façade indicates that it will take rank as a very pleasing specimen of architecture in that section of Fifth Avenue area. Fast work is also being done in altering the old Manhattan Hotel at Madison Avenue and Forty-second Street, extending through to Forty-third Street, for the Realtical City Corporation. These with other new structures within the Grand Central and Times Square districts will provide, before the end of the year, a large amount of additional office space for commercial interests, the demand for which, in these localities, has been much greater than the supply during the last two or three years.

THE CO-OPERATIVE APARTMENT HOUSE

The housing crisis in New York City, as well as throughout the entire country, has brought forward many suggestions for solving the problem.

One plan that has been strongly advocated by many prominent citizens and realty men that has the advantage of not only meeting all the demands but combining with it thrift, economy and the assurance of a permanent home is the co-operative apartment ownership plan which entirely eliminates the landlord bugaboo.

Much has been said for and against the plan which many people are of the opinion is an experiment.

Co-operative apartment ownership is not an experiment and is not new. Years ago the idea was put in practice abroad. In this country it has been reduced to a science in New York City, where millions of dollars' worth of co-operative buildings have been built during the last twelve or fifteen years that have not only been successful in every respect but have yielded a handsome profit to the joint owners. Under the co-operative plan the objects are first and foremost a permanent residence in which are embodied in every room the owner's individual ideas as to floor plan and treatment. These features, together with many other distinct advantages, make the high-class co-operative building far more desirable than the ordinary apartment house. Many New Yorkers who had the courage and foresight to invest their money in this class of homes a few years ago are not only living in large, luxurious apartments practically rent free, but when they desired to sell did so at handsome profits, in many cases double the initial cost.

At a recent meeting of realty men, the matter was discussed at length and it was the consensus of opinion that the co-operative plan was growing in favor daily and that in the course of a few years the majority of the better grades of structures in Manhattan would be built and operated on this plan.

At the present time two seventeen-story structures occupying two entire blocks fronts on Park Avenue and known as 290 and 300 Park Avenue, are in course of construction and are being sold on the co-operative plan through Douglas L. Elliman & Co.

The best evidence that they have the approval of the thrifty business man is shown by the fact that the majority of the apartments have been sold from the plans. No. 290 Park Avenue, which is being built by Fred T. Ley & Co., Inc., occupies the entire block bounded by Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth Streets, Park and Vanderbilt Avenues. The first floor of this seventeen-story structure is to contain besides public space, a dining room and kitchen. The second floor will contain fifty-eight servants' rooms and trunk storage checking rooms. The other fifteen floors are designed for six apartments to a floor in varying sizes. There will be four passenger and four service elevators. Four apartments per floor will have kitchens and pantries. The other two, being smaller apartments, will have no kitchens.

The servant problem is solved through the hourly service plan. A staff of maids and butlers under the direction of a competent housekeeper is subject to instant call for any purpose and are paid for service by the hour.

A remarkable feature of 290 Park Avenue that eliminates endless financial troubles is that there is no mortgage on the building. The building is erected free and clear on land leased from the New York Central Railroad for a total term of sixty-three years beginning April 1, 1920, represented by three periods of twenty-one years each, subject, however, to the right of the railroad to buy the building at the end of the second period. The rent to be $45,000 a year during estimated period of construction from April 1, 1920, to Oct. 1, 1920, and $90,000 a year net for the balance of the first period of twenty-one years and at the same rate thereafter unless increased as the result of a reappraisal.

At the present time more than three-fourths of the apartments in 290 Park Avenue have been sold. Among the permanent buyers being Charles T. Baisley, C. L. Baugher, J. G. Bergquist, Holbrook Blinn, Edward N. Brown, Mrs. Stephen Brown, Mrs. James A. Burden, Mrs. Elisabeth H. Butler of Sandusky, Ohio, Percy M. Chandler, Mrs. Charles H. Clark, Henry F. du Pont of Winterthur, Del., Fred Edey, Edward H. Evans of Bennington, Vt., William A. Fairburn, Mrs. D. D. Forbes, William [illegible] Gray, Mrs. Charles C. Griswold, Mrs. Lawrence Jacob, Fred T. Ley, Louis K. Liggett of Boston, Mass., Grace McDonald, Mrs. Esmeralda E. Marcus, Paul McEwen, C. W. Nichols, W. H. Nichols Jr., W. H. Nichols Sr., Mrs. Robert W. Paterson, Geraldyn L. Redmond, Dr. Dudley D. Roberts, Mrs. [illegible] E. Robinson of Greenwich, Conn., Philip Ruxton, H. N. Slater, Edwin W. Sparks, Sanford H. Steele, John T. Terry, Frank S. Voss, James H. Wainwright, Whitney Warren, Mrs. George E. Jackson.

The seventeen-story apartment occupying the Park Avenue block between Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Streets, also a co-operative structure, is being erected by the Thompson-Starrett Company, and is over 50 per cent. rented from [illegible] leases, on ten-year leases. Among the many prominent buyers of apartments in this house are T. Coleman du Pont, George L. Duval, F. C. B. Page, [illegible] Clark, L. J. Horowitz, Thomas [illegible], B. B. McAlpin, W. D. N. Pell, M. Boomer, R. F. Boyd, Louis [illegible], Percy Rockefeller, L. L. Dunham and F. Coit Johnson.

DISCUSS SEWER PLANS.

Proper Equipment Essential to Growing Queens Borough.

The Board of Directors of the Queensboro Chamber of Commerce at its December meeting, approved the report of the Committee on Sewers of which F. Ray Howe is Chairman, relative to a plan of financing the cost of an efficient sewage disposal system for New York City. The following committee to co-operate with the Merchants Association of New York, the New York Chamber of Commerce, the New York Board of Trade and Transportation and other civic and public bodies to promote the passage of the necessary legislation was appointed: E. A. MacDougall, F. Ray Howe, Ray Palmer, C. G. Meyer, C. G. M. Thomas and Robert W. Higbie.

In his report, Mr. Howe made the following recommendations:

1. The immediate construction of large trunk sewers and disposal plants in the Borough of Queens is a matter of utmost importance, and no single factor will do more to retard its growth than a failure to provide these facilities.

2. The City of New York has so little margin for the purpose of borrowing that it is doubtful if much work in the line of sewer construction can be done under the assessment plan, as the city is compelled to finance by revenue bonds pending the collection of the assessment, and these bonds are deducted from the available borrowing power of the city under the debt limit.

3. There is no logical reason why the construction of sewers should not be handled in the same manner as the supply of water.

4. From the data submitted it appears that a moderate increase in the water rates would enable the payment of interest and amortisation on a very large sum expended for sewers.

DEMAND FOR THE SMALL, MODERATE-PRICE, PRIVATE DWELLING BEING MET IN BOROUGH OF QUEENS

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and the Title Guarantee and Trust Company Make Big Loans to Finance the Erection of Hundreds of Houses Within Easy Reach of the Heart of Manhattan

The purchase last week by Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt of a house in the new east side colony in Sutton Place, which is a continuation of Avenue A, between Fifty-seventh Street and Fifty-ninth Street, again calls attention to what is probably the most remarkable home-buying movement in the history of New York City real estate.

Only a few years ago Lexington Avenue was considered the dead line for the better class of east side homes; and real estate operators were amazed, right after the close of the war, at the sudden popularity of the section lying between Lexington Avenue and Third Avenue north of Fifty-ninth Street where, within a year, hundreds of houses were bought for occupancy largely by those who as a result of the housing shortage were crowded out of the section between Fifth Avenue and Lexington Avenue.

The crossing of Lexington Avenue seemed like a logical thing, and after it happened, every one wondered why it had not occurred before; but the jump across Third Avenue, Second Avenue and First Avenue to Avenue A is an entirely different proposition, and one which opens up possibilities along the same lines for the entire east side of Manhattan. It also raises the question as to why the high open land directly across the East River is not also particularly suitable for those who want to own their own homes in a close-in, restricted, moderate-priced neighborhood, in preference to going to the suburbs or to any of the outlying sections.

The selection of Avenue A for the homes of the Vanderbilts, Olins, Webbs, Marburys and others also calls attention to, the fact that a high-class neighborhood can be created by a colony of the right kind of people in any locality, regardless of the surroundings, for the location of Sutton Place can hardly be called ideal, as it lies almost directly under the shadow of the Queensboro Bridge, towering more than a hundred feet above it, while the two 200-foot chimneys of a factory immediately adjoin it on Fifty-ninth Street, large coal pockets border it on the south and the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island is directly east and only a few hundred feet away.

The twenty or thirty houses which comprise Sutton Place will, however, when occupied by the class of people who are buying them, create a neighborhood of themselves, independent of the surroundings, and other colonies of this kind [illegible] spring up between Forty-[illegible] and Ninety-second Street, which, from industrial and racial reasons, seem to mark the limits of the possibilities in this direction.

Directly across the East River from the upper east side of Manhattan and within five minutes' ride of the Queensboro Bridge by motor and subway, large tracts of high open land, protected by the zoning law from factory encroachment, are available for colony development, and two of the most attractive of these, Norwood Gardens and Arleigh, are now being improved by the Rickert-Brown Realty Company.

Norwood Gardens, the company's latest operation, is planned along different lines from any of the company's previous developments, and is designed to meet, at moderate prices, the requirement of the same discriminating class of buyers that have invaded the east side of Manhattan; that is, those who want a home of their own in a close-in restricted neighborhood having an atmosphere of its own by reason of the artistic design of the houses and the select character of their owners.

Norwood Gardens comprises about 200 lots, lying on the high land between Broadway and Grand Avenue and Sixth and Ninth Avenues, directly across the East River from East Eighty-sixth Street, Manhattan. It is within a few minutes' walk of the Broadway and Grand Avenue stations on the Ditmars Avenue branch of the Queensboro subway, giving it a 5 cent fare to all parts of the city.

Artistic individuality is the keynote of every house in Norwood. Nothing commonplace can be found. The front elevations were designed by Walter Hopkins of Warren & Wetmore, whose underlying thought has been to get away from the conventional city house and give to each the atmosphere of an individual home. The combination of tapestry brick and white stucco give a color effect that is accentuated by the iron balconies, the lattice work, the green blinds, the flower boxes in the windows and the flower pots on the roof.

The cornices, of tile on some of the houses and of brick on others, make a pleasing contrast, all of which, together with the cast plaques, reproductions of originals by well-known artists, create what may well be called "The House Beautiful."

The terraces, enclosed by hedges and separated from each other by evergreens and flowering shrubs, have given an opportunity for landscaping not possible in front of city houses as usually designed. In contrast with the usual city plan, the houses are set back twenty-five feet from the street, giving a clear space of 110 feet between the houses on the opposite sides, creating a park-like effect that virtually brings the atmosphere of the country into the city.

The interior plans are by Philip Resnyk, whose object has been to bring into the houses the fresh air, sunlight and easy housekeeping features of a home in the country. They contain eight rooms, two private baths and a two-car garage, with a private driveway in the rear.

The improvement of Norwood Gardens began about six month ago with the construction of thirty houses, the first of these now being ready for occupancy.

A few blocks north of Norwood Gardens and adjoining the new sixty acre waterfront park, is located Arleigh, the largest one-family housing operation in the Borough of Queens where, within one year, eighty houses have been completed and fourteen more will be ready for early Spring occupancy, at a total cost for construction alone of nearly a million dollars.

Sixty-two houses have already been sold and occupied, most of them as soon as completed. The property, which comprises more than one thousand city lots, is only one block from the Ditmars Avenue station on the Queensboro branch of the Dual Subway System, and only fifteen minutes from the Grand Central Subway Station.

Norwood Gardens and Arleigh have been made possible through the loan policies of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and the Title Guarantee & Trust Company, which have, within the last year, granted loans to the Rickert-Brown Realty Company amounting to more than two and a half million dollars for the development of its properties—the Metropolitan loans amounting to $2,150,000 and the Title Guarantee and Trust Company loans amounting to $368,000.

These loans have enabled the company to buy building materials in enormous quantities for cash, thereby entirely eliminating the profiteer, and to build houses at a cost that would be absolutely impossible otherwise. As all the loans of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company run for fifteen years, it eliminates the risk to the owners of securing new loans every three years, the time real estate mortgages usually run.

THE BRICK MARKET.

Manufacturers Selling Stock at Cost, and Demand Poor.

"The buyers' strike, aided and abetted by general financial conditions and old Jack Frost, has the brick giant rather flat on his back. His usually strong right hand, which lies over the New England States, shows some sign of life, and his toes, which are sunning in balmy California, are wiggling quite vigorously. It is thus evidenced that the old boy is not dead, but sleeping, and the activity around his pedal extremities indicates pleasant dreams of great vigor and action upon awakening.

"We can imagine that Old Brick has a vision of the millions of homes and thousands of factories, stores, schools and hospitals, so much needed, and just a little way off, and in the background, through vanishing forests, he sees the rising sun of his industry, and in the rays spreading over all the land he reads the promise of a wider appreciation of his great strength, utility and durability and a greater need in this country of that enduring service Brick has rendered to all ages, from the very beginning of civilization.

"This is another way of saying that the reports from 133 of our 350 members, received during the past month, show that while there is little demand for brick nobody is 'blue.' In the face of a big slump in building, the industry is sitting rather pretty, doling out its accumulated stock at cost or a little better, and hopeful for the future.

"There is a slight recession in price, averaging about $2 per thousand in the localities where new coal prices have taken effect. In all other sections the price at plant remains the same as on Nov. 1. Where there are exceptions, it means that some unusually high or unusually low quotation came in that was not recorded a month ago.

"The proportion of orders to stock has dropped to 41.5 per cent. from 53.5 per cent. on Nov. 1. Los Angeles continues to be the brightest spot, reporting 3,500,000 on hand, with orders for 15,500,000. The holding of prices under these conditions indicates that the manufacturers expect to readjust prices only after the readjusted manufacturing cost becomes a known factor. More than 40 per cent. of firms reporting see signs of downward trend in costs, while 51 per cent. report stationary costs up to date.

"Good labor supply is reported by 92 per cent., and of these 70 per cent. say labor efficiency is improved. The excess of 175,000,000 brick on hand over orders would not be serious if there was any demand, but this surplus will be increased rather than diminished during the next three months, as the small proportion of plants operating produce more than current consumption.

"Facts gathered do not suggest a sharp decline in price for 1921. It must be considered that the war years closed the brick plants and disorganized the business. They could not resume to meet demands of late 1919 upon an economical basis. There was no excess profit in the high price of 1920. Prices will go down from 1920 schedules only as cost of manufacture is lowered. Generally there is no water to be squeezed out."

THE SENATE REPORT ON HOUSING

By W. A. SADD,

President of the Savings Bank Division, American Bankers Association, and President Chautauqua Savings Bank.

The report of the United States Senate Select Committee on Reconstruction and Production, presented by Senator Calder on Dec. 14, 1920, is disappointing, although the country has learned to expect very little from such so-called investigations. The report fails to give any facts of value to either housing or construction interests, and even the conclusions appear to be based on such superficial reasons as to be worthless or even dangerous.

Turning first to the remarks on finance and taxation, the committee appears to favor (1) investment of time deposits of national banks in part in real estate mortgages, (2) exemption for a limited period of interest from real estate mortgages, (3) exemption from the income tax of profits from home building to the extent that they are reinvested in the construction of other homes, (4) bond issues by a Federal instrumentality for rediscounting mortgages on dwellings by building and loan associations and other institutions, and (5) development of a national savings institution in the United States Post Office Department.

Careful consideration of these various proposals seems to indicate that they are not only unsound in theory but actually unnecessary so far as they are not absolutely impractical. The only exception we would make from this general condemnation is that with reference to real estate loans from the actual savings deposits in national banks.

The present growth in the savings departments of those institutions gives some ground for a fear that the institutional support for real estate finance will not increase in proportion to the growth of the capital funds of the country.

However, it must not be overlooked that the housing and other real estate interests obtain but a small part of their loans from savings institutions and that their banking system should not be imperiled by requiring mortgage investments through institutions which, by reason of their small size or their special line of work, are not equipped to handle mortgage investments as trustees for their depositors.

It is difficult to discuss this question in view of the persistent neglect and even refusal of the Treasury Department to require national banks to segregate and report their savings deposits.

As to the need for exemption of the income from real estate mortgages, if revision of the taxation system does not restrict the issue of tax exempt securities, such action has been condemned in strongest possible terms by the American Bankers Association, the Investment Bankers Association, the National Tax Association, the recognized economists, and various other organizations and persons qualified to speak.

Not only has such a form of subsidy been shown to be fallacious from the viewpoint of borrowers, but it tends to defeat its own ends. Our program of war finance depends very largely for success upon the progressive system of income taxation, yet it will be defeated by mortgage exemption and thus increase the tax burden upon persons of small income through need of higher normal tax rates and the addition of consumption taxes. Those results would be hurried by the inevitable extension of exemptions to public utilities and other interests equally hurt by the Federal furnisher.

But, aside from the above, it has not been shown that any increase in funds for real estate finance would lower the cost of habilitations within the term of the present emergency to a point where wage earners can afford to invest.

The idea of tax exemption for profits from real estate operations which are reinvested in the construction of other homes appears to have been borrowed from the Merchant Marine act. It seems to be subject to all the objections which will have made above. All tax exemption schemes are vicious, undemocratic, and confer special privilege upon those most able to pay taxes.

The creation of a national instrumentality for rediscounting mortgages on dwellings would of necessity be accompanied by not only a national but a distinctly bureaucratic control of housing finance. Housing finance is essentially local in all of its characteristics. Its form varies according to the economic and social status of each community.

This is shown by the fact that the building and loan associations have assumed twenty or more forms as to plan of operation, and their actual local differences are almost as numerous as the associations themselves. In New York, where the mutual savings banks alone have over two billion dollars of deposits, of which half is invested in real estate security, the loan associations boast only about one hundred million dollars of assets.

In fact, the principal interest of the advocates of this plan appears to look solely to the subsidy of tax exemption from all taxes which the bill carries.

We are unable to concur with the committee that the Federal Home Loan Bank would be a most desirable additional facility and a most promising substitute for Governmental participating in the housing business." We are not looking for a substitute.

The committee advises that "all Federal thrift activities be consolidated under the postal savings branch of the Post Office Department" with "adequate" interest payable quarterly, and extra compensation to Postmasters to call forth "their energetic efforts in developing this important national facility."

Possibly we must read this in conjunction with the much discussed plan to have postal deposits invested in local real estate mortgages. This could not be more effective than any other scheme for Government loans to individuals. It would certainly lead to further steps into the field of private banking.

The committee also recommends the creation of "a Federal bureau which shall serve as a clearing house of the best knowledge and practices in construction work, to bring about greater uniformity in building codes, conservation in the use of lumber and other building materials; standardization of such parts of construction as may be standardized without interference with design; publication of fluctuations in wholesale prices, and publication of available quantities of supplies of building materials; publication of methods of city planning, as well as the sound methods of financing; all to the end that the best knowledge of the country may be collected and disseminated, so that private initiative may be encouraged and directed toward well-located, serviceable structures of good design, and at minimum cost."

Such of the above as relates to practicable and serviceable functions, we submit, is already in existence and far more effectively than could ever be expected of any Federal bureaucratic bureau. Again, we must reserve that local conditions are so variant as to make such a Governmental service of no utility which will be commensurate to its cost to taxpayers.

On the first part of the report, relating to the regulation of transportation and coal production, we would only observe that the situation requires a serious study with a view to developing public control and the avoidance of monopoly rather than any further tendency toward public ownership.

PROTECTING THE BEACHES.

Constructive measures to abate the nuisance of oil deposits on the bathing beaches is being taken by a committee of 100 composed of prominent people identified with the seashore resorts in New York and New Jersey.

For several seasons past oil deposits on the beaches have been on the increase and last Summer became so serious that bathing was difficult if not impossible on several days during the heated months.

Thousands of people have noticed what appears to be tar strewn on the bathing beaches by the action of the tide. Comparatively few people know where this oil comes from. It is the residue pumped out of the bottom of tanks of oil-burning vessels and, being lighter than the water, floats and finally finds its way to shore. The story, which is a long one, may be summarized as follows:

Oil is pumped into tanks of vessels for fuel purposes. The pitching and tossing of the boats have the effect of separating the more solid portions of the oil from the lighter and they sink to the bottom of the tank. In a very short time a large accumulation of these solids forms.

Until very recently this residue was discharged into the waters of the harbor where the ship happened to be. This became such a nuisance and fire hazard that the Supervisors of Ports started to enforce the existing laws against the polution of harbors. Ship captains then ordered this discharge to be made at sea, keeping only a sufficient amount of oil to safely reach port, hence the present nuisance.

Three methods of stopping the nuisance have been suggested by the Board of Trade of Coney Island. First, by sending men down into the hull to remove the oil with sawdust in buckets. Second, by a vacuum system which would remove the residue into large tanks on barges, and, third, by the use of a separator which will separate the oil and water, making the former marketable.

In speaking of the oil nuisance, Joseph P. Day said last week:

"The oil deposits on our beaches are becoming a decided nuisance. The National Board of Fire Underwriters recently decided to make examinations of the principal ports along the Atlantic seaboard in relation to the fire hazard from oil deposits. The claim made is that the fire hazard is exceedingly great. Remedial legislation is now being prepared in several States.

"A short time ago it was decided to send broadcast wireless messages to sea captains, warning them that infringement of the laws would be prosecuted. These messages were sent at 8 in the morning, high noon and 6 o'clock in the evening. This started the unloading at sea.

"Means must be devised to make this oil residue marketable and then the trouble will be over. I believe steps are being taken in this direction and would not be surprised to hear of some practical device being invented in the near future."

Brooklyn Realty Directors.

The Directors of the Brooklyn Real Estate Board have elected as additional Directors Edward F. Maynard, George W. Gair, Benjamin J. Nanus, Henry J. Davenport and William B. Greenman.

LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Latest Figures Show a Big Increase in Membership.

The latest statistics show 7,788 local building and loan associations in the United States, known by various names, according to the annual report of Archibald W. McEwan, Secretary New York State and Metropolitan Leagues of Savings and Loan Associations.

The membership of these associations is 4,280,000, and assets have reached $2,126,620,000. The associations showed a 19 per cent. all around increase last year, and this year have increased in assets and membership at least 15 per cent.

There is a reason for this increase, and it is, according to Secretary McEwan, that thousands of persons have come to realise that these associations go further in solving the housing problem than any other agency in the United States that has stood the test of time, to say nothing of their being ideal thrift organizations.

In concluding his report Mr. McEwan says: "There are no other thrift and home-getting institutions which have the sanction of their State Governments that are so close to the common people—the man on the street, so to write—as these savings and loan societies. For example, take the thrift side. No other financial institution supervised by the State cares to bother with a man or woman who saves only $2 a month—yes, $1 a month has been received by many associations—and the $2 is welcomed because it shows a tendency to get under cover for the rainy day that comes to most persons during their lives.

"Then, too, every person who deposits money in one of these associations has a voice in the management and can find out where every dollar of the money is invested; the depositor or member gets 4½ or 5 per cent. for his savings; all the money received from savers is invested on small first mortgages on homes (the average mortgage in the metropolitan district is $8,700). No association can lend more than fifty miles from its office.

"These savings building loan associations are purely mutual, and have only two reasons for existence: Promotion of thrift and promotion of home ownership among persons of moderate means. Systematic saving is encouraged, and if a person saves only $5 each month (most persons can save this amount) he will have $1,000 in a little over twelve years with an association paying 5 per cent. dividends. This brings up the question: How can these associations pay 4½ and 5 per cent. dividends year after year with safety? The answer is that these associations as a rule are not open every business day unless they are large, and that considerable work is done without financial remuneration; the feeling pervades boards of management that it is constructive good citizenship."

BUILDING REPORTS.

December Figures Compare Favorably With November.

While the building permits issued at the leading commercial centres in the United States during the month of December were more than 50 per cent. below those of December, 1919, they were encouraging in that for the first time in several months they showed practically no loss from the previous month.

Permits granted at ninety-eight cities during the past month involved an estimated expenditure of $88,782,015, or 51.4 per cent. less than the $114,676,390 total of December, 1919. The figures for November, 1920, showed a decrease of 52 per cent. as compared with the corresponding month of the year previous.

Many cities, including New York, continued to show decreases as compared with the previous month and the same month a year ago, but several substantial gains were recorded, mostly in the Middle West and on the Pacific Coast.

The figures for New York City show a decrease in every borough as compared with those of the same month in 1919, and the total for last month represents only 39.1 per cent. of the December, 1919, total.

As compared with November the Bronx and Queens show good gains, while the other boroughs show similar decreases, indicating that much of the building at present is for residential purposes.

New York City Cuts Wood.

The Department of Parks of the City of New York is doing a splendid thing in the utilization of the dead trees in Central Park, says the American Forestry Magazine. "We have installed a portable drag saw," writes J. S. Kaplan, Forester of the Department, to the American Forestry Association, "which first bucks the tree up into logs, then a wood mill which saws the log into stove-wood length, and a splitting machine which splits these bolts into stove-wood size. The stove wood is distributed to the poor during the Winter. At times we were able to help out the Department of Education with fuel in various school buildings."

Commercial Leases.

The twelfth floor in the new fifteen-story Bankers Trust Building at Madison Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street has been leased by Snowden & McSweeney, Inc., now at 487 Fifth Avenue. The lease is for ten years. Albert B. Ashforth and Brady & Bowman were the brokers.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. has leased to the Fukushima Company the store at 434 Madison Avenue.

The Uneeda Pure Orange Drink Company has leased the Montrose property at the northeast corner of Lenox Avenue and 110th Street from the Investors Realty Corporation for a term of fifteen years.

Buyers at Montclair.

Mrs. Emma J. Beadleston has sold her residence at 300 Upper Mountain Avenue, Montclair, to M. J. Murphy of New York. It was held at $30,000. F. M. Crawley & Bros. were the brokers.

Arthur E. Russ has purchased at Montclair from William H. Smead the latter's residence in Princeton Place, fronting 100 feet. It was held at $17,500. The Simpson-Marriott Company acted as brokers.

Buys Sixth Avenue Property.

The five-story building at 41 West Thirty-seventh Street and the four-story building at 642 Sixth Avenue, both surrounding the northeast corner of those thoroughfares, have been purchased by S. May, the electrician, from George Anderson. Extensive alterations will be made. J. Arthur Fischer was the broker in the deal.

LEASE MAY CAUSE BUILDING DELAY

Main Section of the Twenty-three-Story Building Will Be Finished May 1.

A little difference of opinion regarding possession of the property at the immediate southwest corner of Madison Avenue and Forty-fifth Street is likely to lead to court proceedings, it was ascertained last week, to determine whether the Borden Building interests can obtain control of the plot next Spring for the completion of its twenty-three-story structure. The difficulty regarding the lease on this corner will not delay in any way the opening of the major portion of the big building, which is rapidly nearing completion, on a frontage of 102 feet on Forty-fifth Street, taking in the numbers from 14 to 22, inclusive, in addition to the parcel at 350 Madison Avenue, in the middle of the block. The main portion of the building will be ready for occupancy on May 1. The Borden Company will use ten floors, and judging from the number of inquiries for space the brokers, Brady & Bowman, fully expect that the greater part of the structure, if not all of it, will be entirely rented on the opening day.

The corner parcel, 352 Madison Avenue, fronting 75.5 feet by 21 feet on Forty-fifth Street, is owned by the Oceanic Investing Company, which took title last August, and has been leased for a long term to the Borden interests. The old residence there, altered for business, is occupied by the firm of A. Olivetti & Co., antique dealers. Mr. Olivetti had a five-year rental of the plot, divided into a three-year term with a two-year renewal, contingent upon a six months' cancellation clause. The three-year term expired on May 1 next, and recently Mr. Olivetti was ordered to vacate at that time. Mr. Olivetti claims that his cancellation clause allows him six months on the additional two years to move out. He said yesterday that he intended to stay until the expiration of that time, Dec. 1 next, and he has placed the matter in the hands of his lawyers in case abatement proceedings are instituted on May 1.

The new headquarters M. Olivetti leased last week through Pease & Elliman the two lower floors and basement of the famous Waldo mansion at the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Seventy-second Street. That building, which was never occupied from the time the Waldo family erected it several years ago, was purchased a few months ago by a syndicate of which Henry W. Healy, C. W. Hansen and W. L. Olcott are Directors, to be remodeled into small apartments. Mr. Olivetti expects to move into his new home before May 1, but will also continue to occupy his present Madison Avenue place for the greater part of the year. The question of his six months additional occupancy of the 352 Madison Avenue building, if it comes into the courts, will raise an interesting technical question regarding the rights of tenants under cancellation clauses and it will be watched with considerable interest.

The original intention of the Borden Company was to acquire all of the Forty-fifth Street frontage to Madison Avenue from No. 14 for the big structure, but all efforts to purchase the old house at 24 were unavailing. The plot has a frontage of thirty feet and is owned by the George F. Cornell estate and occupied by Mrs. Agnes Cornell. She has lived there for many years and expressed a determination to retain it as her home despite the fact that it will be flanked on either side by a towering commercial office building. The house at 24, adjoining the Madison Avenue corner, is owned by the Borden concern and will be added to the big building site as soon as possession is obtained of the Olivetti structure.

Construction of the main Borden Building on Forty-fifth Street has been very rapid, and when completed on May 1 it will be an important addition both from an architectural as well as a commercial standpoint to the many business structures recently finished and now under construction in the immediate neighborhood. Notwithstanding the irritating delay which may be occasioned from obtaining possession of the immediate corner, the entire office will be finished by the Spring or Summer of 1922.

The Borden Building is likely to be the first of the large office structures in that locality to be ready for tenants this season. Just below, occupying the greater part of the westerly Madison Avenue block front from Forty-third to Forty-fourth Street, the mammoth Manufacturers' Association Office is rapidly rising to its height of more than twenty stories and fast work is being done on the big Winchester-Ley building on the greater part of the Madison Avenue block front on the east side between Forty-second and Forty-third Streets, with large frontages on both of these streets. The new Straus building, on the northeast corner of 370th Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, covering the site of the larger part of the artistic Windsor Arcade, is also going up rapidly, and its facade indicates that it will take rank as a very pleasing specimen of architecture in this choice Fifth Avenue area. Fine work is also being done in altering the old Manhattan House at Madison Avenue and Forty-second Street, extending through to Forty-third Street, for the Metropolitan City Corporation. These with other new structures within the Grand Central and Times Square districts will provide, before the end of the year, a large amount of additional office space for commercial interests, the demand for which, in many localities, has been much greater than the supply during the last two or three years.

'Twas the time after New Year's, and all through the town
I searched for apartments—up streets and down,
Until I came to a Hundred and Third
And got me a home—I'll say it's a bird!
With gas and electric to light up the dark;
There's one left, ole scout, so come, have a look!

Proposed New Apartment House

It is proposed to construct a modern nine story building on a desirable plot of ground, conveniently located to every transportation facility.

There will be 61 apartments of from 3 to 7 rooms each, containing every modern convenience; kitchens, pantries, bathrooms, foyer halls, separate servants' rooms, electric light, refrigeration, etc.

This proposition is to be undertaken on a "truly co-operative" plan for the benefit of subscribers and not for the profit of Real Estate operators.

Rentals will average about 60% of current rates.

The individual investment will be nominal and will represent the following features: Safety of investment, satisfactory income return, housing accommodations on substantially pre-war rates and a reasonable opportunity for a substantial profit on the original investment.

Interested parties are invited to write or call for full particulars—a personal call solicited.

SALESWOMEN. BUSINESS WOMEN.

How many women are earning $10,000 a year? Not many. How many men are earning $10,000 a year? Thousands.

There are many women in this great metropolis and nearby towns that are capable of big things and who have the ability to earn just as much as the men, and they are the kind we are looking for.

If you have made a success in the business world, have ever occupied an important secretarial position, have acted as executive officer for an up and going women's club, or have specialized in any of the branches of the business world, this institution has an opening for you whereby your commissions will run from $5,000 to $10,000 a year, practically from the start. This house makes no sex discrimination on its payroll, and offers you an equal opportunity for promotion to an executive position of trust that pays much more than $10,000 a year.

We are a large, reputable concern, and have a gigantic expansion plan well under way. We furnish a financial service of merit for which every person is a prospect. The market for our product is universal.

BABY DEATH RATE IN CITY INCREASES

Higher Mortality in 1920 Partly Due to Bad Housing, Says Copeland.

BAROMETER FOR PEOPLE

Bureau of Child Hygiene to Make Greater Efforts in Educating the Public.

An increase in infant mortality since Jan. 1, 1920 is shown by a report submitted yesterday by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the Health Department to Health Commissioner Copeland. Since Jan. 1, 86 infants under one year of age died out of every 1,000 in New York City, as compared with 83 deaths per 1,000 in this age group during the corresponding period of 1919.

"There is no better barometer of the health conditions of a community," said the Commissioner, "than infant mortality. We are disappointed with the increase this year. Economic conditions and bad housing facilities are responsible for many of the deaths. The fact that infant mortality is on the rise makes it absolutely necessary to stress the work of the Bureau of Child Hygiene next year."

Dr. Copeland pointed out that the bureau was charged with safeguarding the health of children from the pre-natal period until school entrance. This obligation, he said, was discharged in the main through the baby health stations operated by the Health Department. While primarily for the care of babies under 2 years of age, other important activities have developed. The more important functions of the bureau are: First, inspection and supervision of expectant mothers, pre-natal care; second, supervision of the case and feeding of babies under 2 years of age; third, district or home visiting by a corps of field nurses throughout the year and particularly during the hot term; fourth, physical examination of children of the pre-school age, 2 to 6 years, together with follow-up visits to the home for giving advice and instruction as to physical defects found; fifth, centres for other departmental as well as local social service activities and for the co-operation of all agencies in the city interested in child welfare.

Dr. Copeland said that a point had been reached where it appeared that the number of infant deaths from congenital diseases was so great that it controlled in large measure the curve of mortality. Congenital diseases, he said, bore no relation to errors in infant hygiene and dietetics, but were dependent, within certain limits, upon the condition of the mother before, at or shortly after birth of the child.

Dr. Copeland believes that the educational propaganda instituted by the Bureau of Child Hygiene is bearing fruit. The education given the public, he says, is cumulative. The public has come to learn the lesson of "keep the baby well." The mother, he says, has learned that it costs less to prevent illness than to cure it, and the public has been taught that healthy babies are an asset, unhealthy babies a liability.

The Commissioner says that the influence of the baby health stations has shown itself in the improved general condition of the children on admission to school, greater personal hygiene and cleanliness, better and more intelligent response of parents to instruction and advice, an increased confidence in the nurse as a friendly visitor, a better knowledge on how to give "first aid" in illness and an improved regularity in attendance.

DIDN'T LET WOMEN SPEND DAY IN JAIL

Portuguese Government Declined Their Offer to Replace Political Prisoners for Christmas.

LISBON, Dec. 25 (Associated Press).—The Government today informed a deputation of Portuguese women that it could not legally consent to grant the women's appeal to pass Christmas Day in the jails as hostages for political prisoners. The reason given was that such action would be illegal, Parliament being closed and unable to discuss the question. The reply expressed admiration for the women's spirit of self-sacrifice.

The Minister of the Interior last Wednesday received Dona Branca de Gonta, a prominent member of the Society of Poets, who, some time ago, addressed an appeal to the women of Portugal to aid her in providing a happy Christmas for political prisoners. She was accompanied at the time by 100 other women. The Minister then expressed the view that acquiescence in the petition would be illegal, but that the question would be placed before the Ministerial Council for decision.

$95,000 Harlem Purchase.

The Bracken Furniture Company has purchased for future occupancy a former Russell Sage holding, the two four-story buildings with stores and apartments at 45 and 47 West 125th Street, on a plot 40 by 100, located between Fifth and Madison Avenues. The deal was arranged by Goodwin & Goodwin, who sold the property for Louis Frankel and others who had been holding it at $95,000. The buyers, upon termination of present leases, will reconstruct the building into a store with lofts for their own occupancy. For the present and during the building changes they will occupy the adjoining store and basement in Nos. 49-51, which they have leased through the same brokers from Feb. 1.

THREE BINDINGS:
FULL MOROCCO, THREE-QUARTER, SPECIAL BUCKRAM

1000 Etchings in Roto. Maps.
1000 Cartoons on International Subjects. Charts.
Historic Portraits. Historical Episodes.

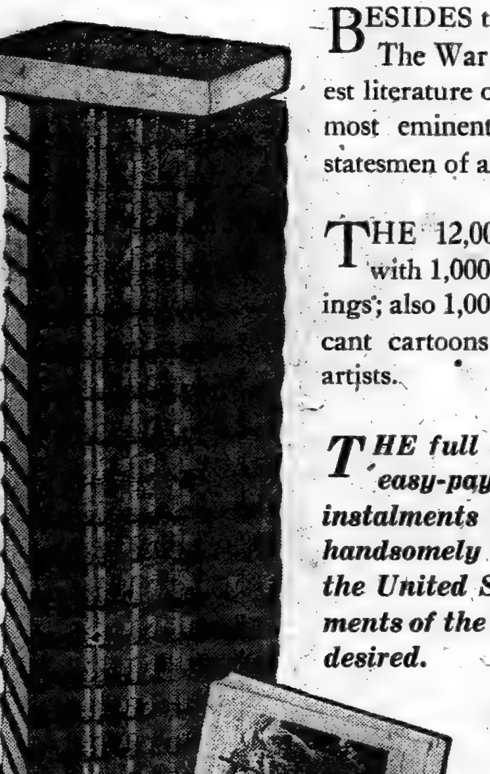
THE history of the war as presented in these volumes differs from ordinary histories in the fact that the history is not the individual work of any one writer or any particular group of writers. The history is narrated by the men who performed the deeds and made the record.

THE most conspicuous feature of the set is the presentation in textual form of all the essential reports, documents and official utterances usually found in the appendices of ordinary histories in type so small as to be almost illegible.

EACH volume is separately indexed; the 20th Volume contains a CUMULATIVE INDEX; also a digest and gazetteer of noteworthy names and places mentioned in the 20 volumes.



BESIDES the history of actual events, The War Volumes embody the richest literature of the war, produced by the most eminent scholars, publicists and statesmen of all the countries involved.

THE 12,000 pages are embellished with 1,000 pages of rotogravure etchings; also 1,000 pages of the most significant cartoons by the world's cleverest artists.

THE full set will be sold on the easy-payment plan in monthly instalments and will be delivered, handsomely boxed, to any point in the United States, with the compliments of the donor, at such time as is desired.

I regard The New York Times War Volumes as of distinct permanent value. They are not only unique in their way, but of exceptional worth.

BRIAND FORMS CABINET TO WORK WITH THE ALLIES

New Premier of France Will Submit List of Ministers to Chamber Tomorrow.

CALLS IT A STRONG ONE

Will Seek to Carry Out President Millerand's Policy of Moderation Toward Germany.

BUT EXPECTS OPPOSITION

Has Not Asked for Postponement of Conference of Allied Premiers Fixed for Wednesday.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—Aristide Briand at noon today accepted the task of forming a new Cabinet. At 6 this evening he went to the Elysée and presented his slate to President Millerand. This slate is not yet final. It will be changed tomorrow in an effort to please enough party leaders to assure the Briand Cabinet of a majority when it faces the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday afternoon.

It is by no means certain tonight that the Chamber will approve Briand, but it is probable. If he is not approved there will be no choice left for President Millerand except to name M. Poincaré, who is demanded by the majority of Parliament, but whom M. Millerand fears because of his views that the Treaty of Versailles should be enforced now by military strength. This is a policy Millerand would follow only as a last resort, and in that respect M. Briand is in accord with the President of the republic.

M. Briand told friends tonight he expected opposition. He will do his best to overcome it, and inasmuch as this is the sixth time he has been named Premier of France, he has some experience in that task. He said he would go before the Chamber Tuesday with the best combination he could get and that the Chamber could take it or leave it.

Tentative List of Ministers.

This is the slate:

Minister of Justice—M. COLRAT.
Minister of the Interior—PIERRE MARRAUD.
Minister of War—LOUIS BARTHOU.
Minister of Marine—GABRIEL GUISTHAU.
Minister of Finance—PAUL DOUMER.
Minister of Public Instruction—VICTOR BERAUD.
Minister of Agriculture—M. LAREDU.
Minister of Commerce—DANIEL VINCENT.
Minister of Labor—M. BONNEVAY.
Minister of Pensions—ANDRE MAGINOT.
Minister of Public Works—YVES LE TROQUER.
Minister of Liberated Regions—LOUIS LOUCHEUR.
Minister of Hygiene—M. STRAUSS.
Minister of the Colonies—M. SARRAUT.

One of the changes which will be made probably will be the substitution of another name for that of M. Marraud as Minister of the Interior. M. Marraud belongs to the Left, and the Right wishes very much to control this office, which supervises the elections.

M. Briand has assumed the difficult Premiership against his personal wishes, and this has created a great deal of public sentiment favorable to him. By the same token there is a great deal of criticism of former President Poincaré, who refused membership in the Cabinet unless he could be Premier or Minister of Finance with full power to negotiate on the idemnity. Poincaré is too much of a fire eater for President Millerand, and that is why he turned to M. Briand as the one man who could keep M. Poincaré out of the Premiership.

M. Poincaré's continual damnation of Germany and his preaching that the Allies should lay down the law and then enforce it with an army make a great appeal to the popular imagination, but M. Millerand places too much value on the co-operation of England to take a chance of losing it by precipitate action on the part of France.

In the Matin tomorrow M. Poincaré will explain his attitude. He writes that the great task before the new Government is that of straightening out the tangled finances of France and that reparation is an important part of this problem.

He argues that under French law the Minister of Finance cannot control the expenditures of other Ministers and is at the mercy of the Premier. He contends that the proper system is to have a Finance Minister who will be Premier and thus in control of the situation. He says he was asked to solve France's financial situation without power to control expenditures or to influence the leadenning negotiations. This he was unwilling to do.

Poincaré's Friends Still Hope.

M. Poincaré's friends still hope. They hope that even if M. Briand gets a vote of confidence on Tuesday he will soon show he cannot make Germany pay and that then the Chamber can turn to the former President of the Republic.

M. Briand has the support of the vast majority of the French newspapers. The extreme Nationalist newspapers support M. Poincaré for the Premiership. The Socialist press attacks M. Poincaré bitterly as wanting to start another war and therefore favor M. Briand, who is essentially a man of diplomacy. Many editorial writers agree that with M. Poincaré as Premier it would not be longer than two weeks before he would break with Mr. Lloyd George.

The Matin publishes an inspired statement saying M. Briand approves the reparation policy of President Millerand. The statement says:

"The principle of this policy is that

Italy Favors Concessions To Both Germany and Turkey

LONDON, Jan. 16.—It has been unanimously decided, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Rome, by the Italian Cabinet that in the coming Supreme Council in Paris it will be impossible for Italy to support any measure calculated to force Germany to fulfill in their entirety the obligations of the Versailles Treaty or any measure to force Turkey to accept the present disposition as regards the Near Eastern situation.

MEXICO MAY YIELD IN OIL CONTROVERSY

New Law Prepared Which Would Cancel Retroactive Features of Article XXVII.

TWO NOTES ARE TAKEN UP

Inquiry Into Railway Situation Preparatory to Return of Systems to Owners.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—The Cabinet held a short meeting this morning to discuss the notes received from England and the United States protesting against the decision in the Naica Mining Company case.

Article XXVII also was treated. It is understood, although the Ministers decline to talk, that Article XXVII will not be retroactive, and owners of properties before 1917 will be exempt from the action of this article to that date. Evidently the Government plans to accede to the demand of the oil companies who have protested against property owned previous to the new law being included.

It is understood the Department of Industry, under Rafael Zubaran, will submit a project in this sense for the approval of President Obregon next week. With his approval the project will be presented to Congress, where it will pass, as Obregon controls a large majority of the Congressmen.

President Obregon has formed a new commission composed of five of the most prominent lawyers. The body is known as the Legislative Commission and will advise President Obregon on the legality of the reform of the Federal laws. President Obregon will consult the commission each week. The members are Ramos Praslow, Victoriano Pimentel O'Reilly, Edward Pallares, Alfonso Anaya and Edward Norma y Castonada.

Roque Estrada, lawyer for the plaintiff against the Naica Mining Company, has published a full page in the local papers defending the finding of the courts which favored his client. Estrada states the main point in the case is whether the finder of the mine who joined the company had paid the amount due on stock owned. The present company owning the mine claims the stock was voided for non-payment. Estrada says that when the company found the mine was enormously rich it froze the original owner out. General opinion in Mexico favors the present company, and local papers criticise the court decision. It is even intimated that pressure was used on the judges. A local daily states that President Obregon has ordered an investigation of the case.

A number of small farmers in the State of Guanajuato have armed in protest against the distribution of lands in the Indian towns. The State government has ordered a suspension of distribution until a full investigation is made.

Reports of the serious condition of the health of President Obregon are false. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent spent Wednesday evening at the President's home, playing billiards, and found President Obregon in better shape than ever. The President is an example of a one-armed man overcoming difficulties, playing a better game of billiards with one arm than the average man with two. He uses a bridge, making runs of seven without much difficulty. Almost daily the President rides before breakfast and often walks from Chapultepec Palace, a distance of four miles. He generally works twelve hours a day. The chief difficulty in the President's health is laryngitis, which is common to natives of the coast State of Sonora. Dr. Orsonio, who made an examination of President Obregon last week, stated that the President was in perfect health, but had a tendency to overwork. He added that reports of bad health were absolutely wrong.

Samuel Gompers and other labor leaders were entertained by General Calles at luncheon this afternoon. Rafael Zubaran gave a luncheon in honor of a large party of visitors from San Francisco.

The Oliver Trading Company has made a contract with the Government to place in immediate service ten locomotives in order to relieve freight congestion. The situation of the railways is bad. Freight is congested in all parts of the Republic, owing to the run-down condition of rolling stock, and practically the entire equipment needs overhauling. Engines which survived the revolution make continuous runs without entering shops. Repairs are made while trains are made up.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—A step toward the contemplated return of the Mexican railways from Government control to private ownership has been taken by the Cabinet. At a conference of the Cabinet with President Obregon, it was ordered that a commission be appointed to investigate every phase of the railway problem.

It was said today that all the members of the Cabinet, as well as President Obregon, were agreed that the railways should be returned. Nevertheless, it was desired that all details should be worked out before devolution is started.

BIG DUBLIN AREA CUT OFF BY TROOPS; CLOSE SEARCH ON Similar Round-Up in South Armagh—Shooting in Cork Results in One Death, Twelve Wounded.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 16.—Early today large bodies of Crown forces surrounded and isolated with barbed wire obstacles and barricades the section of city including three bridges across the Liffey, west of and enclosing the Capel Street district, which has produced a number of shooting affairs. This area is calculated at nearly half a mile square, and is composed of a close network of streets.

Tramway traffic along the north quay was diverted to the southern quay, and apparently a most minute search of the crowded thoroughfares with their congestion of buildings was in progress.

The raid is the most comprehensive yet undertaken. Up to the present six persons have been arrested. A house to house search is in progress. The operations will last two or three days.

I learn that when the district was first isolated the upper floors of certain houses which occupied commanding positions were seized by soldiers. Windows were sandbagged and machine guns mounted. The occupants of apartments thus commandeered were given a few minutes to remove to the lower portions of the houses. There is only one Catholic church in the area, and as the male portion of the congregation was searched after the 11 o'clock mass, no further services are being held.

No persons are allowed to leave or enter the district, and as the fish and vegetable markets are within the area the situation is vital to the community. Field kitchens are serving troops with hot food.

It is said the object of the raid is to arrest two urgently wanted men or alternatively for the location of a suspected arsenal.

DUBLIN, Jan. 16.—The whole section of North Dublin was cordoned by soldiers and police last evening and today. The street railway service along the North Quay was suspended. The centre of the cordoned district includes Church Street and the place where the military were ambushed recently and North King Street, the scene of fierce fighting in the Easter rebellion.

A total area of a square mile is surrounded, and the biggest raid Dublin has yet experienced has been under way.

Only the military have been engaged inside the cordon and it is believed every house will be systematically searched, the raid lasting several days. Hundreds of soldiers are taking part, and field kitchens are providing them with food.

BELFAST, Jan. 16.—Crown forces on Saturday swept through with great thoroughness South Armagh, the scene recently of alleged Sinn Fein activities. Troops and constabulary of the Ulster "specials" co-operated. Every road was under supervision.

More than 300 prisoners were taken in the various nets, but after a rigorous examination only forty persons were held in the military barracks.

CORK, Jan. 16.—Serious disorders followed the shooting here yesterday in which two detectives in plain clothes were wounded. The disorders occurred while a crowd was dispersing from a football match and parties of police were trying to clear the streets. Altogether twelve persons were wounded during the promiscuous firing, while Excise Officer Pring was killed by a stray shot from a passing lorry.

The excise officer had come to his home here for the week-end and was walking in the street with his brother and sister.

Twelve Seaplanes Finish 3,200-Mile Flight; NC-5 Adrift, With Crew Safe on Destroyer

PANAMA, Jan. 16.—Naval officers here are enthusiastic over the successful completion of the flight from San Diego, Cal., to the Canal Zone by twelve of the navy N-6-L seaplanes, which arrived here on Saturday evening. The two remaining machines of the squadron are expected to arrive here today.

The flight, which covered 3,200 miles and was completed in seventeen flying days, was marred by one fatality, Chief Radio Electrician Cain having been killed at Fonseca Bay, on the western coast of Central America, when he was struck by a propeller of one of the machines. The fliers encountered squalls in crossing the Gulf of Tehuantepec, and had a severe shaking up.

The flight, which ranks well up among the longest on record, was over a course never before traversed by aircraft, and the aviators arrived here with a record of only one forced landing. Officials in charge of the squadron were enthusiastic in their praise of the Liberty motors with which the machines were equipped.

Starting from San Diego on Dec. 30, the seaplanes made nine stops—Bartolome Bay, Magdalena Bay, Banderas Bay, Acapulco, Salina Cruz, Fonseca Bay, Punta Arenas, Bahia Honda and Panama. Captain Henry C. Mustin, commanding the squadron, stated upon his arrival here that the flight was unique, since only two days were taken up with the preparatory work, while other long flights had been preceded by weeks—and even months—of preparation.

The jump between Salina Cruz and Fonseca Bay, nearly five hundred miles, was made by the fourteen machines without stop and was declared here today to be one of the noteworthy features of the expedition. The delay of the two machines which did not arrive with the main squadron was due, according to Captain Mustin, to under-power, these planes carrying only three motors, while the others carry four.

One Seaplane Adrift.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 16—United States Naval Seaplane NC-5, one of the fourteen planes on the San Diego to Panama flight, is about twenty-five miles off San Juan del Sur, according to a wireless from the Destroyer Mustford. The crew is safe aboard the Mustford.

The NC-5 and the NC-6 left Bahia Honda at 10.30 A. M. Saturday on the last leg of the flight.

RADICALS DYNAMITE UNION CHIEF'S HOME

Man Who Led Pennsylvania Miners to Victory in Fall Opposed a New Strke.

FOUR MEN ARE ARRESTED

Ten Other Houses Have Been Wrecked by Explosions in Last Four Months.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 16.—The store and house of James A. Joyce, Pittston merchant and leader of the Pennsylvania Coal Company miners, was wrecked and several other houses were badly damaged at 4:30 o'clock this morning by an explosion of dynamite. Four men have been arrested by the Pittston police, who believe the wrecking charge was placed by the miners of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, who are displeased with the stand Joyce has taken in the present strike situation.

Joyce led the miners to victory in the fall, and the coal miners are now getting more money than ever before. His recent policy has been to restrain the men from striking, because he believed they have not a just cause. He opposed insistent demands of radical insurgents at a meeting of the General Grievance Committee last night, and though he did not win his point definitely, neither did the other side, and when the meeting adjourned conditions were badly muddled.

John L. Lewis, International President of the United Mine Workers, was here, and it was intended that he should meet with the Pittston miners today, but the Pittston police have issued orders against a meeting of any kind within the city limits.

Some miners favor a strike tomorrow and others favor work. The former are called insurgent radicals. The latter are mostly English-speaking miners. A meeting was to have been held tomorrow night, at which time the representatives of the 10,000 miners would get a report of the meeting of their committee with President Lewis this afternoon. Since all meetings have been declared off, it is considered likely that work will be resumed. Lewis has declared against a strike. He left here tonight.

During the last week Joyce's life was threatened many times, but he showed no fear.

10 Houses Wrecked in Four Months.

Ten houses were dynamited here during the last ten months, nearly all owned by Italian-speaking men, and this is the first time that a resident of Mr. Joyce's prominence was placed in danger.

Three persons were sleeping in the house, and were thrown from their beds to the floor. The entire front of the store was blown out and the stairs leading to the bedrooms wrecked. Windows were broken throughout the house, and a large section of the stone foundation caved in. A near-by garage is badly damaged, and windows in the Pittston laundry and Greek Catholic Church are broken.

A patrol has been placed at the Joyce home. Mine foremen and others who have counseled against another strike have made appeals for police protection.

Besides the Pittston police, the entire troops of State police, located at Wyoming, are searching for the men who committed the crime. The valley's prominent residents are making insistent demands that some of the large force of Secret Service men now operating here against the brewers turn their attention to the strike and get the leaders.

Want to Get Union Charter.

The whole trouble has been caused because the 100 or more men of Local 14 of the United Mine Workers refuse to turn over their charter to the insurgents. The latter could obtain the charter by simply joining the local, but, it is said, this latter procedure will not be followed because Rinaldo Capalini, the insurgent leader, is not employed at No. 14 Colliery and could not become a member of the regular union.

He and Joyce were co-leaders of the Pittston strikers during the three months shut-down, but recently became enemies, each charging that the other had been bought by the Pennsylvania Coal Company. Capalini did receive $10,000 recently, but he claims it was for the loss of an arm in an accident in the Pennsylvania mines about fifteen years ago.

At last night's meeting the first out-

GIRL LOST FOR HOURS IN BERKSHIRE STORM

PATIENT AT A SANITARIUM

Special to The New York Times.

STOCKBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 17.—Miss Eleanor A. Thayer, nineteen-year-old Boston society girl, after being lost for hours in a driving snowstorm on Monument Mountain, fought her way back alone at 12:30 this morning, while hundreds of men equipped with lanterns, torches and searchlights were hunting for her along the mountain trails and the banks of the Housatonic River.

Miss Thayer, daughter of the late Dean of the Harvard Law School, who drowned himself in 1918, has been a patient at the sanitarium for nervous diseases conducted here by Dr. Austin Fox Riggs. Great alarm was felt for her safety when she failed to return from a hike on which she started alone at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. It was feared she had slipped and fallen on one of the ice-covered mountain paths, and that she lay freezing and helpless at the base of some declivity.

Details of her experience were refused at the sanitarium after she returned, but Dr. Riggs announced that in the darkness and the fury of the snowstorm she had failed to see any of the parties of rescuers and had battled her way in unaided. He added that she had not suffered severely from her experiences. Dr. Riggs said Miss Thayer missed the main trail across the mountain and got lost. Messengers were dispatched to recall the searchers, who had intended to scour the trails all night.

The tall, athletic, blonde young woman was seen at about 11 o'clock in the morning by E. W. Lowery, the New York, New Haven & Hartford station agent, who watched her swinging along toward Monument Mountain, clad in a warm toque, a short, snug walking coat, a short skirt and sturdy boots. She had been so much improved during her sojourn at the sanitarium that a nurse who had been her constant companion had been dispensed with, and the sight of the girl alone, headed for a lonely mountain road, occasioned neither comment nor alarm.

It had been Miss Thayer's habit from the beginning of her improvement to walk along the mountain roads and trails. Sometimes she would go in the direction of Monument Mountain, and at other times she would choose Beartown Mountain, in the direction of the Ice Glen, or Rattlesnake Mountain, toward Lanox. She had been here six weeks, and the sight of her tall figure had become familiar. Dr. Riggs, whose institution is frequented by fashionable patients from Boston, New York and other places, was known to encourage her fondness for the open air and exercise, and even when she failed to return for luncheon there was no anxiety.

As the afternoon wore away and the intermittent snowflakes thickened to a heavy downfall, attendants at the Purinton Inn, adjoining the sanitarium and occupied at this season almost solely by its patients, sent word of their uneasiness to Dr. Riggs.

The physician communicated at once with Sheriff Seleno A. Noble, who sent the alarm through the town. Within an hour a number of posses had been organized, and the search was on. Dr. Riggs placed himself at the head of one group, while the Sheriff took charge of another. Still other divisions were made of the volunteers in order that the roads in the direction of each mountain might be examined.

When several hours' hunt had yielded no faint trace of the missing girl, still another posse was formed to hunt the banks of the Housatonic River.

SHAH QUITS TEHERAN.

Persian Ruler, Said to Fear Murder, Leaves With British Garrison.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—According to a dispatch received tonight by the French Foreign Office, Shah Ahmid Mirza, ruler of Persia, quit the capital, Teheran, when the English garrison evacuated it, and proceeded to Shiraz.

Whether the Shah has abdicated is not known here. He is only 19 years old, and, having become unpopular with his people because he permitted the establishment of the British protectorate, he feared assassination following the resignation of the Persian Cabinet and the entry of the Bolsheviki.

Must Furnish Detectives for Whitman Inquiry or Face Charges, Investigators Say.

Information that announcement of a new Police Commissioner to succeed Richard E. Enright would be made within twenty-four hours was received late last night by the New York City News Association from an informant, whose name was not divulged, but who was said to be in close touch with the city administration.

Commissioner Enright, according to this information, is expected to resign today, and his successor will not be John Kenlon, Chief of the Fire Department, who has been mentioned in this connection, nor any man who has been connected with the uniformed force of either the Police or Fire Department.

All efforts to reach Commissioner Enright or Mayor Hylan yesterday failed. Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Leach declared last night that the reported resignation or probable removal of Commissioner Enright had no foundation in fact, and was nothing more than a fake rumor.

"Police Commissioner Enright was appointed on May 23, 1918, for a five-year term," said Deputy Commissioner Leach, "and he expects and intends to serve out that full term to the end. We have kept tabs on the reports of his probable resignation, and the count tonight reaches to ninety-one false reports."

Mr. Leach said the Commissioner laughed yesterday when he was asked about this latest report, and had denied it as emphatically as he could.

New Man Acceptable to Hylan?

The unnamed informant was quoted by the New York City News Association as follows:

"I have been given to understand that the next Police Commissioner will be a man who has played no part in the conduct of the Police Department. He will be a man in whom the Mayor will have an absolute and abiding faith, and from what I am told will have free rein to make any and all changes deemed advisable for the good of the department—in other words, to do all in his power to give the greater city of New York the best police protection it has ever received."

Persistent reports of Commissioner Enright's coming resignation have been in circulation for several weeks and have not been checked by his denials and those of Mayor Hylan. On Christmas Eve announcement was made that Commissioner Enright had taken advantage of the law passed by the Legislature during his administration of the department permitting any member of the uniformed force who has served for six months as Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner to be pensioned at half the salary of the Chief Inspector. The order read:

"The following members of the force are relieved and dismissed from the police force and placed on the roll of the Police Pension Fund and are awarded the following pension:

"To take effect 12 M. Dec. 22, 1920. "Lieutenant Richard E. Enright, 102d Precinct, at $3,750 per annum, in accordance with Chapter 651, Laws of 1918. Appointed Nov. 2, 1896."

The others mentioned in the order were two sergeants retired at their own request.

The foregoing order was recalled last night as an indication that Commissioner Enright, if he did not intend to resign at once, at least considered that his resignation was imminent.

Rumor Revived on Saturday.

The rumor of his resignation, which naturally was strong at the time the order became public, was revived on Saturday. Commissioner Enright, when asked then if it was true that he had resigned, parried the query by replying that the report was "exaggerated," like that of Mark Twain's death. Mayor Hylan made a direct denial of the report of Commissioner Enright's resignation.

Both Commissioner Enright and Mayor Hylan are under subpoena to appear today before the Whitman Grand Jury, which is investigating alleged corruption in city departments. It is known that the city officials generally look with some apprehension to this inquiry because of their respect for the ability of Mr. Whitman as an investigator.

District Attorney Swann's action in appointing Mr. Whitman, a Republican, to the post of Special Prosecutor in an investigation of the Democratic city administration is known to have aroused the resentment of the supporters of Mayor Hylan, which was apparent even before the Mayor and Commissioner Enright announced that they did not intend to help the inquiry.

In this connection, there has been considerable speculation concerning the purpose of the conferences Mayor Hylan had with William Randolph Hearst and Arthur Brisbane. There were two such conferences during the last week, one at City Hall and one at a luncheon at the Hotel Ritz-Carlton. The latter con-

Japan Would Welcome Vanderlip as Ambassador

TOKIO, Jan. 14.—News dispatches stating that President-elect Harding contemplates the appointment of Frank A. Vanderlip as United States Ambassador to Japan have been well received in this country.

The Yorozu Chohe, an independent organ, says: "Mr. Vanderlip is pro-Japanese, and his appointment as Ambassador at the present time, when relations between Japan and the United States threaten to become complicated, would promote friendship between the two nations."

MURPHY TO RETIRE, IS TAMMANY REPORT

Democratic Circles Also Hear Former Governor Smith Is to Succeed Leader.

"BOSS" MAY VISIT EUROPE

Rumor Says He Will Appoint a Regent to Handle City Campaign Next Fall.

The report that Charles F. Murphy would retire from the leadership of Tammany Hall, published many times in the past, was current yesterday in local Democratic circles. According to the story, Mr. Murphy intends to go to Europe with State Tax Commissioner Michael J. Walsh of Yonkers, Democratic leader of Westchester County, as soon as the indictment on a charge of conspiracy to defraud Louis N. Hartung in a glucose transaction is out of the way. The report also said former Governor Alfred E. Smith probably would succeed Mr. Murphy as leader of Tammany.

Confirmation of the report could not be obtained. Mr. Walsh, at his home in Yonkers, last night denied he was going to Europe with Mr. Murphy, and former Governor Smith declared he had no aspirations for the leadership.

"I never heard of it," said Mr. Smith when asked about the report that he might become leader. "I am not even casually interested."

It was learned, however, from well-informed Tammany sources that there was a likelihood of Mr. Murphy's retirement and that, although no definite decision had been reached, he might relinquish the leadership before the beginning of the city campaign next Fall. Mr. Murphy, who is at French Lick, Ind., is expected to return to New York City tomorrow.

Controlled Tammany Eighteen Years.

Mr. Murphy has held the leadership of Tammany more than eighteen years, and was said to be sincerely seeking a way to retire. Although there is some opposition to him among the Tammany district leaders, it was said that this had had no influence upon his proposed retirement and that, if he did retire, it would be voluntarily. Mr. Murphy was also said to foresee trouble in the city campaign and to wish to eliminate himself before that time to avoid the probability of figuring as one of the principal issues. In addition, he was said to have found the changing political conditions unsatisfactory and to feel that the problem of organizing the women voters, an important matter for Tammany, might be done better by a younger man.

Although professing ignorance of his reported trip to Europe, prominent Tammany men said they would not be surprised if the report were true and that Mr. Murphy would choose this method of withdrawing gradually rather than by an abrupt abdication.

Temporary Leader Likely.

It was said that if he should go to Europe and remain away during the campaign, he might leave behind him a temporary leader or a regency, just as Richard Croker did when he first went to Ireland. At that time, first John C. Sheehan and then John F. Carroll acted as leader in Mr. Croker's absence.

Any inference that a trip to Europe would mean that Mr. Murphy intended to take a permanent residence abroad, as Mr. Croker has done, was scouted by Tammany men.

Mr. Smith, who, it was said, could undoubtedly have the leadership if he wanted it, was reported to be unwilling to take it. Friends of the former Governor said his aspirations were more along the line of future public service and that he did not believe his defeat for re-election as Governor had ended his public career.

It was said to be the feeling of both Mr. Murphy and of the group of a dozen leaders, which make up the real governing body of Tammany, that the organization was facing a crisis and that a new policy must be adopted if the Tiger were to continue its dominance over the Democratic organization in New York City.

Need for New Methods Shown.

The decreasing Tammany pluralities in Manhattan, the increasing restiveness of Bronx and Brooklyn Democrats to Tammany control, and, above all, the advent of the woman voter, were said to have brought a realization to the Tammany leaders of the necessity of new methods. The problem of the women voters was said to have been particularly troublesome, and a special committee was named recently at a meeting of the Tammany Executive Committee to prepare a program.

Mr. Murphy has been leader of Tammany since September, 1902, and, though almost continually under fire from hostile critics, is considered by most Tammany men to have been fairly successful in his leadership. The most serious revolt against him was headed by Mayor George B. McClellan during his term as Mayor, but was unsuccessful. Since that time there has been discontent at times in the Fourteenth Street wigwam, but nothing seriously threatening.

HIGHER FARE PLAN NOW HAS SUPPORT IN COMMITTEE

Senate Body Chosen of Men Known to Favor Traction Demands.

UP-STATE MEN DOMINATE IT

NEW BILLS ARE READY

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 16.—The battle for higher street railway fares, principally affecting New York City, waged fiercely during the last year's session, will be renewed in the Legislature this week, when bills similar to the Jenks measures, defeated last year after strenuous support by the traction interests, are again introduced by their sponsor, Assemblyman E. B. Janks of Broome County. Again he will plead that an increase in fares is necessary to save the New York City traction companies and others from bankruptcy and avert a general breakdown of service on practically all street and subway lines. The same forces which encompassed the defeat of these measures at the preceding session are again ready to take the field in opposition.

Senator Clayton R. Lusk, leader of the upper house, has appointed there a Committee on Public Service, which is as nearly committed to support of higher fares as forethought and precaution can make it. Every doubtful Republican member has been sounded before receiving his appointment and, as a result, the only opposition in the committee in New York City is likely to come from the Democratic members.

Although legislation allowing increased fares would affect more people in the city of New York than in all the other cities in the State combined, only one New York City Republican out of eleven Republican members, has been named on the Senate Committee on Public Service. Three Democrats, as compared with four on last year's committee, are New York City men, possibly because all the Democrats in the Senate hail from the metropolis. The Chairman, Senator John Knight, comes from Arcade, N. Y., and a majority of the other Republican members come from small communities which have no traction problem.

The lone New York City Republican on the committee is William Duggan, an insurance man, who represents the Nineteenth Senate District, where he succeeded Edward J. Dowling, a Democrat. The other Republican members besides Senator Knight are Mortimer Y. Ferris of Ticonderoga, Caleb H. Baumes of Newburg, James L. Whitley of Rochester, William A. Carson of Rushville, Theodore Douglas Robinson of Mohawk, W. T. Thayer of Chateaugay, Frank L. Wiswall of Watervliet, Frederick W. Kavanaugh of Waterford and Clayton R. Lusk of Cortland.

In the Assembly, Frank L. Seaker of Gouverneur, St. Lawrence County, drew as a consolation prize the Chairmanship of the Railroads Committee, which will handle fare legislation in the lower house. Assemblyman Seaker was a candidate for Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, but was sidetracked for Assemblyman Joseph A. McGinnies of Chautauqua and had to be placated. Assemblyman McGinnies, in turn, had stepped aside to leave a clear track to the Speaker's rostrum for Assemblyman H. Edmund Machold of Jefferson, after a considerable McGinnies boom had gotten under way in Chautauqua and a number of other counties in Western New York.

Governor Miller has not as yet communicated his views on the traction question in New York City to the Legislature. He has said nothing to indicate that he is committed to higher fares. He made it clear during the campaign and soon after his election that he was keeping an open mind on the subject and seeking a solution that would do justice to all.

Assemblyman Jenks was the sponsor at last year's session of three higher fare, or as they were called, "service at cost" bills which, in the face of an active lobby in their favor, were defeated after some dangerous "jokers" had been discovered in them. Assemblyman Jenks states that the new bills will, with some modifications, follow the line of last year's.

One of these bills provided a plan for arriving at, or attempting to arrive at, through conferences between municipal authorities and traction companies finding themselves pinched under contracts, 5-cent fare obligations, a "service at cost plus" agreement, the "service at cost plus" rate to be fixed after appraisal by a board composed of one representative of the city government, one of the railroad company and one member appointed by the Appellate Division of the district. Another bill provided for compulsory action by the Public Service Commission to order and fix the higher fare after appraisal in cases where after six months spent in such negotiations no agreement had been reached.

"The situation in New York City requires such immediate attention," said Assemblyman Jenks, "that, in my opinion, public sentiment will compel acquiescence in the demand for higher fares, which are necessary to keep the companies solvent and the service going."

Mr. Jenks made it known that at the time when he introduces his traction bills he would introduce a bill providing for the suspension of increases in electric light and gas rates filed by companies, pending a decision by the Public Service Commissioners and the courts as to the reasonableness of the new rates.

Foes of Nominating Conventions Force Him to Change Program.

SOCIALISTS DEEMED SAFE

Legislature Plans to Decide Lockwood Committee Powers This Week and Take Up Economy.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 16.—The Legislature faces its first really active week beginning tomorrow night, when both houses reconvene.

Governor Miller had planned to send in a special message asking the enactment of legislation repealing the direct primary system, but unlooked-for opposition that manifests growing strength is said to have changed his plan. The Governor is believed to desire the restoration of the party convention as the medium for nominating not only State, Congressional and judicial officers, but also those of county, city and town. However, he lacks the united support of Republican leaders, and this fact, coupled with the determination of the Democrats to fight such a measure, led to the delay in introducing his program.

There are three important questions which the legislative leaders plan to settle this week if possible. One is extending the life and powers of the Lockwood Housing Committee to allow it to continue its inquiry into building trade combinations and also to investigate banks and fire and life insurance companies. Senator Lockwood's proposal has brought to Albany a powerful lobby, which is said to have made inroads on the determination of some legislators that the inquiry shall continue with unlimited scope.

Governor Miller has withheld assurances that he would lend his support to the committee's request, but despite this Senator Lockwood declares he believes the Legislature will approve his proposal.

Continued antagonism will result in a request for a public hearing at which Senator Lockwood and Samuel Untermyer, counsel to the committee, believe they could show sufficient reasons to compel favorable action.

Expulsion of Socialists Unlikely.

On the Assembly side it is expected that the question of the fitness to sit of the three Socialist Assemblymen, which has again been brought to the fore, will be decided by the House Judiciary Committee. The personnel of the committee, with one or two exceptions, is the same as last year, when it was twice called on to advise the Assembly on the status of the Socialist members. While up-State members largely are for ousting the Socialists, the demand of the down-State legislators and Governor Miller that they should be permitted to retain their seats is expected to prevail. The Judiciary Committee itself is said to be against expulsion, and it was asserted tonight that it is even problematical if the resolutions asking their expulsion will be reported.

However, there will be an investigation of the membership qualifications of Henry Jaeger of Kings, who sits in the Assembly as a first year man elected by the Socialists. In a resolution already called to the attention of the House, Jaeger is charged not only with not being a resident of the State but also with having served a six months' sentence after conviction for disorderly conduct. He is said to have called President Wilson a "murderer" at a meeting on the night before the United States joined the Allies against Germany.

The Senate Finance Committee has about completed its organization, and it is not improbable that this week it will report out Governor Miller's first nomination, that of Charles L. Cadle of Rochester to be State Superintendent of Public Works. Democrats, led by the minority leader, James J. Walker, have announced they will contest Cadle's confirmation on the ground that, being closely connected with the New York Central Railroad, he is unfitted to take charge of the State Barge Canal, the railroad's chief competitor. Governor Miller is taking little stock in the opposition to this appointment, however, and expects that the Senate majority will confirm it at once.

Many Measures Await Action.

Additional measures of the Governor's legislative program are expected to make their appearance this week. Included is a proposal for the reorganization of the First District Public Service Commission and to limit its powers solely to regulating transit matters in New York City. Measures carrying out his recommendations for consolidation and reorganization of the tax collecting agencies of the State may also be introduced.

Already a mass of legislation awaits committee action in both houses and the demands of the leaders, Clayton R. Lusk, President pro tem of the Senate, and Machold H. Edmund of the Assembly, that committees be organized and ready for immediate work have been met.

It would not be surprising, legislators here tonight said, if the Governor's Prohibition Enforcement bill would be set down for a hearing either this week or next, so that it could be brought before the Senate and Assembly for early disposition.

COLD SNAP IS COMING FROM THE WEST TONIGHT

Drop of Temperature to Ten Above Zero Is Predicted for Eastern Coast.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The crop of reports about blossoming dandelions and budding trees, always incident to a mild Winter, is endangered by frost, the Weather Bureau tonight forecasting a cold wave for the Eastern portion of the country.

Colder Winter already has made its appearance in the States lying immediately east of the Mississippi River, the Weather Bureau said, and the cold area is expected to reach the Atlantic Coast from Maine to Florida by tomorrow night.

Temperatures throughout the Eastern half of the country, the bureau's forecaster said, probably will be the lowest of the Winter, the thermometer going down to around 10 to 15 degrees above zero in the vicinity of New York City; 15 to 20 degrees above in the vicinity of Baltimore and Washington, and still lower inland and in New England.

The cold wave, however, will not last longer than two or three days, the bureau said.

POLICEMAN FOR MINISTRY.

Clinton (Mass.) Man Will Resign Feb. 1 to Begin His Studies.

CLINTON, Mass., Jan. 16.—From the police force to holy orders is the ambition of Patrolman William M. Sachse, who will resign Feb. 1 and go to Greenfield, where, under Rev. John B. Whitemarsh rector of St. James' Parish, he will work as lay reader and study for admission to an Episcopal theological seminary.

Sachse has been soldier, policeman and Sunday school superintendent.

Adopts Plan Despite Opposition of Gompers.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16 (Associated Press).—Immigration agencies in all Latin-American countries for the collection and dissemination of information regarding labor conditions will be established under the terms of a resolution adopted by the Pan-American Federation of Labor Congress here yesterday. Delegates from the United States and Porto Rico opposed the idea, but were voted down in the first divided vote of the Congress.

The resolution, which was introduced by the Mexican delegation, called for the appointment of special labor envoys in each Pan-American country, but the Resolutions Committee reported it had amended the motion so that the Federation's executive officers would be named as information gatherers, it being planned by this means to eliminate the expense entailed by the carrying out of the original proposal.

When the amended motion was submitted an animated debate began, during which Samuel Gompers, President of the Congress, was compelled frequently to explain United States labor conditions.

Mr. Gompers asserted that upward of 1,500,000 immigrants were received in the United States each year, and that 15,000,000 persons in European countries were ready to come to America and were waiting for ships to bring them. He added a note of warning, saying that at present there were more than 2,000,000 unemployed in the United States. He reminded the Congress that the International Labor Office at Geneva had undertaken the investigation of immigration in every phase and would soon publish important findings on the subject.

After the Congress had remained in session until long after the appointed hour for closing, Mr. Gompers called for a vote and the original Mexican resolution was adopted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—A small group of Mexican workingmen paraded the streets this morning protesting against the meeting of the Pan American Congress of Labor Federations now being held. The marchers said they were against all forms of labor unions as they considered themselves true Bolsheviki.

The general opinion of laboring men is that the meetings between Gompers and the Mexican labor leaders have proved a failure, the main point being the difference of the Anglo-Saxon and Latin viewpoints, which is held to render impossible a satisfactory agreement.

DISPUTE BLOCKS TRAFFIC.

Husband and Man With His Wife Arrested for Street Quarrel.

A clamorous dispute between Solomon Lazarus, a London silk merchant living at the Hotel McAlpin, and Herschell Halsell, head of the Lumber Department of the United States and Foreign Sales Corporation, which started in front of the Capitol Theatre last night when Lazarus saw Halsell walking along Broadway with his estranged wife, Mrs. Bessie Lazarus, attracted such a crowd that loud disputants were taken to Night Court charged with blocking traffic and refusing to move on when Patrolman Parker ordered them to do so.

When Lazarus saw the couple leaving a restaurant, he stepped in front of them and demanded an explanation of why they were together. He raised his cane as if to strike Halsell, and Mrs Lazarus jumped between them. The verbal encounter ensued.

Mrs. Lazarus told the police she and her husband had been separated two years. She said that after her husband had left her she had come to this country and had started a millinery business. She had started divorce proceedings here several months ago.

After being arraigned in Night Court, their case was put over until today. Halsell was bailed out and left in the company of Mrs. Lazarus, but Lazarus had not been able to get $300 bail up to a late hour.

RESUME OLD TRAFFIC RULES

New System Is Dropped in Theatre District for Sunday Night.

Broadway and the theatre district went back to the old traffic system last night, and after the orderly manner in which traffic has been regulated under the new block system confusion seemed to reign. As a matter of fact, there was no more confusion than there has been on Broadway any Sunday night under the old rules.

It was thought unnecessary to use the new system on Sunday because the theatre crowds are not as large and traffic policemen were reduced, those at busy intersections like Forty-second Street and Broadway being released at 11 o'clock as heretofore. A number of motorcycle police were called in from other districts and patrolled the street.

A large number of summonses were issued by these policemen, many of whom had not before been on duty downtown in the evening.

BANDIT SHOOTS DOCTOR.

Philadelphia Specialist and Companion First Routed Highwaymen.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16. — Dr. Thomas H. Fenton, the eye specialist, who was shot early this morning by a bandit near his home, underwent an operation a few hours later at Jefferson Hospital. The bullet, which was removed, had lodged above Dr. Fenton's left eye. Tonight his condition was slightly improved.

The holdup occurred as Dr. Fenton was returning home at midnight from the Art Club with John Huneker. Two men, armed with revolvers, jumped from behind a tree and commanded them to throw up their hands. Instead of complying Dr. Fenton tried to strike the revolver from the hand of the man nearest him with his walking stick. At the same time Mr. Huneker made a lunge for the other. The bandit grappled with him and then broke away and ran.

His companion, seeing that the odds were against him, retreated a few steps, the police say, and then with deliberate aim at Dr. Fenton's head fired one shot and ran. The bullet entered Dr. Fenton's left cheek and he sank to the ground unconscious.

Interested in Suggestion That He May Become the Anti-Tammany Candidate.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS COLD

Independents Also Reported Inclined to Look Elsewhere for a Fusion Nominee.

Aspirants for the fusion nomination for Mayor have been watching with considerable concern the activity of ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman as Special Prosecutor in the investigation into alleged corruption in city departments. Although it is not definitely known that Mr. Whitman has aspirations for the anti-Tammany nomination for Mayor, friends of his have made the suggestion that the developments in his inquiry might make him the most available candidate, particularly if he should be able to discredit the administration of the Police Department and bring about a condition whereby the police situation would be one of the leading issues of the campaign.

The suggestion of Mr. Whitman as the possible anti-Tammany standard bearer in the city election has not been received with favor so far by either the Republican organization leaders or by those prominent in such organizations as the Citizens Union and the City Club, which have taken leading parts in bringing about fusion in past campaigns. Most of the leaders of the so-called independent element were said to be opposed to the selection of Mr. Whitman, but to believe that he was seeking to bring about a situation which might compel his nomination.

Whitman's Past Successes.

Those who believe that the investigation just begun by Mr. Whitman may result in his nomination for Mayor recalled that his political preferment in the past was obtained by just such methods. His election as District Attorney was brought about largely by his action as a City Magistrate in conducting raids on gambling houses over the heads of the police. The conviction of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, it was recalled, was the most spectacular event in Mr. Whitman's administration and resulted in his nomination and election for Governor.

Mr. Whitman was a candidate for the fusion nomination for Mayor in 1913, but was beaten by the late John Purroy Mitchel under circumstances which Mr. Whitman was said to have resented. It was said by Mr. Whitman's friends that he always had been ambitious to be Mayor and that he never saw this ambition could be realized this year. It was said to be well known by his friends that Mr. Whitman had not abandoned his political ambitions after his defeat for re-election as Governor in 1918, and that he had undoubtedly undertaken his present investigation with a view to rehabilitating himself politically.

Organization Republicans who were asked about the possibility of Mr. Whitman becoming a candidate expressed belief that there were two great obstacles to his election as Mayor. These, it was said, were his attitude on prohibition, which resulted in an adverse plurality of 270,000 in New York City in 1918, and the fact that his law firm had been retained by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. With the 5-cent fare likely to be a leading issue in the city campaign, it was said, a candidate who had been in the employ of one of the traction companies would be at a considerable disadvantage.

Independents Looking Elsewhere.

The suggestion of ex-Governor Whitman was said to have been received with disfavor among members of the independent organizations which usually join a fusion movement. The leaders of this group were said to be still conducting a search for a candidate.

The men now said to be receiving serious consideration from members of the independent element include Arthur Woods, former Police Commissioner; Darwin R. James of Brooklyn, Martin Saxe, former State Tax Commissioner, who has considerable support among organization Republicans, and Henry H. Curran, Borough President of Manhattan. Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey, State Senator Charles C. Lockwood and District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Brooklyn are also said to be among the possibilities.

SEVEN GUARDSMEN IN JAIL.

Arrest Follows Inquiry into Lynching of Alabama Miner.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 16.—Four noncommissioned officers and three privates of Company M, Alabama National Guard, were arrested tonight and placed in the Jefferson County Jail here as the result of testimony before Judge Horace C. Wilkinson, special investigator, by a private of Company M, regarding the lynching last Thursday at Jasper, Ala., of William Baaird, a coal miner. Neither the nature of the guardsman's statement nor his identity was revealed.

Every member of Company M, which at the time of the lynching was stationed at Townley, near Jasper, because of the strike of Alabama coal miners, was examined closely today by the investigating officers. Civilians living in the neighborhood where the lynching occurred were also examined.

The seven guardsmen arrested tonight will be sent to Jasper tomorrow, to appear before the Coroner, who is also investigating the death of Baird. The coal miner, when taken from the jail by masked men last Thursday, was being held in relation to the fatal shooting on Dec. 23 of James Morris, a private of Company M.

HE CRITICISES UPPER COURT

Attacks Bar Association for "Launching Cowardly Campaign Against Me"—"Will Fight to End."

Supreme Court Justice John Ford, who was re-elected last November, following endorsement by both the Republican and Democratic Parties, made public yesterday a letter to Governor Nathan L. Miller, protesting against a continuation of the practice by which the Justices of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court are permitted to make assignments to that body, and opposing the reassignment of Justice Alfred R. Page.

Justice Ford, who wrote Governor Miller before the latter took office, protesting against the method of assigning Supreme Court Justices to Special Terms by the Appellate Division, declared that the present system tended toward autocracy, and charged the present Justices of the Appellate Division with "arrogance." He asserted that the bar associations, which refused to endorse him for re-election, followed the lead of the Justices of the Appellate Division, who, he said, by failing to give him a Special Term assignment in his fourteenth year of service, gave the "high sign" for the campaign against him.

Accuses Justices of Usurpation.

In his letter to Governor Miller Justice Ford declared that the Justices of the Appellate Division had usurped power which the State Constitution did not give them. The letter, in part, follows:

January 14, 1921.

Hon. Nathan L. Miller,
Executive Chamber,
Albany, N. Y.

Dear Governor Miller:

In your brief and rather non-committal reply, dated Dec. 20, to my letter of Nov. 27, you suggest that the records of the Constitutional Convention of 1894 would show broader power intended to be conferred upon the Justices of the Appellate Division than I ascribe to them. In my letter I flatly charged that the Constitution did not give them the right which they have usurped to prevent elected Justices of the Supreme Court from exercising the functions of their office.

Rest assured that I am far too jealous of my reputation as a lawyer and a judge to express so confident an opinion on so grave a question without consulting the recorded proceedings of the body which formulated the Constitution. I disclose some extracts from the remarks of Mr. Elihu Root and other delegates, together with comments of my own upon the subject.

In my letter I said that it lay in your power as Governor to stop this unconstitutional practice of the Appellate Division. An opportunity to do so lies immediately before you.

On February 3 the designation of Justice Alfred R. Page to sit upon the Appellate Division expires. He will doubtless be a candidate with the backing of his associates and of the bar associations.

Puts Responsibilities Up to Governor.

The Constitution requires the Governor to make the designations of Justices of the Supreme Court to sit upon the Appellate Division. Yours is the responsibility and yours alone. Even the Senate has not a word to say about it.

Yet of late years the pernicious custom has grown up of permitting the appellate body to select their own successors. The prime consideration with them is to select those who will be personally agreeable to them and sympathetic with their established policy.

A self-perpetuating body is abhorrent to our form of government. It grows arrogant and more out of touch with popular interests and tends inevitably toward autocracy. It is peculiarly obnoxious and dangerous when it exercises the irresponsible powers which our Appellate Division Justices have arrogated to themselves.

As to the bar associations, they follow blindly the Appellate Division. Indeed, the close affiliation between those bodies, dominated by a handful of corporation lawyers, and our Appellate Division Justices is becoming more and more a matter of grave public concern.

I oppose the redesignation of Justice Page solely because he has become the exponent of the reprehensible practice of discrimination among Justices of the Supreme Court.

Your refusal to redesignate him on that ground would be to kill the practice at one blow. The rest of them would drop it like a hot potato.

He it was who made up the list of assignments for last year. One of the up-State Appellate Division Justices sent word to me that if I would speak to Justice Page I could probably get satisfactory assignments.

Attacks Bar Association.

You will not overlook the significance of my own exclusion from the patronage parts of the court in the fourteenth year of my term of office and when my renomination was still undecided. As a practical man experienced in politics I realize that my usefulness as a judge is at an end. I am not willing to be a party to the practice of packing the Appellate Division with men who will be subservient to the wishes of the Supreme Court Justices who are to select them.

In brief, these seven appellate divisions matter what attitude you take, or whether the effort I intend to make in the Legislature to obtain relief from an intolerable condition is successful or not, my efforts shall not be relaxed.

There still remains an appeal to the courts for a definition of the power of the appellate division Justices under the Constitution. Failing in that, there is the greatest tribunal of all whose voice is the voice of God.

For the courts are the people's courts—all of them—high or low. These presumptuous groups and cliques who seek to control them will have their little day, but sooner or later they will be overwhelmed by the swelling tide of popular resentment.

There is of course nothing confidential about this letter.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN FORD.

Quotes Elihu Root.

In a memorandum accompanying the letter, Justice Ford quoted Elihu Root as follows in a speech at the Constitutional Convention of 1894 in regard to the objection to granting the Appellate Divisions power to make assignments:

"They probably will do, as the General Terms have always done, exercise the same powers, make rules and let the Justices arrange the work to suit themselves."

John Proctor Clarke, Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division, said last night at his home, 1 West Eighty-first Street, that he did not care to make any comment upon Justice Ford's letter.

FIVE IN FAMILY MURDERED.

PAMPLICO, S. C., Jan. 16.—Discovery today of two additional bodies disclosed that five members of the Bigham family, living near here, were shot to death yesterday. Bodies of three members of the family, one of the most prominent in this section of South Carolina, were found yesterday.

Authorities here spent the whole day in an attempt to solve the mystery of the murders, but tonight said they had found no solution. They said they were working on the clue afforded by a revolver found in the hand of L. S. Bigham, aged 60, head of the family, and one of the victims.

The body of Mrs. L. S. Bigham, aged 50, mother of the head of the family, was found in the yard of the Bigham home, a bullet wound in her head. The body of Mrs. Marjorie Black, aged 35, was found in her room on the second floor of the Bigham home, also with a bullet hole in her head. The body of Mrs. Black's 9-year-old adopted son was found near the back of the house, his forehead having been pierced by a bullet fired at close range, while another adopted son, 5 years of age, was found near a fence in the back yard with a bullet wound in his head. The 5-year-old boy was still alive when found, but died early today.

The first of the bodies was found late yesterday by E. D. Bigham, brother of the dead man, who occupied a portion of the Bigham home, but who told the authorities that he was not driving at the time the tragedy occurred.

L. S. Bigham Sr., who died several years ago, served as a member of the South Carolina House of Representatives and Senate and at one time was a candidate for Congress.

LAYS THEFTS TO MORPHINE.

Chicago Chemist Says He Takes Drugs to Forget Death.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A strange story was revealed yesterday with the arrest for shoplifting in a department store of Dr. Rudolph Albert Gries. He is a graduate of half a dozen colleges in Germany and the United States. He was caught stealing a piece of hand-worked linen, whose beauty, he said, was a solace for an incurable ailment.

In a beautifully furnished apartment he occupied on Sheridan Road the police found a collection of artistic replicas of classical sculptures taken from various department stores, Japanese bronze statuary, rare laces and Persian tapestries.

Dr. Gries says that while experimenting in the chemical department of the University of Chicago he contracted, from a puncture on a finger, a disease which he now finds to have reached an incurable stage. Under the influence of morphine, he added, he obtained respite from thoughts of his impending death and became seized with the desire to surround himself with objects of art.

AUTO RUNS DOWN TWO MEN.

One Brooklyn Resident Killed and Another Critically Hurt.

One man is dead and another is believed to be dying in the Bushwick Hospital, Brooklyn, as the result of an automobile accident at Harmon Place, near Fulton Street, Brooklyn, last night. The two men were crossing the street when they were run down by an automobile driven by Frank W. Herman Jr., of 59 Truxton Street, Brooklyn. Seated beside the young driver was his father.

The dead man, Martin Becker, was 53 years old and lived at 270 Sumpter Street. He died in the hospital.

Frank E. Ellis, the injured man, is 30 years old and lives at 15 Furman Avenue, Brooklyn. At the hospital last night it was said he might not recover.

Young Herman was taken to the Ralph Avenue Police Station as a prisoner.

ENRIGHT TO QUIT TODAY, RUMOR SAYS

ference took place just before the Mayor announced that he was not co-operating with District Attorney Swann in the inquiry.

Kenlon Out of the Question.

No information could be obtained last night as to the man Mayor Hylan had in mind to succeed Commissioner Enright if the latter resigned. It was said that Fire Chief John Kenlon, who, incidentally, was believed to have no desire for the post, was out of the question, as the Mayor would not want to name a member of the uniformed force of another department when a member of the uniformed force of the Police Department had failed to give public satisfaction.

Charles S. Whitman said last night that he had no knowledge of Commissioner Enright's resignation. Mr. Whitman said he had made no request to Governor Miller for Commissioner Enright's removal.

Mayor Hylan and Police Commissioner Enright, it is asserted, will have their choice, when they appear before the Grand Jury today, of promising full compliance with the request for detectives to assist in the Whitman investigation or of having their refusal submitted to Governor Miller, accompanied by charges that they have violated their oaths of office. Both officials are subject to removal by the Governor.

The matter will be dropped, it is stated by those in authority, if the two officials make a quick retreat and promise the Grand Jury and District Attorney to supply the assistance which is deemed necessary.

"I expect that the detectives that I want will be furnished after today," ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, Special Prosecutor in charge of the inquiry, said yesterday. "If they are not, they will be by the end of the week."

If Mayor Hylan expresses willingness to provide the aid sought by the Grand Jury and the District Attorney, he will be asked to abrogate, so far as it affects the Whitman inquiry, the police rule which provides that each member of the Police Department must make a full report to the Department if he is questioned by a member of the District Attorney's office on any matter which may result in the indictment of a policeman. This rule was one of those supposed to be aimed at Captain Costigan when he was summoned to the District Attorney's office about a year ago and questioned about Commissioner Enright's management of the department.

Assert Rule Is Illegal.

A refusal to abrogate this rule, it was said yesterday, would be looked on as equivalent to a refusal to furnish assistance and would be regarded as grounds on which to appeal to the Supreme Court or to the Governor. The investigators have been advised that the rule is illegal, as a scheme to coerce subordinates into obstructing justice by informing possible defendants of steps taken against them. It was described yesterday as an order to the police to "tip" suspects of certain classes that they were suspected.

Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien and Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, who advised Mayor Hylan regarding his course yesterday, refused to discuss the subject, but it is believed that the Mayor will accept the opportunity for an amicable agreement with the Grand Jury.

While a continued refusal to furnish police assistance might put the Mayor in a false position and compel him to make an explanation to the Governor, such a refusal would be extremely unwelcome to the Whitman investigators. The only course left, after the public statements they have made on the subject, would be an appeal to the Governor. Mr. Whitman indicated yesterday that he would take this action promptly, if the Mayor was recalcitrant. While this course was considered unavoidable, it was regarded as bad strategy, because it would bring the issue against the Mayor up as a question of construing a law, before a prima facie case had been made out showing widespread corruption in any city department.

Ex-Governor Whitman appeared to be convinced that a short period of investigation would be sufficient to place evidence on record justifying the Robinson-Steinberg charges of widespread corruption and inefficiency in municipal offices.

Other departments than the police are already under investigation, Mr. Whitman said, though the ex-Governor and his four assistants are concentrating their efforts to uncover alleged grafting and improper practices in the Police Department.

On Trail of Graft.

The principal subjects of investigation so far have been the alleged acceptances of gratuities for doing official duty, the charge on which Captain William A. Bailey was indicted. Mr. Whitman's assistants were at work yesterday investigating charges that certain policemen had made a practice of taking fees for returning stolen automobiles. The books of the Motorcycle Squad were taken from Police Headquarters under subpoena on Saturday.

Among the charges which have been made is that policemen in some instances have co-operated with automobile thieves and that automobiles have been stolen not to be resold, but to be held till the owners paid fees for their recovery. Furs, jewelry, silks and other valuable lines of plunder are alleged to have been held by certain detectives after recovery from the thieves until the owners agreed to make payments for their recovery. One of the Whitman investigators said:

"We have been surprised by the frank statements from many of the policemen who have been questioned. Some of them, who appeared to be honest men, were unaware that there was any law forbidding them to accept gratuities. Many of them did their duty conscientiously without being rewarded, but were glad to accept presents from the men benefited by their police activity. For instance, if a couple of detectives recovered stolen property worth many thousands of dollars for a man, he feels grateful to them and is very likely to find some way of making a present to them, large or small. This is fairly innocent in itself, but it is forbidden by law, because of the bad consequences sure to flow from it.

"In the first place, the initiative was with the merchant who made the present. Today it has developed so that certain policemen take the initiative and demand the presents and get them in advance. The far investigation proved that there were at least twenty policemen in one group who forced merchants to pay them to transform negligent work into highly efficient police action."

Seven distinct lines of investigation of police activities have already been opened up, according to Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, who is co-operating with Mr. Whitman.

ATTEMPTS TO TAKE LIFE OF EX-SHERIFF OF MINGO

Man Leveled Revolver on Him at Station, but He Struck It Aside as It Was Discharged.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Jan. 16.—An unsuccessful attempt to assassinate G. T. Blankenship, former Sheriff of Mingo County, was made at Bluefield today at noon, when an unidentified man pushed his way to the former Sheriff's side and leveled a pistol at him. Blankenship struck his assailant's arm just as the gun was discharged. The shot missed him, but his face was badly cut by the barrel of the weapon.

The attack occurred at the Norfolk & Western Railway station just as Blankenship was to board a train for Matewan. In the confusion which followed Blankenship's assailant escaped. The former Sheriff returned to Matewan this afternoon and tonight said he was not seriously hurt.

Blankenship said he could ascribe no motive for the attack. His term of office as Sheriff of Mingo County expired Jan. 1.

Military law, proclaimed Nov. 26 last, after Mingo County had been declared in a state of "insurrection" by Governor Cornwell, will be lifted tomorrow, Colonel Herman Hall, commanding the Federal troops here, said tonight. The statement was made along with the announcement that Company I, stationed at Borderland, in the heart of the coal strike district, would entrain for Camp Sherman at the same time. The work of the troops will be taken over by the State Police.

Company I will be the second to leave the strike area within two days. Company C, formerly held in reserve in Williamson, having left yesterday.

Williamson presented today a livelier appearance than it has at any time since the soldiers established headquarters here. Many persons interested in the Matewan battle trials scheduled in Circuit Court for Jan. 19 began to arrive yesterday and continued to come in the town today.

CAUGHT IN A DUMBWAITER

Alleged Burglar Trapped in Effort to Escape—Two Girls Capture a Suspect.

Carlos Gunther of 32 Vancortlandt Avenue, Yonkers, cashier of the Manhattan Brass Company, 332 East Twenty-eighth Street, who was shot by auto bandits on Saturday and robbed of a $5,800 payroll, was said to be improving last night at Bellevue Hospital. Gunther was able to give the police a more accurate description of his three assailants. This and the reported number of the car in which the four highwaymen fled were the clues on which detectives worked.

In the Washington Heights Court John Robinson, 17, who said he lived at 31 Shirly Street, Roxbury, Mass., was held in $5,000 bail on a charge of burglary in the apartment of Herman Jacobson, 260 West 117th Street, and in $1,000 on a charge of carrying a revolver. Robinson was arrested Sunday morning crouched on a dumbwaiter, which had "stuck in the shaft" between the first floor and the basement of the apartment house. Edward Casserly, a tenant in the same apartment, saw a man emerging from a window of Jacobson's apartment. The intruder also saw Casserly and dodged back into the room. When the policeman came he and Casserly found a coat and shoes in the court of the building and then traced Robinson to the dumbwaiter. He had neither coat nor shoes. The revolver taken from Robinson contained "dum-dum" bullets.

Magistrate Simms in Jefferson Market Court praised the courage of Miss Agnes Meyerholtz, 19, of 494 West 158th Street, and Miss Frances Winney, 18, of 459 West Twenty-fourth Street, both students in the Pratt Institute, who had pursued and captured an alleged pickpocket. Miss Meyerholtz told the Magistrate that she had felt a hand in her pocket at Thirty-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue and followed a running man and held him until Policeman McNamara arrived. The prisoner said he was Emanuel Kawler, 27, of 163 West Thirty-fourth Street. He was held in $3,500 bail.

Another robbery, news of which had been suppressed by the police, became public yesterday when Abraham Suderove, a jeweler at 49 Maiden Lane, who lives at 884 Riverside Drive, near 160th Street, failed to recover jewelry and clothing valued at $1,000 stolen on Tuesday. Mr. Suderove suspected a negro maid.

Detectives of the 104th Street Station arrested three men in an auto containing a quantity of alcohol. The police said the auto had been stolen from Selma Berger of 68 East Ninety-sixth Street. The prisoners, William Schfrin, 33, of 126 East Ninety-fourth Street; Joseph Rosenfeld, 21, of 131 Eldridge Street, chauffeurs, and Morris Stattmore, 37, garage owner, 228 East 112th Street, were charged with grand larceny.

Frank Bond, a chauffeur of 170 West End Avenue, was held in $1,000 bail in Washington Heights Court on a charge of homicide, following the death of Edward Markle, 33, of 205 East Fifty-eighth Street, after a sidewalk brawl. The men had been drinking in a saloon downtown and later went to 507 West 145th Street to visit friends. When they got out of the car a dispute arose and Bond knocked Markle down. Dr. Casson said Markle died of shock. Both men were married, and each has two children.

Fifteen men and women returning home from a Greenwich Village party early yesterday were held-up on Greenwich Avenue near Eighth Street. The vigorous resistance of the men put the thieves to flight, but Policeman Connelly halted them with his revolver. The prisoners said they were Aloysius O. Kane, 20, bell boy, 186 South Ninth Street, Brooklyn; John Foster, 24, teamster, 506 West Fiftieth Street; John Keddy, 27, driver, 73 Gansevoort Street, and James Bamberger, 23, porter, 549 Hudson Street.

Mrs. Zippa Macarofsky, 70 years old, returned to her apartment last night at 1,767 Prospect Place and met a man running from her rooms, who knocked her down. Tenants pursued the man and held him until a policeman appeared. The prisoner said he was Irving Eilander.

SAW KILLING OF BROKER.

Man Is Held in Montreal as Witness to Holland's Death.

MONTREAL, Jan. 16.—John F. Coffey, an eye-witness to the shooting here last Friday of William Holland, stockbroker, by Major "Bob" Griffith, who claimed he was mesmerized by his victim, was arrested today and held as a material witness.

Friday morning, Coffey said, he went to Holland's office with Griffith, who was "shown the door." Later, after having luncheon, they returned.

Griffith, he declared, opened the door of the office, and after a few words with Holland shot him. Griffith then closed the door and both of them fled to the street. The shot was fired from the hall, he said, as Griffith did not enter the office.

Would Require Candidates for Bishop to Be American Born and Announce Their Views.

WANTS CHURCH LIBERALIZED

He Would Abolish Divorce Canon and Communion Cup and Revise the Prayer Book.

The Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant yesterday proposed a platform for candidates for the bishopric of the Episcopal diocese of New York. Dr. Grant, Rector of the Church of the Ascension, criticised the "campaign" to fill the post of the late Bishop Burch, asserting he would rather have Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, brought in to run the election of a bishop than to have it "run the way it is now." He explained that everything was being done in such a quiet, gentlemanly fashion, no one knew the positions of candidates.

In urging that those who desire to become Bishop present themselves upon platforms as definite as those of political candidates, Dr. Grant, who had chosen for the text of his sermon "The Election of a Bishop," presented such a document, saying he believed its adoption by the candidates would "instantly give a new mental happiness to thousands of clergymen." The pastor's platform, and the sermon in which he supported it, were arguments for freer formularies and the liberalizing of the priesthood. In the sermon he pleaded for emancipation of clergymen from financial duties and responsibilities and begged that the formularies of the church express the honest opinion of liberal clergymen who "in private conversation express little use for the creeds of the church."

The suggested platform for Bishops would wipe out the present canon against remarriage of a divorced person and that requiring the use of a common cup at Holy Communion.

The proposed platform follows:

A Bishop's Platform.

1. I will vote to put the Apostles' and Nicene Creeds in the back of the Prayer Book with the Athanasian Creed, and the thirty-nine Articles, and not require them as a part of the morning and evening prayer or communion service.

2. I advise a further revision of the Prayer Book that would not ask questions in the baptism service that are now asked—a belief in the Articles of the Christian Faith, as contained in the Apostles' Creed, which no mature and educated person today can assent to without stultifying reservations, and no clergyman can ask without mental mortification. In fact, I believe there should be a revision of the Prayer Book to take out of it the attitude of ignorance toward natural science and toward social and political organizations that are commonplaces today.

3. I will work to bring about a proportional representation in general convention.

4. I stand upon a social and economic platform for the Church at least as broad and progressive as that announced in the recent English Lambeth Conference or the output of the Methodist Church and of the Catholic Church.

5. I promise to advise in my pastoral letter and to attempt to organize the diocese and the parishes so that the weight of financial management shall not be placed upon the clergy, untrained in business methods, but upon business men. The Financial Committee in each parish and the Financial Committee of the diocese should take charge of their respective budget requirements and secure funds as they would for any other purpose they considered important, without asking the initiative or co-operation of the clergy.

6. I regret that if elected I shall have to live in a $300,000 house, and have to conduct services in a $15,000,000 Cathedral. The interest charges, to say nothing about up-keep, will amount to nearly $1,000,000 a year.

7. I will approve of no Church legislation that contravenes or tends to undermine the law of the land, as, for instance, in the matter of marriage and divorce. And I will urge in all Church usages (even in the sacraments) obedience to modern sanitary codes.

A Possible Reference to Dr. Manning.

Dr. Grant did not refer by name to any of the three most prominently mentioned for the office—the Rev. Drs. William T. Manning of Trinity, Charles Lewis Slattery of Grace Church and Earnest M. Stires of St. Thomas's. He did, however, preach at length against the selection of a man not born in America. Many who heard him believed he referred to Dr. Manning, who was born in Northampton, England, when he said:

"The point of view of an English Churchman today is not and cannot readily be that of an American Churchman. There is danger in a loss of democratic organization and outlook in electing as Bishop of New York any one whose personal traditions are not grounded at least in American birth."

The clergyman referred to newspaper discussions of the money-raising qualifications of those mentioned as Bishop Burch's successor, in the light of the millions needed to complete the nave of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. He said there were more important qualifications, "not to say more important ecclesiastical chorses," pointing out that already there were churches that could be filled and describing the present problem as one of justifying tax exemption of great properties and bringing about 100 per cent. adaptation of church plants to modern needs.

Turning to a discussion of liberalism, Dr. Grant said:

"Thousands of clergymen would welcome freer formularies. They entered the priesthood or ministry stimulated by the adolescent idealism of self-improvement and human service. The gateway of intellectual belief into the ministry was narrow, but their Church authorities almost guaranteed the truth of the debatable doctrines. So these young men accepted dubious beliefs, treating them as 'ancient historical monuments not to be destroyed'; or they allegorized them; or they attenuated them by some form of philosophy which proves that black is white, or they secured mental peace by claiming the rights of suspended judgment, while about some theological shin of belief they were frankly humorous and said, 'How should I know?'

"I have associated for thirty years with clergymen who called themselves liberal. In their private conversation they express little use for the creeds of the Church. Why not have the formularies of the Church express their honest opinion?

"In America, churches are mostly supported by pew-rents or by voluntary contributions. Under this system responsibility for income is largely put up to the clergy. This is unfortunate. Clergymen are not business men. Very few of them should keep out of banks. A decidedly different bank leads them to the Church. Even the Apostles found finance inappropriate and chose deacons to distribute benevolent funds. The extraordinary ability and energy of American business men should be at the service of our churches. Too many ministers feel like salesmen on a commission basis. If clergymen wanted to be businessmen they should give all their time to Wall Street and expect correspondingly large incomes."

ARREST IN NURSE MURDER.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 16.—Naval Academy authorities tonight caused the arrest in this city of Henry A. Brown, colored, a deserter from the navy in connection with the murder Friday night of Miss Harriet Kavanaugh, a nurse at the Navy Hospital, Annapolis.

He admits having been a patient in the academy hospital nearly a year ago, but denies that he ever saw Miss Kavanaugh during that period. Government agents assert that Brown was seen skulking near the scene of the murder a short time before the crime. The prisoner maintains that he had not been out of Baltimore for nearly a month. When arrested, he was still attired in a navy uniform. He was a mess attendant in the navy.

Brown was locked up and early tomorrow morning a Naval Academy official will take him back to the "brig" at Annapolis.

Brown's arrest followed a visit to police headquarters of Special Agent Sadnsbury of the Department of Justice and Lieutenant Smith, who made the request that the negro be picked up if found in Baltimore. The negro was found on Pennsylvania Avenue near a police station. When "grilled" at the station he admitted he had deserted the Cumberland when refused a furlough.

NEURITIS KILLED MRS. BRUHN

Medical Examiner After Autopsy Says She Was Not a Poison Victim.

The death of Mrs. Catherine Bruhn of 9,737 105th Street, Ozone Park, Queens, who died in St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, last Wednesday, was due to chronic neuritis, according to an autopsy performed yesterday by Medical Examiner Howard W. Nell. The autopsy was made because the police said that Mrs. Carl Voss, a neighbor, had suggested that Mrs. Bruhn might have been poisoned.

Although Dr. Nell's statement was accepted as disposing of the likelihood of any inquiry, chemical analysis will be made today at a laboratory. Mrs. Voss told reporters that she had made the poison suggestion because of the strange symptoms exhibited by Mrs. Bruhn when she was taken sick several hours before her death. Mrs. Bruhn was taken sick in the Voss home, where she had frequently presided at meetings of a small group of spiritualists.

MEXICAN ARMY SCANDAL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—A scandal in the Mexican War Department threatens to involve a number of military chiefs. An office has been discovered where false service papers were issued and sold to officers, to be used to prove actual service.

More than 300 officers now in the army are suspected of holding their rank on the evidence of false papers. The signatures of Presidents from Diaz to Carranza have been forged. The office had a complete set of dies and embossed War Department paper. Many service papers have false signatures of military chiefs now in command. These signatures were copied from a book containing those of all the military leaders which was presented to Carranza when he was President.

Two of the prisoners captured by the police are employes of the War Department, one being the head of a bureau.

The War Department has ordered the immediate revision of the service records of all officers.

WED BEFORE DYING FATHER.

Son and Daughter, in Double Ceremony, Meet Parent's Wishes.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Jan. 16.—When physicians attending him yesterday told P. L. Sarokin, a prosperous business man of this place, he might not live twenty-four hours, he expressed the wish to see his daughter and son married before he died. He sent word to his son, Max, an insurance broker at 400 Lewis Street, Union Hill, who was soon to marry Miss Ruth Plagoff of 215 Shippen Street, Weehawken Heights, and his daughter, Bertha, telephoned her fiancé, George Miller, a lawyer of this place.

Max and his fiancée came here by auto, reaching the house shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. Arrangements had been made for the double ceremony and the minister was at hand.

The couples gathered about the bedside of the dying man, who remained conscious during the ceremony. In fact he appeared so much better when the marriages were performed that the physicians said today he might survive several days.

Knocked Down, Badly Hurt by Auto

Matthew McCarthy, 49 years old, a retired fireman of 701 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, is in Bellevue Hospital in a critical condition suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, fractures of several ribs and lacerations of the right side of the head and face, received last night when he was run down at Third Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street by an automobile. He was found unconscious in the street and was taken to the hospital in a taxicab. The police were unable to get a description of the automobile.

Hold Service for Late Bishop Burch.

A memorial service was held last evening in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, West New Brighton, Staten Island, for Bishop Charles Sumner Burch, who died Dec. 30, last. The church, which is the largest of the Episcopal faith on the island, was crowded and the rectors of all the Episcopal parishes on the island were in the chancel. The preacher was the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Church, Manhattan.

Representatives of Many Nations Honor His Memory at Gathering in Washington.

HEAR OF MEMORIAL PLAN

Painting of General Also to Be Presented to Government by the Southern Society.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Representatives from many nations assembled tonight in the Hall of the Americas, Pan-American Union Building, to pay tribute to the memory of the late Major Gen. William C. Gorgas, former Surgeon General of the United States Army. Diplomats, prominent army and navy officers, members of Congress and other officials attended the exercises, which were held under the auspices of the Southern Society of Washington, of which General Gorgas was a member and former President.

The Ambassador of France, Major Gen. H. K. Bethell, Military Attaché of the British Embassy, representing the British Ambassador; the Ambassador of Peru, the Ministers of Cuba and Ecuador, the Chargé d'Affaires of Panama, the Secretaries of War and Navy, Dr. L. S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan-American Union; Major Gen. Peter Charris, Adjutant General U. S. A., and General Clarence J. Owens, Past President of the Southern Society, were the speakers. Cablegrams of tribute to General Gorgas were read from the residents of Uruguay and Costa Rica and from the Government of Colombia.

Congress will be asked to make appropriation for a suitable memorial to General Gorgas to be placed in this city, it was announced; and further tribute will be paid to the former Surgeon General by the presentation of a painting of him to the Government by the Southern Society, to be placed in the library of the Surgeon General's office.

"Gorgas honored the United States of America, but his fame and his work now belong to the world," declared the Minister of Cuba, Dr. Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, in his speech of tribute.

After speaking of the sanitary work done by General Gorgas in Ecuador, the Minister from that country, Señor Rafael H. Elizalde, said: "He came among us with outstretched hand and purity of purpose, winning our hearts. We are proud to owe a great national debt to him."

The Ambassador of Peru, Señor Federico A. Pezet, spoke of the way in which from 1884 to 1889 he "saw men arrive from France, full of energy, impregnated with the national trait of a courage that knows no fear, with a pride of nation and race, arrive one day to become stricken the next and but a few days later to be laid in their resting places. The scourge of the tropics more than any other cause served to defeat the French in their attempts to construct the canal. The failure of France was the incentive that made possible the victory of America." While the work of General Gorgas in Cuba had been noteworthy, said the Ambassador, it was in Panama that he reached the pinnacle of greatness.

The Chargé d'Affaires of Panama, Señor J. E. Lefevre, in his remarks said: "Although we are earnestly endeavoring further to honor the memory of our illustrious friend by the establishment of the Gorgas Tropical Institute for Research at Panama, we are doing it as a national tribute."

Major Bethell of the British Embassy said of the services of General Gorgas: "They were not limited to a nation; they were given to mankind. To us who are British they were of peculiar value, for we have many tropical possessions which present difficulties of health maintenance not dissimilar to those he faced and conquered in Panama."

Dr. Rowe of the Pan-American Union declared that "General Gorgas was, in the highest sence, a typical American. I use the word American in its broadest continental connotation, for, if the test of citizenship is service to the community, General Gorgas deserves to be regarded as a citizen of the American continent."

250 GREET LIEUT. FARRELL.

Lieutenant Stephen A. Farrell, the airman, and his wife were the guests of the Brooklyn Eastern District Turn Verein last night at a reception in the clubrooms at Bushwick Parkway and Gates Avenue, Brooklyn. About 250 of the aeronauts's neighbors were there.

A gold watch, suitably inscribed, was presented to Lieutenant Farrell by Congressman David J. O'Connell, while a big basket of roses and a green-gold mesh bag were given to Mrs. Farrell. Commissioner of Contracts Francis P. Bent making the presentation.

In a brief response Lieutenant Farrell recounted the story of the experiences of himself and Lieutenants Hinton and Kloor. He admitted with a laugh that he had "prayed a bit on the third day" of their expedition. The chief worry of the lost balloonists, he added, was about their families and friends back home.

Nurse, Tired of Life, Takes Poison.

Anna Murphy, 23 years old, a trained nurse, of 515 West 134th Street, who was taken to Harlem Hospital last night in a critical condition, told Dr. Matthew Giorgi that she had swallowed thirty-five grains of bichloride of mercury with suicidal intent. She said she was disgusted with life. Miss Murphy was found unconscious by her cousin, Mrs. McNiff, at 288 St. Nicholas Avenue, whose guest she was at dinner.

solution of the problem of reparation does not consist in accord with Germany, but in accord between France and her allies, particularly between France and Great Britain, and that it is better to reduce our claims on condition that they are guaranteed by a definite contract than to seek more important payments in the distant future and with our own strength alone.

"The basis of this method was established at San Remo where the Allies agreed that violations of her engagements by Germany would be followed by suitable penalties, namely, prolonged or extended occupation of the territories forming part of the Reich.

"This method received practical application at Spa in the agreements regarding coal and disarmament which have been mainly fulfilled. The long conversations which have since taken place between France and England can be thus summed up so far as France's part is concerned: 'We wish to do with regard to reparations what we did at Spa for coal and disarmament.' England has consented to this policy. She has made only one condition—that the German indemnity be fixed at an acceptable figure.

"The French doctrine is that if this method of prior accord with the Allies is not accepted it will be necessary to go to the logical extreme of the contrary method, and this means revision of the treaty by force. The policy at present followed does not renounce the use of force, if need be, for the execution of the treaty, but it would be applied with our allies at our side and after all other means of settlement had been exhausted.

"If our allies are not with us the treaty, which is based upon their cooperation, will no longer exist. It will be necessary to impose a new one upon Germany, who may find encouragement to resist us among those who will remain our helpers if we will follow a wise policy."

Briand Sure Harding Is Pro-French.

PARIS, Jan. 16 (Associated Press).—"It is not 'the great Cabinet,' but it is a great Cabinet I have formed," said Premier Briand this evening. "My Ministers will be busy men looking after France's internal affairs. We have confidence that the American Administration will look after its own affairs. It may be Republican, it may be Democratic—it matters little; it is always pro-French, I am sure. Please tell them that in America.

"Those who have been in France for many years understand that we are not a militarist nation. We have the warmest desire to be on friendly footing with the British and American nations, but there is a compact, signed at Versailles, which must be fulfilled. I trust that in the fulfillment of that compact we shall not come in contest with our friends.

"My Ministry will make its bow in the Chamber Tuesday. It may be that a representative of France will meet the British and Italian delegates the next day. I have asked for no postponement. France will meet the foreign delegates and discuss questions of international interest as it does; were no Ministerial crisis in France."

VICTIM OF NERVOUS DISEASE

Returned but a Few Days Ago From Two Years in a Sanitarium.

Mrs. Ella E. Berentsen, wife of Richard R. Berentsen, an executive of the Smith Carpet Company, disappeared Saturday night from her home at 239 Primrose Avenue, in the Chester Hill section of Mount Vernon, in a fit of nervous derangement. Mr. Berentsen reported to the police yesterday. Detectives from Police Headquarters here are aiding in the search, acting on Mr. Berentsen's belief that she came to this city.

Mrs. Berentsen had returned to her Mount Vernon home only a few days ago from a sanitarium in Stamford, Conn., where for two years she had been receiving treatment for a nervous disease. On Saturday night she bade her husband good night at 9 o'clock and went upstairs. About thirty minutes later Mr. Berentsen, looking into her room to see whether she was asleep, discovered that she was missing. A search of the house disclosed that she had packed a brown Gladstone bag with some of her belongings and, apparently, had left the house by a back stairway.

When she left Mrs. Berentsen was wearing a brown velvet evening gown, trimmed with white lace, a white wool sweater, a sealskin coat trimmed with beaver, and a large hat. Mr. Berentsen described her as 41 years old, 5 feet 6 inches in height and 165 pounds in weight, with brown eyes and a plump face.

Mr. Berentsen said that his wife had taken very little money with her, a circumstance that led him to communicate with several of her friends, in the hope that she might have gone to the home of one of them. He said that she was known at several large hotels in this city and would have been able to obtain accommodations at any of them. This is the chief reason for his belief that she had come to New York.

IRON WORKERS MAY STRIKE.

Building Here Will Be Tied Up if 10,000 Go Out.

Ten thousand iron workers in this city are likely to be called out on strike this week unless there is a speedy settlement of the differences between the workers and employers, according to Abraham Vosk, business agent of the Inside Iron Workers' Union. He said that the question of calling a strike had been left with the Joint Board of the Inside Iron Workers' Unions. Twenty-one hundred workers were locked out last week by the Allied Building Metal Industries.

"A general strike of the inside iron workers," Vosk said yesterday, "would involve 10,000 workers and would tie up all steel and iron material for buildings in this city, thus eventually tying up building operations here. In case the Joint Board orders a strike it will be for the forty-four-hour week.

EXPLAIN TURK SUCCESSES.

Greeks Say Weather Conditions Were Unfavorable to Them.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 16.—Both the Turkish Nationalists and the Greeks are claiming victory in the fighting in the Brussa sector of Asia Minor.

It is maintained here that the setbacks the Greeks have suffered are not due to bad morale among their troops or inefficiency by the recently installed Greek officers, but to the fact that the Turks have used picked troops and that weather conditions have been unfavorable to the Greeks, as the mountains are covered with snow.

No Bolsheviki, it is understood, are fighting in the Turkish ranks against the Greeks.

According to a Turkish Nationalist communication dated last Friday, the Greek offensive in the Eskishehr region has been stopped. It says the Greek troops yielded along the entire front under the pressure of the Turks, and that the retreat of the Greeks has been disorderly and costly, one entire division having been destroyed.

In expectation of an intensified Greek offensive under direct command of King Constantine, the Turks are pouring reserves into the Brussa and Smyrna fronts. The Government archives in Angora have been transferred to Sivas.

In case the Turkish front should break, the Christian population in the war zone, it is said, will be deported to Erzerum under pretense of military necessity.

REDS CONVERT REFUGEES.

Soviet Propagandists Active in Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 16.—Several hundred refugees have been converted to Bolshevism by Soviet propagandists here. The Communist Committee recently received substantial funds from the Bolshevist representative at Batoum to help these converts and for financing the Bolshevist movement, which, owing to dissatisfaction caused by the high cost of living and unemployment, appears to be growing.

A Nationalist transport has left for Odessa to repatriate the first group of Turkish prisoners of war in Russia, which numbers 500. These prisoners are reported to have been trained in Russian propaganda schools, conducted along Communist lines, with the object of spreading Bolshevism in Anatolia.

CARDINAL GIBBONS WALKS.

"I Am Beginning to Feel My Old Self Again," He Remarks.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—For the first time since his illness began Cardinal Gibbons was able today to walk, supported by Dr. Charles O'Donovan and Dr. Lewellys F. Barker, who have been in consultation upon his condition since his return from Union Mills.

The Cardinal walked about his study for several minutes. Returning to his chair he turned to Dr. O'Donovan and remarked:

"Fine, I am beginning to feel my old self again."

Later in the day he was taken for a short visit to the Cathedral. Attended by the physicians, the Rev. Albert B. Smith, his secretary, and the Rev. Edward Leonard, the Cardinal was wheeled down the middle aisle to the portico.

While gazing about he caught sight of the little son of Charles Connor, sexton of the Cathedral, who waved a chubby hand to attract his attention. The Cardinal caught the gesture and smilingly inclined his head in acknowledgment of the greeting.

ITALIAN MAYOR ARRESTED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Jan. 16.—Dr. Thamistocles Bonglachino, Mayor of Ferrara, was just starting off in high spirits for the Nationals Socialist Congress at Leghorn in company with Secretary General Zirardini of the local Labor Chamber when two detectives delivered an urgent request from the Chief of Police for an interview. Descending from the train, the Mayor and his companion hurried off in the motor car sent for their convenience, only to find themselves summarily declared under arrest on warrants charging them with complicity in four murders and thirteen more attempted murders during the riots in that city on Dec. 20.

Two bags full of documents were seized, and when the prisoners were searched each was found to be carrying a loaded revolver with extra ammunition.

M. Briand has assumed the difficult Premiership against his personal wishes, and this has created a great deal of public sentiment favorable to him. By the same token there is a great deal of criticism of former President Poincaré, who refused membership in the Cabinet unless he could be Premier or Minister of Finance with full power to negotiate on the indemnity. Poincaré is too much of a fire eater for President Millerand, and that is why he turned to M. Briand as the one man who could keep M. Poincaré out of the Premiership.

M. Poincaré's continual damnation of Germany and his preaching that the Allies should lay down the law and then enforce it with an army make a great appeal to the popular imagination, but M. Millerand places too much value on the co-operation of England to take a chance of losing it by precipitate action on the part of France.

In the Matin tomorrow M. Poincaré will explain his attitude. He writes that the great task before the new Government is that of straightening out the tangled finances of France and that reparation is an important part of this problem.

He argues that under French law the Minister of Finance cannot control the expenditures of other Ministers and is at the mercy of the Premier. He contends that the proper system is to have a Finance Minister who will be Premier and thus in control of the situation. He says he was asked to solve France's financial situation without power to control expenditures or to influence the indemnity negotiations. This he was unwilling to do.

Poincaré's Friends Still Hope.

M. Poincaré's friends still hope. They hope that even if M. Briand gets a vote of confidence on Tuesday he will soon show he cannot make Germany pay and that then the Chamber can turn to the former President of the Republic.

M. Briand has the support of the vast majority of the French newspapers. The extreme Nationalist newspapers support M. Poincaré for the Premiership. The Socialist press attacks M. Poincaré bitterly as wanting to start another war and therefore favor M. Briand, who is essentially a man of diplomacy. Many editorial writers agree that with M. Poincaré as Premier it would not be longer than two weeks before he would break with Mr. Lloyd George.

The Matin publishes an inspired statement saying M. Briand approves the reparation policy of President Millerand. The statement says:

"The principle of this policy is that

The present company owning the mine claims the stock was voided for non-payment. Estrada says that when the company found the mine was enormously rich it froze the original owner out. General opinion in Mexico favors the present company, and local papers criticize the court decision. It is even intimated that pressure was used on the judges. A local daily states that President Obregon has ordered an investigation of the case.

A number of small farmers in the State of Guanajuato have armed in protest against the distribution of lands in the Indian towns. The State government has ordered a suspension of distribution until a full investigation is made.

Reports of the serious condition of the health of President Obregon are false. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent spent Wednesday evening at the President's home, playing billiards, and found President Obregon in better shape than ever. The President is an example of a one-armed man overcoming difficulties, playing a better game of billiards with one arm than the average man with two. He uses a bridge, making runs of seven without much difficulty. Almost daily the President rides before breakfast and often walks from Chapultepec Palace, a distance of four miles. He generally works twelve hours a day. The chief difficulty in the President's health is laryngitis, which is common to natives of the coast State of Sonora. Dr. Orsonio, who made an examination of President Obregon last week, stated that the President was in perfect health, but had a tendency to overwork. He added that reports of bad health were absolutely wrong.

Samuel Gompers and other labor leaders were entertained by General Calles at luncheon this afternoon. Rafael Zubaran gave a luncheon in honor of a large party of visitors from San Francisco.

The Oliver Trading Company has made a contract with the Government to place in immediate service ten locomotives in order to relieve freight congestion. The situation of the railways is bad. Freight is congested in all parts of the Republic, owing to the run-down condition of rolling stock, and practically the entire equipment needs overhauling. Engines which survived the revolution make continuous runs without entering shops. Repairs are made while trains are made up.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—A step toward the contemplated return of the Mexican railways from Government control to private ownership has been taken by the Cabinet. At a conference of the Cabinet with President Obregon, it was ordered that a commission be appointed to investigate every phase of the railway problem.

It was said today that all the members of the Cabinet, as well as President Obregon, were agreed that the railways should be returned. Nevertheless, it was desired that all details should be worked out before devolution is started.

DUBLIN, Jan. 16.—The whole section of North Dublin was cordoned by soldiers and police last evening and today. The street railway service along the North Quay was suspended. The centre of the cordoned district includes Church Street and the place where the military were ambushed recently and North King Street, the scene of fierce fighting in the Easter rebellion.

A total area of a square mile is surrounded, and the biggest raid Dublin has yet experienced has been under way.

Only the military have been engaged inside the cordon and it is believed every house will be systematically searched, the raid lasting several days. Hundreds of soldiers are taking part, and field kitchens are providing them with food.

BELFAST, Jan. 16.—Crown forces on Saturday swept through with great thoroughness South Armagh, the scene recently of alleged Sinn Fein Activities. Troops and constabulary of the Ulster "specials" co-operated. Every road was under supervision.

More than 300 prisoners were taken in the various nets, but after a rigorous examination only forty persons were held in the military barracks.

CORK, Jan. 16.—Serious disorders followed the shooting here yesterday in which two detectives in plain clothes were wounded. The disorders occurred while a crowd was dispersing from a football match and parties of police were trying to clear the streets. Altogether twelve persons were wounded during the promiscuous firing, while Excise Officer Pring was killed by a stray shot from a passing lorry.

The excise officer had come to his home here for the week-end and was walking in the street with his brother and sister.

He opposed insurgent demands of radical insurgents at a meeting of the General Grievance Committee last night, and though he did not win his point definitely, neither did the other side, and when the meeting adjourned conditions were badly muddled.

John L. Lewis, International President of the United Mine Workers, was here, and it was intended that he should meet with the Pittston miners today, but the Pittston police have issued orders against a meeting of any kind within the city limits.

Some miners favor a strike tomorrow and others favor work. The former are called insurgent radicals. The latter are mostly English-speaking miners. A meeting was to have been held tomorrow night, at which time the representatives of the 10,000 miners would get a report of the meeting of their committee with President Lewis this afternoon. Since all meetings have been declared off, it is considered likely that work will be resumed. Lewis has declared against a strike. He left here tonight.

During the last week Joyce's life was threatened many times, but he showed no fear.

10 Houses Wrecked in Four Months.

Ten houses were dynamited here during the last ten months, nearly all owned by Italian-speaking men, and this is the first time that a resident of Mr. Joyce's prominence was placed in danger.

Three persons were sleeping in the house, and were thrown from their beds to the floor. The entire front of the store was blown out and the stairs leading to the bedrooms wrecked. Windows were broken throughout the house, and a large section of the stone foundation caved in. A near-by garage is badly damaged, and windows in the Pittston laundry and Greek Catholic Church are broken.

A patrol has been placed at the Joyce home. Mine foremen and others who have counseled against another strike have made appeals for police protection.

Besides the Pittston police, the entire troops of State police, located at Wyoming, are searching for the men who committed the crime. The valley's prominent residents are making insistent demands that some of the large force of Secret Service men now operating here against the brewers turn their attention to the strike and get the leaders.

Want to Get Union Charter.

The whole trouble has been caused because the 100 or more men of Local 14 of the United Mine Workers refuse to turn over their charter to the insurgents. The latter could obtain the charter by simply joining the local, but, it is said, this latter procedure will not be followed because Rinaldo Capalini, the insurgent leader, is not employed at No. 14 Colliery and could not become a member of the regular union.

He and Joyce were co-leaders of the Pittston strikers during the three months shut-down, but recently became enemies, each charging that the other had been bought by the Pennsylvania Coal Company. Capalini did receive $10,000 recently, but he claims it was for the loss of an arm in an accident in the Pennsylvania mines about fifteen years ago.

patient at the sanitarium for nervous diseases conducted here by Dr. Austin Fox Riggs. Great alarm was felt for her safety when she failed to return from a hike on which she started alone at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. It was feared she had slipped and fallen on one of the ice-covered mountain paths, and that she lay freezing and helpless at the base of some declivity.

Details of her experience were refused at the sanitarium after she returned, but Dr. Riggs announced that in the darkness and the fury of the snowstorm she had failed to see any of the parties of rescuers and had battled her way in unaided. He added that she had not suffered severely from her experiences. Dr. Riggs said Miss Thayer missed the main trail across the mountain and got lost. Messengers were dispatched to recall the searchers, who had intended to scour the trails all night.

The tall, athletic, blonde young woman was seen at about 11 o'clock in the morning by E. W. Lowery, the New York, New Haven & Hartford station agent, who watched her swinging along toward Monument Mountain, clad in a warm toque, a short, snug walking coat, a short skirt and sturdy boots. She had been so much improved during her sojourn at the sanitarium that a nurse who had been her constant companion had been dispensed with, and the sight of the girl alone, headed for a lonely mountain road, occasioned neither comment nor alarm.

It had been Miss Thayer's habit from the beginning of her improvement to walk along the mountain roads and trails. Sometimes she would go in the direction of Monument Mountain, and at other times she would choose Beartown Mountain, in the direction of the Ice Glen, or Rattlesnake Mountain, toward Lenox. She had been here six weeks, and the sight of her tall figure had become familiar. Dr. Riggs, whose institution is frequented by fashionable patients from Boston, New York and other places, was known to encourage her fondness for the open air and exercise, and even when she failed to return for luncheon there was no anxiety.

As the afternoon wore away and the intermittent snowflakes thickened to a heavy downfall, attendants at the Purinton Inn, adjoining the sanitarium and occupied at this season almost solely by its patients, sent word of their uneasiness to Dr. Riggs.

The physician communicated at once with Sheriff Seleno A. Noble, who sent the alarm through the town. Within an hour a number of posses had been organized, and the search was on. Dr. Riggs placed himself at the head of one group, while the Sheriff took charge of another. Still other divisions were made of the volunteers in order that the roads in the direction of each mountain might be examined.

When several hours' hunt had yielded no faint trace of the missing girl, still another posse was formed to hunt the banks of the Housatonic River.

New Man Acceptable to Hylan?

The unsaid statement was quoted by the New York City News Association as follows:

"I have been given to understand that the next Police Commissioner will be a man who has played no part in the conduct of the Police Department. He will be a man in whom the Mayor will have an absolute and abiding faith, and from what I am told will have free rein to make any and all changes deemed advisable for the good of the department—in other words, to do all in his power to give the greater city of New York the best police protection it has ever received."

Persistent reports of Commissioner Enright's coming resignation have been in circulation for several weeks and have not been checked by his denials and those of Mayor Hylan. On Christmas Eve announcement was made that Commissioner Enright had taken advantage of the law passed by the Legislature during his administration of the department permitting any member of the uniformed force who has served for six months as Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner to be pensioned at half the salary of the Chief Inspector. The order read:

"The following members of the force are relieved and dismissed from the police force and placed on the roll of the Police Pension Fund and are awarded the following pension:

"To take effect 12 M. Dec. 22, 1920.

"Lieutenant Richard E. Enright, 102d Precinct, at $3,750 per annum, in accordance with Chapter 651, Laws of 1918. Appointed Nov. 2, 1896."

The others mentioned in the order were two sergeants retired at their own request.

The foregoing order was recalled last night as an indication that Commissioner Enright, if he did not intend to resign at once, at least considered that his resignation was imminent.

Rumor Revived on Saturday.

The rumor of his resignation, which naturally was strong at the time the order became public, was revived on Saturday. Commissioner Enright, when asked then if it was true that he had resigned, parried the query by replying that the report was "exaggerated," like that of Mark Twain's death. Mayor Hylan made a direct denial of the report of Commissioner Enright's resignation.

Both Commissioner Enright and Mayor Hylan are under subpoena to appear today before the Whitman Grand Jury, which is investigating alleged corruption in city departments. It is known that the city officials generally look with some apprehension to this inquiry because of their respect for the ability of Mr. Whitman as an investigator.

District Attorney Swann's action in appointing Mr. Whitman, a Republican, to the post of Special Prosecutor in an investigation of the Democratic city administration is known to have aroused the resentment of the supporters of Mayor Hylan, which was apparent even before the Mayor and Commissioner Enright announced that they did not intend to help the inquiry.

In this connection, there has been considerable speculation concerning the purpose of the conferences Mayor Hylan had with William Randolph Hearst and Arthur Brisbane. There were two such conferences during the last week, one at City Hall and one at a luncheon at the Hotel Ritz-Carlton. The latter conformed Tammany sources that there was a likelihood of Mr. Murphy's retirement and that, although no definite decision had been reached, he might relinquish the leadership before the beginning of the city campaign next Fall. Mr. Murphy, who is at French Lick, Ind., is expected to return to New York City tomorrow.

Controlled Tammany Eighteen Years.

Mr. Murphy has held the leadership of Tammany more than eighteen years, and was said to be sincerely seeking a way to retire. Although there is some opposition to him among the Tammany district leaders, it was said that this had had no influence upon his proposed retirement and that, if he did retire, it would be voluntarily. Mr. Murphy was also said to foresee trouble in the city campaign and to wish to eliminate himself before that time to avoid the probability of figuring as one of the principal issues. In addition, he was said to have found the changing political conditions unsatisfactory and to feel that the problem of organizing the women voters, an important matter for Tammany, might be done better by a younger man.

Although professing ignorance of his reported trip to Europe, prominent Tammany men said they would not be surprised if the report were true and that Mr. Murphy would choose this method of withdrawing gradually rather than by an abrupt abdication.

Temporary Leader Likely.

It was said that if he should go to Europe and remain away during the campaign, he might leave behind him a temporary leader or a regency, just as Richard Croker did when he first went to Ireland. At that time, first John C. Sheehan and then John F. Carroll acted as leader in Mr. Croker's absence.

Any inference that a trip to Europe would mean that Mr. Murphy intended to take a permanent residence abroad, as Mr. Croker has done, was scouted by Tammany men.

Mr. Smith, who, it was said, could undoubtedly have the leadership if he wanted it, was reported to be unwilling to take it. Friends of the former Governor said his aspirations were more along the line of future public service and that he did not believe his defeat for re-election as Governor had ended his public career.

It was said to be the feeling of both Mr. Murphy and of the group of a dozen leaders, which make up the real governing body of Tammany, that the organization was facing a crisis and that a new policy must be adopted if the Tiger were to continue its dominance over the Democratic organization in New York City.

Need for New Methods Shown.

The decreasing Tammany pluralities in Manhattan, the increasing restiveness of Bronx and Brooklyn Democrats to Tammany control, and, above all, the advent of the woman voter, were said to have brought a realization to the Tammany leaders of the necessity of new methods. The problem of the women voters was said to have been particularly troublesome, and a special committee was named recently at a meeting of the Tammany Executive Committee to prepare a program.

Mr. Murphy has been leader of Tammany since September, 1902, and, though almost continually under fire from hostile critics, is considered by most Tammany men to have been fairly successful in his leadership. The most serious revolt against him was backed by Mayor George B. McClellan during his term as Mayor, but was unsuccessful. Since that time there has been discontent at times in the Fourteenth Street wigwam, but nothing seriously threatening.

Republican members has been named on the Senate Committee on Public Service. Three Democrats, as compared with four on last year's committee, are New York City men, possibly because all the Democrats in the Senate hail from the metropolis. The Chairman, Senator John Knight, comes from Arcade, N. Y., and a majority of the other Republican members come from small communities which have no traction problem.

The lone New York City Republican on the committee is William Duggan, an insurance man, who represents the Nineteenth Senate District, where he succeeded Edward J. Dowling, a Democrat. The other Republican members besides Senator Knight are Mortimer Y. Ferris of Ticonderoga, Caleb H. Baumes of Newburg, James L. Whitley of Rochester, William A. Carson of Rushville, Theodore Douglas Robinson of Mohawk, W. T. Thayer of Chateaugay, Frank L. Wiswall of Watervliet, Frederick W. Kavanaugh of Waterford and Clayton R. Lusk of Cortland.

In the Assembly, Frank L. Seaker of Gouverneur, St. Lawrence County, drew as a consolation prize the Chairmanship of the Railroads Committee, which will handle fare legislation in the lower house. Assemblyman Seaker was a candidate for Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, but was sidetracked for Assemblyman Joseph A. McGinnies of Chautauqua and had to be placated. Assemblyman McGinnies, in turn, had stepped aside to leave a clear track to the Speaker's rostrum for Assemblyman H. Edmund Machold of Jefferson, after a considerable McGinnies boom had gotten under way in Chautauqua and a number of other counties in Western New York.

Governor Miller has not as yet communicated his views on the traction question in New York City to the Legislature. He has said nothing to indicate that he is committed to higher fares. He made it clear during the campaign and soon after his election that he was keeping an open mind on the subject and seeking a solution that would do justice to all.

Assemblyman Jenks was the sponsor at last year's session of three higher fare, or as they were called, "service at cost" bills which, in the face of an active lobby in their favor, were defeated after some dangerous "jokers" had been discovered in them. Assemblyman Jenks states that the new bills will, with some modifications, follow the line of last year's.

One of these bills provided a plan for arriving at, or attempting to arrive at, through conferences between municipal authorities and traction companies finding themselves pinched under contractual 5-cent fare obligations, a "service at cost plus" agreement, the "service at cost plus" rate to be fixed after appraisal by a board composed of one representative of the city government, one of the railroad company and one member appointed by the Appellate Division of the district. Another bill provided for compulsory action by the Public Service Commission to order and fix the higher fare after appraisal in cases where after six months spent in such negotiations no agreement had been reached.

"The situation in New York City requires such immediate attention," said Assemblyman Jenks, "that in my opinion, public sentiment will compel acquiescence in the demand for higher fares, which are necessary to keep the companies solvent and the service going."

Mr. Jenks made it known that at the time when he introduces his traction bills he would introduce a bill providing for the suspension of increases in electric light and gas rates, filed by companies, pending a decision by the Public Service Commissions and the courts as to the reasonableness of the new rates.

GOVERNOR DELAYS PRIMARY MESSAGE

Foes of Nominating Conventions Force Him to Change Program.

SOCIALISTS DEEMED SAFE

Legislature Plans to Decide Lockwood Committee Powers This Week and Take Up Economy.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 16.—The Legislature faces its first really active week beginning tomorrow night, when both houses reconvene.

Governor Miller had planned to send in a special message asking the enactment of legislation repealing the direct primary system, but unlooked-for opposition that manifests growing strength is said to have changed his plan. The Governor is believed to desire the restoration of the party convention as the medium for nominating not only State, Congressional and judicial officers, but also those of county, city and town. However, he lacks the united support of Republican leaders, and this fact, coupled with the determination of the Democrats to fight such a measure, led to the delay in introducing his program.

There are three important questions which the legislative leaders plan to settle this week if possible. One is extending the life and powers of the Lockwood Housing Committee to allow it to continue its inquiry into building trade combinations and also to investigate banks and fire and life insurance companies. Senator Lockwood's proposal has brought to Albany a powerful lobby, which is said to have made inroads on the determination of some legislators that the inquiry shall continue with unlimited scope.

Governor Miller has withheld assurances that he would lend his support to the committee's request, but despite this Senator Lockwood declares he believes the Legislature will approve his proposal.

Continued antagonism will result in a request for a public hearing at which Senator Lockwood and Samuel Untermyer, counsel to the committee, believe they could show sufficient reasons to compel favorable action.

Expulsion of Socialists Unlikely.

On the Assembly side it is expected that the question of the fitness to sit

IMMIGRATION AGENCIES FOR LATIN AMERICA

Pan-American Labor Congress Adopts Plan Despite Opposition of Gompers.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16 (Associated Press).—Immigration agencies in all Latin-American countries for the collection and dissemination of information regarding labor conditions will be established under the terms of a resolution adopted by the Pan-American Federation of Labor Congress here yesterday. Delegates from the United States and Porto Rico opposed the idea, but were voted down in the first divided vote of the Congress.

The resolution, which was introduced by the Mexican delegation, called for the appointment of special labor envoys in each Pan-American country, but the Resolutions Committee reported it had amended the motion so that the Federation's executive officers would be named as information gatherers, it being planned by this means to eliminate the expense entailed by the carrying out of the original proposal.

When the amended motion was submitted an animated debate began, during which Samuel Gompers, President of the Congress, was compelled frequently to explain United States labor conditions.

Mr. Gompers asserted that upward of 1,500,000 immigrants were received in the United States each year, and that 15,000,000 persons in European countries were ready to come to America and were waiting for ships to bring them. He added a note of warning, saying that at present there were more than 2,000,000 unemployed in the United States. He reminded the Congress that the International Labor Office at Geneva had undertaken the investigation of immigration in every phase and would soon publish important findings on the subject.

After the Congress had remained in session until long after the appointed hour for closing, Mr. Gompers called for a vote and the original Mexican resolution was adopted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—A small group of Mexican workingmen paraded the streets this morning protesting against the meeting of the Pan American Congress of Labor Federations now being held. The marchers said they were against all forms of labor unions as they considered themselves true Bolsheviki.

The general opinion of laboring men is that the meetings between Gompers and the Mexican labor leaders have proved a failure, the main point being the difference of the Anglo-Saxon and Latin viewpoints, which is held to render impossible a satisfactory agreement.

WOULD-BE MAYORS WATCHING WHITMAN

Interested in Suggestion That He May Become the Anti-Tammany Candidate.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS COLD

Aspirants for the fusion nomination for Mayor have been watching with considerable concern the activity of ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman as Special Prosecutor in the investigation into alleged corruption in city departments. Although it is not definitely known that Mr. Whitman has aspirations for the anti-Tammany nomination for Mayor, friends of his have made the suggestion that the developments in his inquiry might make him the most available candidate, particularly if he should be able to discredit the administration of the Police Department and bring about a condition whereby the police situation would be one of the leading issues of the campaign.

The suggestion of Mr. Whitman as the possible anti-Tammany standard bearer in the city election has not been received with favor so far by either the Republican organization leaders or by those prominent in such organizations as the Citizens Union and the City Club, which have taken leading parts in bringing about fusion in past campaigns. Most of the leaders of the so-called independent element were said to be opposed to the selection of Mr. Whitman, but to believe that he was seeking to bring about a situation which might compel his nomination.

Whitman's Past Successes.

Those who believe that the investigation just begun by Mr. Whitman may result in his nomination for Mayor recalled that his political preferment in the past was obtained by just such methods. His election as District Attorney was brought about largely by his action as a City Magistrate in conducting raids on gambling houses over the heads of the police. The conviction of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, it was recalled, was the most spectacular event

FORD ASKS MILLER TO BAR JUSTICE PAGE

Attacks Bar Association for "Launching Cowardly Campaign Against Me"—"Will Fight to End."

Supreme Court Justice John Ford, who was re-elected last November, following endorsement by both the Republican and Democratic Parties, made public yesterday a letter to Governor Nathan L. Miller, protesting against a continuation of the practice by which the Justices of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court are permitted to make assignments to that body, and opposing the reassignment of Justice Alfred R. Page.

Justice Ford, who wrote Governor Miller before the latter took office, protesting against the method of assigning Supreme Court Justices to Special Terms by the Appellate Division, declared that the present system tended toward autocracy, and charged the present Justices of the Appellate Division with "arrogance." He asserted that the bar associations, which refused to endorse him for re-election, followed the lead of the Justices of the Appellate Division, who, he said, by failing to give him a Special Term assignment in his fourteenth year of service, gave the "high sign" for the campaign against him.

Accuses Justices of Usurpation.

In his letter to Governor Miller Justice Ford declared that the Justices of the Appellate Division had usurped power which the State Constitution did not give them. The letter, in part, follows:

January 14, 1921.

Hon. Nathan L. Miller,
Albany, N. Y.

Dear Governor Miller:

In your brief and rather non-committal reply, dated Dec. 20, to my letter of Nov. 27, you suggest that the records of the Constitutional Convention of 1894 would show broader power intended to be conferred upon the Justices of the Appellate Division than I ascribe to them. In my letter I flatly charged that the Constitution did not give them the right which they have usurped to prevent elected Justices of the Supreme Court from exercising the functions of their office.

enced in politics you will readily understand the game they were playing to drive me from the bench.

Incidentally they were pinning their tag of disapproval upon my back. It was the high sign for the launching of the cowardly campaign made against me in the bar associations.

In brief these seven appellate division justices have now reached such a height of arrogance that they not only virtually select their own successors but they even presume to dictate who shall be elected to the Supreme Court.

In brief, these seven appellate divi- matter what attitude you take, or whether the effort I intend to make in the Legislature to obtain relief from an intolerable condition is successful or not, my efforts shall not be relaxed.

There still remains an appeal to the courts for a definition of the power of the appellate division justices under the Constitution. Failing in that, there is the greatest tribunal of all whose voice is the voice of God.

For the courts are the people's courts—all of them—high or low. These presumptuous groups and cliques who seek to control them will have their little day, but sooner or later they will be overwhelmed by the swelling tide of popular resentment.

There is of course nothing confidential about this letter.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN FORD.

Quotes Elihu Root.

In a memorandum accompanying the letter, Justice Ford quoted Elihu Root as follows in a speech at the Constitutional Convention of 1894 in regard to the objection to granting the Appellate Divisions power to make assignments:

"They probably will do, as the General Terms have always done, exercise the same powers, make rules and let the Justices arrange the work to suit themselves."

John Proctor Clarke, Presiding Justice of the Appellate Division, said last night at his home, 1 West Eighty-first Street, that he did not care to make any comment upon Justice Ford's letter.

FIVE IN FAMILY MURDERED.

PAMPLICO, S. C., Jan. 16.—Discovery today of two additional bodies disclosed that five members of the Bigham family, living near here, were shot to death yesterday. Bodies of three members of the family, one of the most prominent in this section of South Carolina, were found yesterday.

Authorities here spent the whole day in an attempt to solve the mystery of the murders, but tonight said they had found no solution. They said they were working on the clue afforded by a revolver found in the hand of L. S. Bigham, aged 40, head of the family, and one of the victims.

The body of Mrs. L. S. Bigham, aged 70, mother of the head of the family, was found in the yard of the Bigham home, a bullet wound in her head. The body of Mrs. Marjorie Black, aged 35, was found in her room on the second floor of the Bigham home, also with a bullet hole in her head. The body of Mrs. Black's 9-year-old adopted son was found near the back of the house, his forehead having been pierced by a bullet fired at close range, while another

Carlos Gunther of 32 Vancortlandt Avenue, Yonkers, cashier of the Manhattan Brass Company, 332 East Twenty-eighth Street, who was shot by auto bandits on Saturday and robbed of a $5,800 payroll, was said to be improving last night at Bellevue Hospital. Gunther was able to give the police a more accurate description of his three assailants. This and the reported number of the car in which the four highwaymen fled were the clues on which detectives worked.

In the Washington Heights Court John Robinson, 17, who said he lived at 31 Shirly Street, Roxbury, Mass., was held in $5,000 bail on a charge of burglary in the apartment of Herman Jacobson, 260 West 117th Street, and in $1,000 on a charge of carrying a revolver. Robinson was arrested Sunday morning, crouched on a dumbwaiter, which had "stuck in the shaft" between the first floor and the basement of the apartment house. Edward Casserly, a tenant in the same apartment, saw a man emerging from a window of Jacobson's apartment. The intruder also saw Casserly and dodged back into the room. When the policeman came he and Casserly found a coat and shoes in the court of the building and then traced Robinson to the dumbwaiter. He had neither coat nor shoes. The revolver taken from Robinson contained "dum-dum" bullets.

Magistrate Simms in Jefferson Market Court praised the courage of Miss Agnes Meyerholtz, 19, of 494 West 158th Street, and Miss Frances Winney, 18, of 459 West Twenty-fourth Street, both students in the Pratt Institute, who had pursued and captured an alleged pickpocket. Miss Meyerholtz told the Magistrate that she had felt a hand in her pocket at Thirty-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue and followed a running man and held him until Policeman McNamara arrived. The prisoner said he was Emanuel Kawler, 27, of 163 West Thirty-fourth Street. He was held in $3,500 bail.

A CHURCH PLATFORM

He Would Abolish Divorce Canon and Communion Cup and Revise the Prayer Book.

The Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant yesterday proposed a platform for candidates for the bishopric of the Episcopal diocese of New York. Dr. Grant, Rector of the Church of the Ascension, criticised the "campaign" to fill the post of the late Bishop Burch, asserting he would rather have Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, brought in to run the election of a bishop than to have it "run the way it is now." He explained that everything was being done in such a quiet, gentlemanly fashion, no one knew the positions of candidates.

In urging that those who desire to become Bishop present themselves upon platforms as definite as those of political candidates, Dr. Grant, who had chosen for the text of his sermon "The Election of a Bishop," presented such a document, saying he believed its adoption by the candidates would "instantly give a new mental happiness to thousands of clergymen." The pastor's platform, and the sermon in which he supported it, were arguments for freer formularies and the liberalizing of the priesthood. In the sermon he pleaded for emancipation of clergymen from financial duties and responsibilities and begged that the formularies of the church express the honest opinion of liberal clergymen who "in private conversation express little use for the creeds of the church."

The suggested platform for Bishops would wipe out the present canon against remarriage of a divorced person and that requiring the use of a common cup at Holy Communion.

The proposed platform follows:

A Bishop's Platform.

1. I will vote to put the Apostles' and Nicene Creeds in the back of the Prayer Book with the Athanasian Creed, and the thirty-nine Articles, and not require them as a part of the morning and evening prayer or communion service.

2. I advise a further revision of the Prayer Book that would not ask questions in the baptism service that are now asked—a belief in the Articles of the Christian Faith, as contained in the Apostles' Creed, which no mature and educated person today can assent to without stultifying reservations, and no clergyman can ask without mental mortification. In fact, I believe there should be a revision of the Prayer Book to take out of it the attitude of ignorance toward natural science and toward social and political organizations that are commonplaces today.

3. I will work to bring about a proportional representation in general convention.

4. I stand upon a social and economic platform for the Church at least as broad and progressive as that announced in the recent English Lambeth Conference or the output of the Methodist Church and of the Catholic Church.

5. I promise to advise in my pastoral letter and to attempt to organize the diocese and the parishes so that the weight of financial management shall not be placed upon the clergy, untrained in business methods, but upon business men. The Financial Committee in each parish and the Financial Committee of the diocese should take charge of their respective budget requirements and secure funds as they would for any other purpose they considered important, without asking the initiative or co-operation of the clergy.

6. I regret that if elected I shall have to live in a $300,000 house, and have to conduct services in a $15,000,000 Cathedral. The interest charges, to say nothing about up-keep, will amount to nearly $1,000,000 a year.

7. I will approve of no Church legislation that contravenes or tends to undermine the law of the land, as, for instance, in the matter of marriage and divorce. And I will urge in all Church usages (even in the sacraments) obedience to modern sanitary codes.

A Possible Reference to Dr. Manning.

Dr. Grant did not refer by name to any of the three most prominently mentioned for the office—the Rev. Drs. William T. Manning of Trinity, Charles Lewis Slattery of Grace Church and Earnest M. Stires of St. Thomas's. He did, however, preach at length against the selection of a man not born in America. Many who heard him believed he referred to Dr. Manning, who was born in Northampton, England, when he said:

"The point of view of an English Churchman today is not and cannot readily be that of an American Churchman. There is danger in a loss of democratic organization and outlook in electing as Bishop of New York any one whose personal traditions are not grounded at least in American birth."

The clergyman referred to newspaper discussions of the money-raising qualifications of those mentioned as Bishop Burch's successor, in the light of the millions needed to complete the nave of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. He said there were more important qualifications, "not to say more important ecclesiastical chores," pointing out that already there were churches that could be filled and describing the present problem as one of justifying tax exemption of great properties and bringing about 100 per cent. adaptation of church plants to modern needs.

Turning to a discussion of liberalism, Dr. Grant said:

"Thousands of clergymen would welcome freer formularies. They entered the priesthood or ministry stimulated by the adolescent idealism of self-improvement and human service. The gateway of intellectual belief into the ministry was narrow, but their Church authorities almost guaranteed the truth of the debatable doctrines. So these young men accepted dubious beliefs, treating them as ancient historical monuments not to be destroyed; or they allegorized them; or they attenuated them by some form of philosophy which proves that black is white, or they secured mental peace by claiming the rights of suspended judgment, while about some physiological side of belief they were frankly humorous and said, 'How should I know?'

"I have associated for thirty years with clergymen who called themselves 'liberal.' In their private conversation they express little use for the creeds of the Church. Why not have the formularies of the Church express their honest opinion?

"In America, churches are mostly supported by pew-rents or by voluntary contributions. Under this system responsibility for income is largely put up to the clergy. This is unfortunate. Clergymen are not business men. Very few of them could keep a set of books. An entirely different bent leads them to the Church. Even the Apostles found finance inappropriate and chose deacons to distribute benevolent funds. The extraordinary ability and energy of American business men should be at the service of our churches. Too many ministers feel like salesmen on a commission basis. If clergymen wanted to be business men they should give all their time to Wall Street and expect correspondingly large incomes."

Members Are Guests of the Society of Arts and Sciences.

Officials and prominent members of the Actors' Equity Association were the guests of the Society of Arts and Sciences last night at a dinner in their honor at the Hotel Biltmore. John Emerson and Frank Gillmore, President and Executive Secretary of the Equity, reviewed the career and accomplishments of that organization, and other addresses were made by Frank Bacon, Francis Wilson, Laurette Taylor, Arnold Daly, R. H. Burnside, John Drew and Wilton Lackaye. Others at the speakers' table included Doris Keane, J. Hartley Manners, Virginia Harned, Julius Tannen, Basil Sydney, Mary Shaw and Maclyn Arbuckle. De Wolf Hopper was toastmaster.

Mr. Emerson discussed the campaign against the closed shop in labor and the action of the Dramatists' Guild in opposing the Equity shop movement.

"Let the Equity shop proposition be defeated," he said, "and we shall again go through the same experience as before—discrimination, intimidation, fear and decrease in our members, with ultimate disintegration. The last thing the Equity wants is another strike—the last thing the managers want is another strike. The only way to make such a calamity impossible is to institute the Equity shop, and stop once and for all this unfair discrimination against Equity actors—unless, indeed, the actors are to lose all that they have fought for."

ARREST IN NURSE MURDER.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 16.—Naval Academy authorities tonight caused the arrest in this city of Henry A. Brown, colored, a deserter from the navy in connection with the murder Friday night of Miss Harriet Kavanaugh, a nurse at the Navy Hospital, Annapolis.

He admits having been a patient in the academy hospital nearly a year ago, but denies that he ever saw Miss Kavanaugh during that period. Government agents assert that Brown was seen skulking near the scene of the murder a short time before the crime. The prisoner maintains that he had not been out of Baltimore for nearly a month. When arrested, he was still attired in a navy uniform. He was a mess attendant in the navy.

Brown was locked up and early tomorrow morning a Naval Academy official will take him back to the "brig" at Annapolis.

Brown's arrest followed a visit to police headquarters of Special Agent Sainsbury of the Department of Justice and Lieutenant Smith, who made the request that the negro be picked up if found in Baltimore. The negro was found on Pennsylvania Avenue near a police station. When "grilled" at the station he admitted he had deserted the Cumberland when refused a furlough.

NEURITIS KILLED MRS. BRUHN

The death of Mrs. Catherine Bruhn of 9,737 105th Street, Ozone Park, Queens, who died in St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, last Wednesday, was due to chronic neuritis, according to an autopsy performed yesterday by Medical Examiner Howard W. Neil. The autopsy was made because the police said that Mrs. Carl Voss, a neighbor, had suggested that Mrs. Bruhn might have been poisoned.

Although Dr. Neil's statement was accepted as disposing of the likelihood of any inquiry, chemical analysis will be made today at a laboratory. Mrs. Voss told reporters that she had made the poison suggestion because of the strange symptoms exhibited by Mrs. Bruhn when she was taken sick several hours before her death. Mrs. Bruhn was taken sick in the Voss home, where she had frequently presided at meetings of a small group of spiritualists.

MEXICAN ARMY SCANDAL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16.—A scandal in the Mexican War Department threatens to involve a number of military chiefs. An office has been discovered where false service papers were issued and sold to officers, to be used to prove actual service.

More than 300 officers now in the army are suspected of holding their rank on the evidence of false papers. The signatures of Presidents from Diaz to Carranza have been forged. The office had a complete set of dies and embossed War Department paper. Many service papers have false signatures of military chiefs now in command. These signatures were copied from a book containing those of all the military leaders which was presented to Carranza when he was President.

Two of the prisoners captured by the police are employes of the War Department, one being the head of a bureau.

The War Department has ordered the immediate revision of the service records of all officers.

WED BEFORE DYING FATHER.

Son and Daughter, in Double Ceremony, Meet Parent's Wishes.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Jan. 16.—When physicians attending him yesterday told P. L. Sarokin, a prosperous business man of this place, he might not live twenty-four hours, he expressed the wish to see his daughter and son married before he died. He sent word to his son, Max, an insurance broker at 400 Lewis Street, Union Hill, who was soon to marry Miss Ruth Plagoff of 215 Shippen Street, Weehawken Heights, and his daughter, Bertha, telephoned her fiancé, George Miller, a lawyer of this place.

Max and his fiancée came here by auto, reaching the house shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. Arrangements had been made for the double ceremony and the minister was at hand.

The couples gathered about the bedside of the dying man, who remained conscious during the ceremony. In fact he appeared so much better when the marriages were performed that the physicians said today he might survive several days.

Knocked Down, Badly Hurt by Auto

Matthew McCarthy, 49 years old, a retired fireman of 701 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, is in Bellevue Hospital in a critical condition suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, fractures of several ribs and lacerations of the right side of the head and face, received last night when he was run down at Third Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street by an automobile. He was found unconscious in the street and was taken to the hospital in a taxicab. The police were unable to get a description of the automobile.

Hold Service for Late Bishop Burch.

A memorial service was held last evening in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, West New Brighton, Staten Island, for Bishop Charles Sumner Burch, who died Dec. 20, last. The church, which is the largest of the Episcopal faith on the island, was crowded and the rectors of all the Episcopal parishes on the island were in the chancel. The preacher was the Rev. CLAIM GORGAS FOR ALL HUMANITY

Representatives of Many Nations Honor His Memory at Gathering in Washington.

HEAR OF MEMORIAL PLAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Representatives from many nations assembled tonight in the Hall of the Americas, Pan-American Union Building, to pay tribute to the memory of the late Major Gen. William C. Gorgas, former Surgeon General of the United States Army. Diplomats, prominent army and navy officers, members of Congress and other officials attended the exercises, which were held under the auspices of the Southern Society of Washington, of which General Gorgas was a member and former President.

The Ambassador of France, Major Gen. H. K. Bethell, Military Attaché of the British Embassy, representing the British Ambassador; the Ambassador of Peru, the Ministers of Cuba and Ecuador, the Chargé d'Affaires of Panama, the Secretaries of War and Navy, Dr. L. S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan-American Union; Major Gen. Peter Charris, Adjutant General U. S. A., and General Clarence J. Owens, Past President of the Southern Society, were the speakers. Cablegrams of tribute to General Gorgas were read from the residents of Uruguay and Costa Rica and from the Government of Colombia.

Congress will be asked to make appropriation for a suitable memorial to General Gorgas to be placed in this city, it was announced; and further tribute will be paid to the former Surgeon General by the presentation of a painting of him to the Government by the Southern Society, to be placed in the library of the Surgeon General's office.

"Gorgas honored the United States of America, but his fame and his work now belong to the world," declared the Minister of Cuba, Dr. Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, in his speech of tribute.

After speaking of the sanitary work done by General Gorgas in Ecuador, the Minister from that country, Señor Rafael H. Elizalde, said: "He came among us with outstretched hand and purity of purpose, winning our hearts. We are proud to owe a great national debt to him."

The Ambassador of Peru, Señor Federico A. Pezet, spoke of the way in which from 1884 to 1889 he "saw men arrive from France, full of energy, impregnated with the national trait of a courage that knows no fear, with a pride of nation and race, arrive one day to become stricken the next and but a few days later to be laid in their resting places. The scourge of the tropics more than any other cause served to defeat the French in their attempts to construct the canal. The failure of France was the incentive that made possible the victory of America." While the work of General Gorgas in Cuba had been noteworthy, said the Ambassador, it was in Panama that he reached the pinnacle of greatness.

The Charge d'Affaires of Panama, Señor J. E. Lefevre, in his remarks said: "Although we are earnestly endeavoring further to honor the memory of our illustrious friend by the establishment of the Gorgas Tropical Institute for Research at Panama, we are doing it as a national tribute."

Major Bethell of the British Embassy said of the services of General Gorgas: "They were not limited to a nation; they were given to mankind. To us who are British they were of peculiar value, for we have many tropical possessions which present difficulties of health maintenance not dissimilar to those he faced and conquered in Panama."

Dr. Rowe of the Pan-American Union declared that "General Gorgas was, in the highest sence, a typical American. I use the word American in its broadest continental connotation, for, if the test of citizenship is service to the community, General Gorgas deserves to be regarded as a citizen of the American continent."

250 GREET LIEUT. FARRELL.

Lieutenant Stephen A. Farrell, the airman, and his wife were the guests of the Brooklyn Eastern District Turn Verein last night at a reception in the clubrooms at Bushwick Parkway and Gates Avenue, Brooklyn. About 250 of the aeronauts's neighbors were there.

A gold watch, suitably inscribed, was presented to Lieutenant Farrell by Congressman David J. O'Connell, while a big basket of roses and a green-gold nest bug were given to Mrs. Farrell, Commissioner of Contracts Francis P. Bent making the presentation.

In a brief response Lieutenant Farrell recounted the story of the experiences of himself and Lieutenants Hinton and Kloor. He admitted with a laugh that he had "prayed a bit on the third day" of their expedition. The chief worry of the lost balloonists, he added, was about their families and friends back home.

Nurse, Tired of Life, Takes Poison.

Anna Murphy, 23 years old, a trained nurse, of 515 West 134th Street, who was taken to Harlem Hospital last night in a critical condition, told Dr. Matthew Giorgi that she had swallowed thirty-five grains of bichloride of mercury with suicidal intent. She said she was disgusted with life. Miss Murphy was found unconscious by her cousin, Mrs. McNiff, at 388 St. Nicholas Avenue, whose guest she was at dinner.

Court Starts Fund for Sailors Ejected from British Consulate.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—Eleven natives of British Somaliland, Africa, who declared that they were British subjects marched to the British Consulate here yesterday, and through an interpreter demanded money for food and shelter, or that they be placed aboard ships as members of crews.

Vice Consul James Guthrie when he heard their story, said he sympathized with them, but could not aid them. They refused to leave the office until something was done for them. The Vice Consul called the police to clear his office.

Soon the Africans were lined up before a Police Magistrate, who asked Mr. Guthrie why some provision had not been made for them. The Vice Consul replied that "unemployed seamen are drifting here from New York and Boston and I can do nothing to remedy the situation."

The Magistrate told the interpreter his fellow countrymen were free. "But they have no place to go," answered the interpreter, "and have no money."

Two lawyers who had heard the proceedings suggested taking up a fund. "Well, I'll start it with $1," said the Magistrate. Ten more men contributed $1 each and the eleven Africans departed.

"I Am Beginning to Feel My Old Self Again," He Remarks.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—For the first time since his illness began Cardinal Gibbons was able today to walk, supported by Dr. Charles O'Donovan and Dr. Lewellys F. Barker, who have been in consultation upon his condition since his return from Union Mills.

The Cardinal walked about his study for several minutes. Returning to his chair he turned to Dr. O'Donovan and remarked:

"Fine, I am beginning to feel my old self again."

Later in the day he was taken for a short visit to the Cathedral. Attended by the physicians, the Rev. Albert E. Smith, his secretary, and the Rev. Edward Leonard, the Cardinal was wheeled down the middle aisle to the portico.

While gazing about he caught sight of the little son of Charles Connor, sexton of the Cathedral, who waved a chubby hand to attract his attention. The Cardinal caught the gesture and smilingly inclined his head in acknowledgment of the greeting.

ITALIAN MAYOR ARRESTED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Jan. 16.—Dr. Themistocles Bongiachino, Mayor of Ferrara, was just starting off in high spirits for the National Socialist Congress at Leghorn in company with Secretary General Zirardini of the local Labor Chamber when two detectives delivered an urgent request from the Chief of Police for an interview. Descending from the train, the Mayor and his companion hurried off in the motor car sent for their convenience, only to find themselves summarily declared under arrest on warrants charging them with complicity in four murders and thirteen more attempted murders during the riots in that city on Dec. 20.

Two bags full of documents were seized, and when the prisoners were searched each was found to be carrying a loaded revolver with extra ammunition.

EXPLAIN TURK SUCCESSES.

Greeks Say Weather Conditions Were Unfavorable to Them.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 16.—Both the Turkish Nationalists and the Greeks are claiming victory in the fighting in the Brussa sector of Asia Minor.

It is maintained here that the setbacks the Greeks have suffered are not due to bad morale among their troops or inefficiency by the recently installed Greek officers, but to the fact that the Turks have used picked troops and that weather conditions have been unfavorable to the Greeks, as the mountains are covered with snow.

No Bolsheviki, it is understood, are fighting in the Turkish ranks against the Greeks.

According to a Turkish Nationalist communication dated last Friday, the Greek offensive in the Eskishehir region has been stopped. It says the Greek troops yielded along the entire front under the pressure of the Turks, and that the retreat of the Greeks has been disorderly and costly, one entire division having been destroyed.

In expectation of an intensified Greek offensive under direct command of King Constantine, the Turks are pouring reserves into the Brussa and Smyrna fronts. The Government archives in Angora have been transferred to Sivas.

In case the Turkish front should break, the Christian population in the war zone, it is said, will be deported to Erzerum under pretense of military necessity.

REDS CONVERT REFUGEES.

Soviet Propagandists Active in Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 16.—Several hundred refugees have been converted to Bolshevism by Soviet propagandists here. The Communist Committee recently received substantial funds from the Bolshevist representative at Batoum to help these converts and for financing the Bolshevist movement, which, owing to dissatisfaction caused by the high cost of living and unemployment, appears to be growing.

A Nationalist transport has left for Odessa to repatriate the first group of Turkish prisoners of war in Russia, which numbers 500. These prisoners are reported to have been trained in Russian propaganda schools, conducted along Communist lines, with the object of spreading Bolshevism in Anatolia.

DETECTIVES SEEK MISSING WOMAN

VICTIM OF NERVOUS DISEASE

Returned but a Few Days Ago From Two Years in a Sanitarium.

Mrs. Ella E. Berentsen, wife of Richard R. Berentsen, an executive of the Smith Carpet Company, disappeared Saturday night from her home at 239 Primrose Avenue, in the Chester Hill section of Mount Vernon, in a fit of nervous derangement. Mr. Berentsen reported to the police yesterday. Detectives from Police Headquarters here are aiding in the search, acting on Mr. Berentsen's belief that she came to this city.

Mrs. Berentsen had returned to her Mount Vernon home only a few days ago from a sanitarium in Stamford, Conn., where for two years she had been receiving treatment for a nervous disease. On Saturday night she bade her husband good night at 9 o'clock and went upstairs. About thirty minutes later Mr. Berentsen, looking into her room to see whether she was asleep, discovered that she was missing. A search of the house disclosed that she had packed a brown Gladstone bag with some of her belongings and, apparently, had left the house by a back stairway.

When she left Mrs. Berentsen was wearing a brown velvet evening gown, trimmed with white lace, a white wool sweater, a sealskin coat trimmed with beaver, and a large hat. Mr. Berentsen described her as 41 years old, 5 feet 6 inches in height and 165 pounds in weight, with brown eyes and a plump face.

Mr. Berentsen said that his wife had taken very little money with her, a circumstance that led him to communicate with several of her friends, in the hope that she might have gone to the home of one of them. He said that she was known at several large hotels in this city and would have been able to obtain accommodations at any of them. This is the chief reason for his belief that she had come to New York.

IRON WORKERS MAY STRIKE.

Building Here Will Be Tied Up If 10,000 Go Out.

Ten thousand iron workers in this city are likely to be called out on strike this week unless there is a speedy settlement of the differences between the workers and employers, according to Abraham Vosk, business agent of the Inside Iron Workers' Union. He said that the question of calling a strike had been left with the Joint Board of the Inside Iron Workers' Unions. Twenty-one hundred workers were locked out last week by the Allied Building Metal Industries.

"A general strike of the inside iron workers," Vosk said yesterday, "would involve 10,000 workers and would tie up all steel and iron material for buildings in this city, thus eventually tieing up building operations here. In case the Joint Board orders a strike it will be for the forty-four-hour week.

BRIAND'S CABINET TO WORK WITH ALLIES

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

solution of the problem of reparation does not consist in accord with Germany, but in accord between France and her allies, particularly between France and Great Britain, and that it is better to reduce our claims on condition that they are guaranteed by a definite contract than to seek more important payments in the distant future and with our own strength alone.

"The basis of this method was established at San Remo when the Allies agreed that violations of her engagements by Germany would be followed by suitable penalties, namely, prolonged or extended occupation of the territories forming part of the Reich.

"This method received practical application at Spa in the agreements regarding coal and disarmament which have been mainly fulfilled. The long conversations which have since taken place between France and England can be thus summed up so far as France's part is concerned: 'We wish to do with regard to reparations what we did at Spa for coal and disarmament.' England has consented to this policy. She has made only one condition—that the German indemnity be fixed at an acceptable figure.

"The French doctrine is that if this method of prior accord with the Allies is not accepted it will be necessary to go to the logical extreme of the contrary method, and this means revision of the treaty by force. The policy at present followed does not renounce the use of force, if need be, for the execution of the treaty, but it would be applied with our allies at our side and after all other means of settlement had been exhausted.

"If our allies are not with us the treaty, which is based upon their co-operation, will no longer exist. It will be necessary to impose a new one upon Germany, who may find encouragement to resist us among those who will remain our helpers if we will follow a wise policy."

Briand Sure Harding Is Pro-French.

PARIS, Jan. 16 (Associated Press).—"It is not 'the great Cabinet,' but it is a great Cabinet I have formed," said Premier Briand this evening. "My Ministers will be busy men looking after France's internal affairs. We have confidence that the American Administration will look after its own affairs. It may be Republican, it may be Democratic—it matters little; it is always pro-French, I am sure. Please tell them that in America.

"Those who have been in France for many years understand that we are not a militarist nation. We have the warmest desire to be on friendly footing with the British and American nations, but there is a compact, signed at Versailles, which must be fulfilled. I trust that in the fulfillment of that compact we shall not come in contest with our friends.

"My Ministry will make its bow in the Chamber Tuesday. It may be that a representative of France will meet the British and Italian delegates the next day. I have asked for no postponement. France will meet the foreign delegates and discuss questions of international interest as if there were no Ministerial crisis in France."

ASSAILED BY COURTS

Wife Tells Magistrate Nolan After Prohibition Whisky Ruined Husband.

When sixteen persons charged with intoxication were arraigned before him in Jefferson Market Court yesterday, Magistrate Charles E. Simms remarked that it was "high time that we have prohibition or no prohibition." In Essex Market Court, Magistrate Thomas J. Nolan commented upon the peculiar effect of the present brand of intoxicants upon those who drink them, saying that only one or two drinks were sufficient to cause a display of great violence. He said that he was astounded at the number of men and women arraigned before him last week in West Side Court for intoxication and allied violence.

Magistrate Nolan said that in the light of what he had seen in the courtroom and heard from witnesses he considered that statements of dry enthusiasts or police as to the benefit of prohibition should be carefully scrutinized before acceptance.

Charles Booth of 327 Cherry Street was before Magistrate Nolan on a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by his wife. He was found guilty and was remanded for sentence tomorrow. Mrs. Booth testified that for some time her husband had been coming home violently intoxicated. Asked by the Magistrate to be more specific as to the length of time, Mrs. Booth replied, "about a year."

"In other words, you mean since prohibition went into effect," Magistrate Nolan said, "and your husband who used to be content with a glass of beer now comes home raving after one or two drinks of this poison rotgut they call whisky; is that it?" Mrs. Booth nodded her assent.

Prisoners Found in Stupor.

The sixteen defendants before Magistrate Simms paid fines. One who said he was Frank Hays, a broker, of St. Louis, Mo., had been found on the sidewalk at Sixth Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street, unconscious, by a patrolman. Hays, who said he was a guest at the Hotel McAlpin, had $2,400 in his pockets when arrested. He was fined $10.

A woman who was found in a stupor in a Greenwich Village hallway told the Magistrate that she had two drinks in a house there and did not know anything more until she awoke after her arrest. Another young woman, who said she was a clerk, had been stupefied by a small quantity of a beverage, according to the story she told.

"You go on drinking this whisky—it isn't that, but embalming fluid, in spite of all the warning that is afforded by stories of earlier victims," said Magistrate Simms. "It should be possible to find out the places which are selling this stuff and to make those who do so pay the penalty for their wrongdoing. What is more, where so many can get it, it should be possible for inspectors to get it, if they wanted to, with a view of bringing those who are guilty to justice."

A number of deaths occur each week from acute alcoholism, according to Peter Prenderville of the Police Identification Bureau at the Morgue, but no comparison has yet been made as to the number of deaths from acute alcoholism during the last year with any previous period. It was said at Bellevue Hos-

WHEELER SAYS SHIPS MUST NOT HAVE LIQUOR

May be a Temporary Loss, He Says, but Eventually Dry Travel Will Win Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, opposing a bill to permit American vessels to serve liquor outside of the three-mile zone, issued a statement today in support of the League's contention that this bill is in contravention of the prohibition amendment.

"American ships desiring the protection of American laws," says the statement, "will have to subject themselves to the constitutional and statutory provisions. It will be a bad precedent to exempt any one from the penalties or provisions of the national prohibition statute or Constitution. Once the doorway is open it means a continuous fight. It will multiply the difficulties of law enforcement. They are great enough now.

"Prohibition will not injure the passenger trade ultimately. The few who cancel their reservations on American ships will not be the determining point in the success of the steamship trade. Most people do not travel to get liquor. They want good service. We faced this same objection when prohibition affected hotels and other resorts. Some of the best hotels in the country abolished the sale of liquor before prohibition. The Chalfonte Hotel at Atlantic City, the Berry House at Athens, Ohio, and scores of others made a success without the bar because they gave superior service.

"Practically all the railroad companies quit serving liquor before prohibition. Competing roads serving liquor thought it would ruin their trade. They found it was a benefit rather than a liability. If liquor is on board a steamship or railroad employes find access to it and it increases accidents and decreases efficiency in the service. There may be a temporary loss because of this provision of the law, but eventually an American passenger service without liquor will outstrip the passenger service of any nation which thinks that it must dispense poison liquid in order to get the patronage of intelligent people."

PLAY TO CELEBRATE NEW HOSPITAL FUND

Special Performance of "Ladies' Night" Marks Successful Drive for People's Hospital.

A special performance of "Ladies' Night" was given in the Eltinge Theatre last night to celebrate the completion of a fund for a site for a new plant at Second Avenue and Fifteenth Street for the People's Hospital. Julian Goldman, president of the hospital, now located in cramped quarters at 203 Second Avenue, was the guest of honor and made the announcement that the site had been acquired. Much of the money was contributed by business men on the lower east side.

The new building is to meet the needs of the district for better hospital facilities and at the same time is to serve as a memorial to East Siders who lost their lives in the war. It is planned to begin razing the tenement houses on the site in April and to rush construction so that the building may be occupied in about a year. Every modern facility is to be offered and it was said it would be one of the most up-to-date and completely fitted hospitals in the city.

The names of those who contributed to the fund were not announced.

DR. CRAFTS ON RUM

SLAP AT NEW YORK JEERED

Unsympathetic Crowd Hears Prohibition Ranked With Overthrow of Kaiser.

Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, Superintendent of the International Reform Bureau of Washington, D. C., who has spoken in favor of reform measures for the past fifty-four years and in twenty-nine different countries, found an unsympathetic audience at the Labor Temple, at Second Avenue and Fourteenth Street, last night to hear him speak on "Liquor and Labor" in celebration of the first anniversary of constitutional prohibition. Although three hundred odd persons listened quietly during Dr. Crafts's three-quarter hour address, they gave vent to their stored-up feelings with hisses, groans and sarcastic comments when the chairman gave them a chance to ask questions at the conclusion of the address.

The way in which prohibition was passed was particularly a subject of criticism from men in the audience. As one speaker put it, "What are you reform guys gonna put over on us next? If prohibition had been put to a vote this country would be 'wet' instead of 'dry.'"

Dr. Crafts ranked prohibition of equal importance with the fall of the Kaiser and said that the day would be celebrated one hundred years hence as the centennial of one of the greatest events in the history of the country, equally as important as Emancipation Day and Independence Day.

He said there was no use in fighting whiskey and allowing beer and wine to be manufactured and drunk, as most drinkers start with these milder intoxicants before tackling the "harder" liquor.

Dr. Crafts said it was a great mistake to have allowed persons to store away so much liquor when prohibition arrived. The rich benefited by it, because they had the means to fill their lockers, whereas the poor person could not afford any. "But," he said, "that will soon be gone. Possibly we will put a heavy tax on it or deal with it some other way. We haven't decided yet."

When one person in the audience said, "First you gave us prohibition. Now you are going to put the blue laws over. What are you going to slip over on us next?" Dr. Crafts said that the bureau never did want a national blue law observance. The entire idea, he said, started in the newspapers to discredit his organization.

When Dr. Crafts said that the prohibition law was being enforced excellently in the South and West and that New York was the most un-American city and therefore could not be expected to come up to the others, he was greeted with more hisses and groans as well as personal remarks.

CHESTERTON CITES SHAKESPEARE'S SLIP

Describing Ignorance, Says That of Playwright About Geography Was Harmless.

GIVES FIRST LECTURE HERE

Complains of Too Much Heat in American Hotels and Criticises Primitive Woman.

Gilbert K. Chesterton delivered his first lecture in New York at the Times Square Theatre last night, his subject being "The Ignorance of the Educated." He had appeared earlier in the week in Boston. Nevertheless, Edwin Markham, who presided, tendered him a formal "welcome to America."

An overflowing audience heard the brilliant Englishman and heard him clearly, in spite of his apologies for the carrying power of his voice. Before the lecture Mr. Chesterton had complained of being affected by the intense heat which he said he had found so far in all American hotels. He caused a laugh at the very start, while the audience was still admiring his great size, by saying that his voice was "the original mouse that came out of the mountain." Mr. Markham had said that, when Chesterton spoke, his voice was heard on four continents.

"But you will have reason, I fear," said the lecturer, "to gather that it is not heard in all theatres."

Mr. Chesterton qualified the title to his lecture. He explained that by the "educated" he meant the "normally educated." He enlarged the definition to include the kind of people that believe in the Darwinian theory, the kind of people that call Bohemia by the name of Czechoslovakia; that call the British and American by the name of Anglo-saxons; that believe in the stock accounts of the origin and development of man like that set forth by Wells; that talk of the "missing link" and "the superman" as if they were realities.

Newspaper Readers and Writers.

He intimated that he meant the kind of people that write and read the newspapers. He said he meant himself among others, being a newspaper man and more or less of a dabbler in theories resembling those he was exploding.

The only superiority of the ignorant ignorant to the educated ignorant, as he pointed them out, was that the fallicies of the former were usually harmless, while the profound errors of the cultivated persons were often highly mischievous.

Mr. Chesterton proceeded with many illustrations and digressions, getting frequent applause for what other persons call brilliantly turned paradoxes and which the lecturer understands to be the reduction of impudent old fraud to plain commonplace fact.

As an instance of harmless ignorance, he cited Shakespeare's readjustment of Bohemia in "A Winter's Tale" in which a strip of coast is annexed to it. Overlooking the attempts of some Shakespearean scholars to prove that Bohemia once did have a coast, Mr. Chesterton treated it as a piece of pure ignorance. But before showing how Shakespeare's artless ignorance was innocent compared to the sophisticated type that would have Bohemia known as Czechoslovakia, he said, parenthetically:

"But I will not pause to inquire how this question affects that vast and varied body of thinkers who maintain that Shakespeare was Bacon, because he knew so much. We are told that Shakespeare must have been Bacon, because Bacon knew such a great deal of law and of history. But I might be tempted to wonder that Bacon knew so geography."

Shakespeare's Ignorance Harmless.

Shakespeare's ignorance, he explained, was harmless, because it was not mixed with a desire to make his ignorance the basis for political tinkering and meddling.

"He was not, for instance, warning Queen Elizabeth against the dangers from the seaports on the cost of Bohemia, and he was not insisting that England keep up a strong navy to defend itself or demanding three keels to one against Bohemia."

He attacked ethnology and anthropology as quack sciences, when they mixed in politics. He did not proceed, however, as in his lecture at Boston, to allude to the ideas of savants at the Peace Conference on remapping Europe along the lines of laboratory science as examples of such "ignorance."

In ridiculing the standard historical idea that early man won his wives with a club, which he put forward as an article of faith on the part of all educated people, the lecturer said that the theory assumed that early woman had an unconquerable aversion for early man.

Primitive Woman Not So Refined.

"It would seem," he continued, "to argue an exaggerated and unnatural degree of delicacy, which is certainly not self-evident in the fact of such a simple society. I could not understand why, if primitive man was so very rude, primitive woman should be so absurdly refined."

Mr. Chesterton made a sort of text for his lecture of Artemus Ward's famous remark on education.

"I do seriously think," he said, "that the most profound criticism of the culture of our time can be found in a sentence which, I believe, was written by Artemus Ward, which runs, I think:

"'It isn't so much people's ignorance that does the harm as it is their knowing so many things that ain't so.'"

Mr. Chesterton commented on two other famous American quotations, frankly explaining that he did so to make it clear that he assumed no frivolous attitude toward great American sayings and was quite sincere in his admiration for Artemus Ward's condensed wisdom: He quoted "Give me liberty or give me death," adding:

"If Patrick Henry could arise from the dead and revisit the land of the living and see the vast system and social organization and social science which now controls, he would probably simplify his observation and say:

"'Give me death.'"

WOULD SAVE CONSTITUTION.

Not Meant to Be Bagful of Statutes, Pastor Tells Town Hall Meeting.

The United States Constitution was never meant to be a "bagful of statutes or constable's regulations," the Rev. William Lawrence Sullivan said at last night's meeting in the Town Hall in West Forty-third Street.

"Keep the Constitution of your country from presumptuous and illiterate hands," he urged, adding, "we must not be international in the sense of those men who love every country except their own."

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise spoke of the meeting as one of religious dedication. "It is important to be told that New York City has a soul," he said, "for too many of us are apt to think that New York City is a police department. We have enough uniforms, badges and tags in New York City already."

Rabbi Wise suggested that once a year a Thanksgiving meeting be held in the Town Hall where those of every faith might meet as brothers. Other speakers were Frank A. Vanderlip, who presided; Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick and Miss Lillian D. Wald.

KILLED IN HOCKEY GAME.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 16.—Livingston Paul died this morning in the Presbyterian Hospital of a fractured skull received in a hockey game in the Ice Palace Saturday afternoon.

Paul, who was 22 years old, was a member of the Bachelors' Barge Club team, which was playing the Merion Cricket Club. He skated after the puck alone and, losing his balance, fell as he turned to strike it. The back of his head struck the ice. The injured player was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital in a private car. The game was continued.

At the hospital Paul seemed to rest more easily, although he did not fully regain consciousness. Reassured by physicians that her son was not in grave danger, Mrs. Paul left for her home. Shortly before 8 o'clock this morning she received a telephone call that her son was in a serious condition. He died at 8:16 o'clock—ten minutes before her arrival.

The young man attended the Haverford School, and later Phillips Andover Academy, Andover, Mass. He returned home from school a year ago and entered the wholesale shoe business. Throughout his school career he was interested in athletics.

Prices We Have Left Behind

WHEN announcement was made that "the bottom of the price hill has been reached for the season" at The Man's Shop, there was slight anticipation of the great friendly throng which would meet us at the foot of the slide.

The American tailors who have made The Man's Shop clothes builded better than they knew when they placed their remaining suits and overcoats with us at one-half their previous wholesale prices.

Hundreds of new friendships have been the result of The Man's Shop's consequent offer of all its clothes, except evening dress, at less than they cost the manufacturer to produce.

It has been a re-marking, not a sale—a remarkable re-marking of clothes carefully assembled by this shop as the best that America and England could produce.

Suits of finest imported and domestic woolens, which have been making prestige for The Man's Shop all season at their former prices, consistent with this character of clothing—now $32, $42 and $48.

Most of them of medium-light weight for all-year wear—Spring and Summer as well as Winter—half and quarter lined.

Overcoats for all American weather—coats made in England, and American coats made of highest grade English and American woolens, now $38, $58 and $68—genuine aristocrats, for Winter storm or the sunshine of spring.

And golf suits at $42 and $48—the latter being four-piece suits—such as one would expect at The Man's Shop.

BIG BAKERS BALK AT FIVE-CENT LOAF

Declare That Bread Cannot Be Furnished at That Price Without a Loss.

ONLY FLOUR COST IS DOWN

Do Not See How Bakery That Has Reduced Its Price Can Do It at a Profit.

Consumers need not expect the 5-cent loaf of bread to become general soon, according to representatives of large baking companies, who manifested keen interest in the article in THE TIMES yesterday telling of the action of one bakery concern in reducing its price from 10 to 5 cents a loaf. An official of one of the largest baking firms in the city said the bakeries would like to know how any firm is able to bake bread at 5 cents a loaf and break even, much less make a profit of 1½ to 2 cents a loaf, as is asserted by the bakery that has reduced its price. For the large bakeries such a price is simply impossible, he added.

"Making bread to retail at 5 cents a loaf is simply doing the impossible," he continued. "When we had the 5-cent loaf, flour was selling at $4 to $6 a barrel; now the best grade flour is selling around $10 a barrel in carload lots. Wages have doubled since the days of the 5-cent loaf. Every other expense in the making and handling of bread has increased accordingly. So far there has been no reduction of any of our costs, except flour, which is down $5 or $6 a barrel, but still is about double what it was in the pre-war days."

He pointed out that on Dec. 15 last the bakeries made a reduction of 1 cent in the wholesale price of the small loaf and 1½ cents on the large loaf. This reduction in most cases was passed on to the consumer, but in some instances the retailer is enriching his own coffers to the extent of the reduction in wholesale prices. The wholesale price of the small loaf of bread, which weighs 14 to 16 ounces, is 8 and 8½ cents, depending upon whether it is wrapped or unwrapped. The bakers say that this bread should retail at not exceeding 10 cents a loaf. Some retailers are charging only 9 cents for it. The 20-ounce loaf sells at wholesale for 12 and 12½ cents and retails at 14 to 15 cents.

Considerable slump in the bakery business has been noted by the bakers generally in the last thirty days. It has affected all lines handled by the bakers, bread not the least. Bakers attribute the falling off in sales to the fact that housewives, instead of throwing away bread as soon as it becomes a little stale, as has been the practice, have found that it can be advantageously used.

WOMAN WITH OPIUM CAUGHT

Her Companion Arrested and Pipe and Material Are Found.

Detectives from the narotic squad arrested a young man and woman early yesterday morning in a rooming house at 142 West Forty-second Street. The woman gave her name at the West Forty-seventh Street Station as Bonnie Wind and said that she was a singer. The man said his name was James de Carlo of 467 East Sixth Street. They were held in the West Side Court yesterday afternoon in $300 bail each for further examination tomorrow.

According to the detectives they saw the couple enter the house about 2 A. M. and a few minutes later de Carlos came out. When he saw the officers he started running, and the detectives overtook him at Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street. They returned with him to the rooming house and found the girl asleep on a couch. On a table near her were an opium pipe and other opium smoking materials.

ARREST HALTS SPEECH OF JAY W. FORREST

Jay W. Forrest, an Albany lawyer and Supreme Grand Master of the Sons and Daughters of Washington, an organization formed to combat alleged political activities by the Catholic Church, was arrested yesterday in Bryant Hall, Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street, while addressing 2,000 members of the association. He was later released at the West Thirtieth Street station in $500 bail, furnished by John W. Yates, a hardware dealer at 168 Eighth Avenue, and returned to complete the talk.

The arrest was for failure to obey two summonses issued in connection with an action begun by Mrs. Jeannette M. Miller of 196 Logan Street, Brooklyn, who seeks to compel Forrest to account for funds contributed to carry on the work of the Sons and Daughters of Washington. Officials of the organization declared that its books had been recently audited and that the accounts were in good order.

Following his experiences with the police, Forrest blamed all his troubles on Martin H. Glynn, former Governor, and publisher of The Albany Times-Union. He threatened to sue him and announced that "the fight has just begun," adding that he personally wasn't going to expect any mercy or give any.

In his talk Forrest criticised the Mayor and Commissioner Enright. He said he expected Governor Miller would take some action against both of them. Another speaker was severe in his discussion of the Pope and the Church.

The only excitement incident to the arrest of the leader at the gathering came when three rows of women at the back of the hall stood up and started to sing "The Star Spangled Banner." By request of the Chairman, John Wilson, they did not finish the national anthem. Another effort, this to accompany Forrest to the station, was vetoed on the ground that disorder might result. When Forrest reappeared at the meeting he was greeted with cheers.

POLICEMAN FALLS INTO PIT.

Found Dazed by Chauffeur After Plunge of Seventeen Feet.

Patrolman Timothy Hushion, 32 years old, of 319 West 116th Street, attached to the West 100th Street station, was seriously injured late Saturday night when he fell seventeen feet through an opening in the sidewalk to the basement of a building under construction at Ninety-seventh Street and Broadway. At Knickerbocker Hospital last night it was said that he suffered concussion of the brain, but was expected to recover.

After lying in the pit in a dazed condition for a half hour or more Hushion recovered sufficiently to find his way to a ladder and climb to the pavement. Hatless and with his clothes muddy, the patrolman was wandering about the streets when he was seen by Thomas Durkin, a taxicab driver. Durkin took him to the hospital.

Old Guard Honors Governor Miller.

Announcement was made yesterday that Governor Nathan L. Miller had been elected an honorary member of the Old Guard Veteran Battalion and had been invited to attend the Old Guard ball to be held at the Hotel Commodore on Jan. 28. Invitations have also been sent to Governor Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey and Governor Everett Lake of Connecticut.

This illustration shows the No. 1 Hoffman Air Valve—the watchman. It is for use in ordinary one-pipe steam systems. Heating contractors everywhere sell and install Hoffmans, but if your dealer should not have them, send $2.15 to Waterbury office for a sample valve and descriptive booklet.

Is your steam heating system driving you frantic? Are you cold?

Evenings cut short to seek the one and only warm place—bed—

Mornings made raucous by the strident pounding of pipes promising heat that never comes—

The dismay of finding a rug in the living room or ceiling in the dining room ruined by escaping steam or dripping water—

A happiness-destroying state of affairs! Yet so easy to correct! For steam is the best of all heats if you have the proper air valves. To get real efficiency from your heating system replace the present inefficient air valves on your radiators with Hoffman Valves. The No. 1 Hoffman, silently, automatically, efficiently, vents all the air from pipes and radiators, so that comfort-giving steam can replace it and fill every nook and cranny of the radiator. Then the No. 1 keeps the steam prisoner there in the radiator till it has given off every bit of heat. The No. 1 Hoffman allows not a drop of water nor a tiny puff of steam to escape. Not only does it assure more heat but more heat from less coal. In addition it is guaranteed in writing by the maker for five years' perfect operation.

DEFICIT AT HARVARD DESPITE NEW FUND

President Lowell Reports Faculty's Greater Pay Wipes Out Income Increase.

HIGHER FEES SUGGESTED

Public Is Urged to Value Scholarship More — Would Bar Teachers From Govevrning Board.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 16.—In his annual report to the overseers of Harvard University, made public today, President A. Lawrence Lowell asks for the support of the alumni and the public in stimulating the ambition of students for high scholarship and in maintaining standards of discipline in the college. He reports a "staggering deficit despite the raising of the Harvard Endowment Fund, forecasts the probable necessity of an increase in tuition fees, and discusses at length the relations which should exist between the Governinf Board of a university and its faculty.

President Lowell praises the Endowment Fund Committee and the graduates for their "zeal and persistence" in raising the fund. "Without this generous assistance from the alumni," he says, "the condition of the university would be lamentable. A large increase in the salaries of the instructing staff was a necessity. To have discharged teachers would have been disastrous; to have cut down expense largely without discharging many of them would have been impossible."

President Lowell reports that an increase in the salaries of the teaching staff of roughly 50 per cent. was made possible by the fund.

"This addition to the teaching salaries," he points out, "would alone exceed the immediate gain in the income of the university; but there has been also a large increase in the wages of labor, in the cost of services of all kinds, and in the prices of fuel and other materials. The result was a deficit which, including all items that should properly be charged therein, comes to $161,000; and this will be more than doubled for the current year.

"Since it is not possible to increase the endowment further at present, the only resource left for meeting the deficiency is an increase in tuition fees. At the time when the Endowment Fund was planned we believed a change in the tuition fees out of the question, but the continued high prices, the staggering deficit, and the action of other institutions have brought new conditions."

Students Required to Work Harder.

President Lowell reports that during recent years "there has been a constant effort to raise the standard of scholarship in the college." He finds that "so far as the minimum work required for a degree is concerned, the improvement has been marked." Harvard students, though "they are not obliged to work too hard," nevertheless "have to work harder in college than their fathers did."

"The real desire for high scholarship," he continues, "depends upon the attitude of the alumni and the public. If the object of college is preparation for life by education, excellence therein ought to be better than mediocrity; but this the public fails to understand. In England a man's career at the bar or in public life is greatly assisted by taking a high class of honors at Oxford or at Cambridge. In France the gateway to success in many careers is opened only by a series of rigorous competitive examinations. Here the great law firms select eagerly the graduates of our Law School who stand highest in rank; but the world does not value in the same way the highest scholars in college.

"Perhaps this is because scholarship in college does not indicate special training for a career; yet, in fact, it means something not less important. The qualities which obtain the largest rewards in any profession are often those believed to be imparted by a broad general education, such as resourcefulness, the ability to see many points of view and the capacity for imagination."

On the subject of college discipline President Lowell writes:

"The academic regulations are not severe; they leave abundance of time for student activities, and in fact, the greater part of the upper classmen are today neither indifferent nor idle. They are, as a rule, decidely busy about something. The proportion of delinquents in the college requirements is not great, but a failure to keep them up to their duties would result in a lowering of standard on the part of a much larger number. Therefore the regulations should be persistently enforced for all students throughout the college years, and both parents and alumni should support the college auhtorities in the formation of habits beneficial alike for the student and for the community."

Opposes Teachers on Governing Board.

A large part of the report is given over to a discussion of the relations which should exist between the Governing Board of a university and the Faculty. President Lowell reasons from the experience of Harvard that the instructing staff should not be represented upon the Governinf Board of a university because "experts should not be members of a non-professional body that supervises experts," but that "although the governing board is the ultimate authority, it is not in the position of an industrial employer.

"The scholars, both individually and gathered into faculties," he writes, "are to provide the expert knowledge; the Governing Board the financial management, the general co-ordination, the arbitral determinations, and the preservation of the general direction of public policy. In the words of a former member of the Harvard Corporation, their business is to 'serve tables.'

"The relation is not one of employer and employed, of superior and inferior, of master and servant, but one of mutual co-operation for the promotion of the scholars' work. Unless the professors have confidence in the singleness of purpose and in the wisdom of the Governing Boards, and unless these in their turn recognize that they exist to promote the work of the society of scholars, the relations will not have the harmony that they should."

The report also mentions the success of the new requirement of compulsory exercise for freshmen, the marked increase in the number of men transferring to Harvard from other colleges, the working out of the new requirement of comprehensive examinations in the senior year, the increase in the size of the professional schools, and advisability in the immediate future of perfecting the existing departments of the university rather than branching out into new fields. "For some time to come," President Lowell says, "all the possible resources of the university will be required to keep its existing departments at the highest level."

PETTING VS. ROLLING PIN IN CALMING HUSBANDS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—There are times, according to experts, when an exasperated wife should hesitate and weigh the evidence before administering corporal punishment to a husband who seems to be bidding for trouble. On the other hand, when a husband is nagging, irritable and irritating for no cause whatever, except "pure cussedness," the remedy for him is quick action with whatever is at hand—a rolling pin, a pan of dishwater or a flatiron.

Professor Robert R. Gault, head of the department of psychology at Northwestern University, is prepared to teach wives the secret of knowing just when to refrain from swinging on a husband with the most convenient weapon, or of humoring and soothing him by gentler methods. He will give a series of lectures, chiefly dealing with the attitude of a wife toward her husband when he is cranky. He gave a few hints as to the nature of his lectures tonight.

"If nervous exhaustion superinduced by business worries or other troubles make the husband irritable, the wife instead of attempting to 'cure' him by direct action should call in a nerve specialist. In other words, she should be sympathetic.

"Perhaps indigestion has contributed to the deplorable condition, in which case the remedy is simple. Mrs. Housewife should spend more time in her kitchen and brush up on her cooking.

[DIALOGUED FROM STORIES OF ARCOLA USERS]

"George joined the Stag Club a year ago last November.

"'I've got to have some place to smoke and chin,' he said. 'The only warm place is the kitchen, wife, and you own that. We ain't even got a cellar.'

"Before Spring the club cost him a hundred dollars. I guess the twenty he dropped in one bunch at poker set him thinking, for next day he said, kind o' flat like:

"'If I had a comfortable place to smoke and read at home, I'd cut the Stag—there ain't nothing to it.'

"Well, we've got a live wire chap in town who puts in heating plants, and I saw ARCOLA and radiators in his shop window. That's how it come about—and only took two days.

"'This here hot-water ARCOLA skins the Stag Club all to pieces—don't it Mary?' George says yesterday."

* * * *

The IDEAL-ARCOLA gives low-cost, healthful warmth, through hot-water radiators to the small home, store or school. It places the cottage, with or without cellar, on the heating plane of the First Mansion In The Land.

The water-jacketed ARCOLA is of itself a radiator. Replaces stoves, wastes no heat up chimneys, leaks no coal gas. Each tenant may have a separate ARCOLA. If used to heat part of building, extra sections and radiators may be added later.

ARCOLA heats all rooms on less fuel than a stove requires for one room. The complete system installed by your local dealer, costs but little more than a stove for each room; and far less than the old expense for a hot-water heating system.

"Any Luck"

is the salutation and query of one fishing-boat to another, hailing each other as they pass.

There is a lot of good nature in the world, as well as information, that can be brought out by a smile and cheery word as we pass along.

Just try it and see for yourselves. Some men, who can make fine public speeches from a forum desk, a pulpit or platform, are so offish after a public performance that in private they lose the benefit of the charm they wore in the large assemblage by a brilliant address.

If men were to get nearer to each other and practice good fellowship even moderately, this would be a happier world to live in. It would not cost much to try it.

FINDS OUR TEACHERS POORLY EDUCATED

J. H. Defrees Says Majority Fall Below Standard of Other Civilized Nations.

SAYS FORCE IS INADEQUATE

450,000 Children Reported Without Any or at Best Overcrowded Classrooms.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—In a statement to the National Educational Association, Joseph H. Defrees, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, declared that "conditions in our public schools undoubtedly contribute much to the unrest in this country today." He backed up this allegation with figures to show that of the 00,000 school teachers in the United States the greater number were poorly educated and did not fulfill even what he called low educational requirements for teachers.

The figures given by Mr. Defrees are furnished, his statement says, by educational authorities who have carefully studied conditions. These authorities, he says, estimate that of the 600,000 teachers 100,000 are under 21 years of age; 30,000 have no education beyond the eighth grade; 150,000 have no education beyond the third year of high school; 480,000, or four-fifths of the total, have not had two years of special training, recognized standard in other civilized countries, and 40,000 temporary teachers "have not even fulfilled our own low educational requirements."

"One reason why radicalism has not made the same headway in the United States that it has in Europe," he said, "is the fact that hundreds of men occupying positions of the greatest importance in this country began life as poor boys. But what have we got to say of the inequalities in education?

"Eighteen thousand classrooms in this country are said to have stood idle last year through lack of teachers. Taking an average of twenty-five pupils to each classroom, that means that 450,000 children were either denied education altogether or crowded into other classrooms, where they were given such education as they could get from an overworked, underpaid, undertrained teacher.

"I have given some figures on this country's failure to provide trained teachers for its schoolrooms. In that regard authorities assert that we lag behind every other civilized nation, including some of our South American neighbors.

"There is one other phase of this question that I wish to touch upon. Our short-sighted policy in failing to recognize the dignity of the teaching profession, in some instances, has led to a class consciousness in that profession, which has made itself felt in the classroom and left its indelible imprint upon the impressionable minds of the young. Let the facilities for the education of the teacher and compensation of the educated teacher be made ample."

THE bankers, merchants, manufacturers and workers of a large industrial city within the metropolitan district have commissioned us to act for them in presenting to the public what may well be considered one of the largest industrial movements in this country.

Details, including literature, photographs, special plant studies and general information concerning available manufacturing space, will be furnished upon application to

LOUIS SCHLESINGER, Inc.

Times Building, New York

then, too, the working man-

realizing what an all important part he will play in this readjustment, has placed himself in readiness to co-operate with manufacturers who locate their plants in this metropolitan industrial center.

Male labor is abundant owing to the large number of factories employing females and 15,000 men of all trades, skilled and unskilled, are at present available for immediate employment, on terms and conditions which will meet the requirements of every Works Manager. Besides there is a population of a million within easy trolley distance to supply additional labor.

Other features which will appeal to every manufacturer are:

FACTORY BUILDINGS—Some of the most modern types have been cleared to receive the equipment of almost any industry for immediate operation and those requiring factories of special design may have a building erected according to their own plans on most attractive terms.

TRANSPORTATION—Three trunk line railroads with freight and passenger depots. Hundreds of trains daily with direct commutation to New York. Switch track sidings for freight traffic on main lines.

POWER—The natural advantage of hydro-electric power is added to the usual utility corporation service and the many self-contained power units within the various plants. Direct rail connection to the great coal fields.

BANKING—Accustomed to dealing with manufacturers, and knowing the needs of industrial plants, the officers of the nine local banks are standing behind this campaign and have promised their support.

HOUSING—City life if you like it; but only a short run into the suburbs with modest homes for the workers and elaborate places for those desiring them. Moving picture theatres and amusement places. Golf and country clubs.

LOCATION—Only 17 miles from Times Square, with improved highways for trucking and trolley lines radiating in every direction to neighboring cities and towns.

SPECIAL—The unusual thing about this place which may not be contained in other metropolitan communities is that the merchants, bankers, manufacturers and working people have clubbed together in a whole-hearted way to support any new manufacturing enterprise.

I was asked to write a message on THRIFT to help along the NATIONAL THRIFT MOVEMENT, which starts to-day, and to donate the space required to print it in the newspapers to the New York City Thrift Week Committee of the Y. M. C. A.

Next to Love, I think Thrift is the most important word in the English language.

Please get in your mind the words that I have used in connection with the letters that spell the word THRIFT.

Collectively, these are some of the finest words in the English language and mean the most to us.

You will observe that such words as Stingy, Selfish, Sinful, cannot be associated with the word THRIFT.

Why not make a resolution right now to follow the precepts of BENJAMIN FRANKLIN, whose birthday anniversary is to-day?

But, more important still, why don't we organize and put behind the Thrift Movement all of the energy and patriotism we put into war work?

Can you think of anything more important to do now than to establish the principles of Thrift in the minds of the American people?

Solomon, who was very wise and very rich, has sent down through the ages these words of wisdom:

"He becometh poor that worketh with a slack hand, but the hand of the diligent maketh rich"

"He that tilleth his land shall have plenty of bread."

"He that gathereth by labor shall have increase."

THE SCREEN

"Prisoners of Love," which came to the Capitol Theatre yesterday, violates some of the most approved, or at least widely observed, movie traditions. It falls into the category of "social drama," yet it is genuinely dramatic and its people are such as one meets in social life. It is full of "plot," it even has "punch," and yet the photoplaywright does not appear as the immediate cause of everything that happens. Much of it seems to come about quite naturally, and though coincidence is by no means excluded, the work allotted to it is the entirely legitimate duty of bringing the characters into situations in which the emphasis comes on the characters as people rather than on the situations as "plot." And the "hero" and "heroine," not to mention the "villain," have their human sides. In fact, the only place in which the photoplay runs strictly true to movie form is in its title, which, like most titles, doesn't mean much, and is obviously a matter of form, rather than substance.

The story of "Prisoners of Love," in outline, would run about like other screen stories. There is a girl of sincere nature, but with more animal magnetism, or what Barrie calls "charm," than she can control, or rightly estimate. But she has character, and when she discovers that her father is normally deficient in this commodity, she leaves his house, to try life independently. She proves magnetic for the inevitable man, and her untrustworthy impulses persuade her that she has found true and lasting love. The man is a butterfly, however, and, having fluttered over one flower for a moment, quickly flies to the next, which happens to be the girl's younger and more frivolous sister. Through this fact, the girl is brought back to her father's house where the main crisis of the story comes, and, though it is melodramatic, it does not seem unreal, and, besides throwing the characters into strong relief, it opens a plausible way for the expected happy ending.

This plot, treated in the usual fashion, would be just usual. But players, director and cameramen have co-operated to endow it with life. Every member of the cast is good, and the best of all is Betty Compson in the leading rôle. [illegible] woman after an apprenticeship in comedies and other lesser works that passed practically unnoticed, came under the expert direction of George Loane Tucker and suddenly brightened the film firmament as a real star in "The Miracle Man," but how much of her radiance was due to Mr. Tucker, and how much to her own ability, no one could say positively. So many "stars" have only reflected the light of their directors. But Miss Compson, it seems, is a competent person, and, after "The Miracle Man," proceeded to organize her own company, and take charge of the affairs of its business office as well as those of its studio. "Prisoners of Love" is the initial result of her energy, and the immediate conclusion is that she has not been wasting her time. Her most important accomplishment, however, is as an actress on the screen. She has made good the promise of "The Miracle Man." In her silent photographs she is expressive, her looks, gestures, positions mean something, and with the rare quality of expression, she has the even rarer quality of restraint, which defines and deepens [illegible]

The others in the cast, especially Ralph Lewis as the father, are clear and good in their parts. They are Claire McDowell, who adds a genuine touch as the mother, Clara Horton as the sister, [illegible] Kate Toncray as his mother, and Roy Stewart as the bulwark between the story and an unhappy ending.

Arthur Rosson, who directed the picture, and his associates behind the camera have done excellent work. There is more imaginative photography in "Prisoners of Love" than in most motion pictures. Apparently Mr. Rosson's idea was to put the story, its people and their meaningful actions, rather than a thousand nonessential details, into moving pictures, and he has achieved noteworthy success. He has not just photographed a succession of stage sets.

Also on the Capitol program is one of Grantland Rice's Sport Pictorials, the first of which was shown some months ago. It is to be hoped that the series will now continue with regularity, for besides reminding cliff-dwellers and subway sun-dodgers that there are such things as exercise, outdoors and health, the two Pictorials seen by the writer are good works in cinematography, with the touch of humor that makes their message entertaining. This week's issue is called "Making Man-Handlers," and shows interestingly that classroom studies and military drill are only a part of the life of the West Point cadet.

The joy in the screen version of "The Devil," at the Strand this week, is in the acting of George Arliss, one of the latest and most valuable acquisitions of the screen. Mr. Arliss photographs well, as they say, and is an easy actor. When he walks away from the camera out of a room there is significance in the way he tosses his opera cloak over one shoulder and in the angle at which he sets his walking stick. He even stands intense close-ups without destroying the illusion.

But as a photoplay "The Devil" doesn't score heavily. Those who saw the original play will probably set up a howl, and their anger will be justified, for "The Devil" seems one of those plays that should not be attempted by the camera. Apparently it requires sounds, voices especially, to make it effective. Perhaps, also, in the adaptation, the course of the plot has been altered. At any rate, on the screen, its diabolical principal seems merely a meddlesome busybody who ought to be shot or ignored, and his victims do not arouse much sympathy. They are so idiotic. It is possible that a more imaginative treatment would have made the story impressive in pictures, but it has been rather literally handled, and except when Mr. Arliss simply compels attention by his pantomime its hold on the spectator is not firm. Only occasionally does one of the moving pictures assert itself.

Those in the cast, none of whom can be held responsible for the weakness of the photoplay, are Sylvia Breamer, Lucy Cotton, Mrs. Arliss, Edmund Lowe and Roland Bottomerley. The director was James Young.

George Fitzmaurice's "Paying the Piper," with Dorothy Dickson, and the second installment of the Vandenbergh African pictures are at the Rivoli. "Something Different," with Constance Binney, directed by R. William Neill, is at the Rialto. "Outside the Law," with Priscilla Dean, was shown at the Lyric, Longacre, Astor and George M. Cohan theatres yesterday. "Jerusalem" was the subject of Burton Holmes's travelogue at Carnegie Hall last night and will be repeated there this afternoon.

Thibaud and Others Heard.

Jacques Thibaud appeared at the Metropolitan last evening, playing Saint-Saëns's violin concerto in B minor with the opera orchestra under Mr. Bamboschek's direction. Heinrich Warnke had a 'cello solo in Massenet's early music to a tragedy, "Les Erinnyes," while three stars in opera airs were Miss Garrison, Messrs. Picco and Mardones.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Jacob Ben-Ami will appear again in Yiddish at the Jewish Art Theatre next Sunday afternoon, when he will be seen at a special performance of Hirschbein's "The Idle Inn." Celia Adler will also play her original role.

There will be a meeting of the Drama League at the Plymouth Theatre next Sunday afternoon. Heywood Broun will speak.

Rehearsals of the new Nine o'Clock Revue to be presented on the Ziegfeld roof, will begin today. Bird Millman, the wire walker, has been engaged for the new Midnight Frolic.

Cortes and Peggy, of "The Passing Show of 1921," have been engaged for the new "Midnight Rounders," to be seen at the Century Promenade in about two weeks.

"Easy to Get," a dramatization by Max Marcin and Frederick S. Isham of a novel by Mr. Isham, will be produced by Mr. Marcin next season.

Those who will appear at the Hippodrome next Sunday night, in aid of the Neighborhood Circle, will include Raymond Hitchcock, master of ceremonies; Marilynn Miller, Leon Errol, and Julia Sanderson, the Duncan Sisters, Doyle and Dixon, Belle Story and Joe Jackson.

The Crescent Dramatic Company, of Brooklyn, will present "Nearly Married" at the Brooklyn Masonic Temple, Clermont and Lafayette Avenues, on Thursday night, Jan. 21.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The Friends of Music.

The Friends of Music moved again for their concert yesterday afternoon, this time to Aeolian Hall, where they enlisted the assistance of M. Bodanzky and a section of the National Orchestra. The newly organized chorus of the Friends of Music also took part, making on this occasion its first appearance.

The program contained some unfamiliar music, both new and old. The old comprised Spohr's overture to his wholly forgotten opera of "Jessonda" and Brahms's short cantata of "Naenia," a setting of Schiller's hexameters, lamenting the perishability of beauty. The new comprised Ferruccio Busoni's concertino for clarinet and small orchestra, and G. Francesco Malipiero's "Grottesco" for small orchestra. Both the new pieces were heard here for the first time.

Busoni's concertino is an unpretending piece, pleasing in some of its aspects, notably in the sympathy the composer has displayed for the tone and technique of the instrument. Busoni, like some other distinguished pianists, is anxious to shine as a composer and to gain thereby a more durable fame than fate allots to any interpreting artist, however gifted. But, also like some other distinguished pianists, he has failed to convince the world of the superiority of his creative gifts; whereat he is said to sorrow.

It may be feared that this concertino, which was excellently played by Mr. Chiaffarelli, first clarinettist of the orchestra, will not go far toward convincing the world. It seems to lack distinction in its substance; but at least it shows few of the ostentatious extravagances of the modern method.

So much cannot be said for Malipiero's "Grottesco." He seems to have sought for all the extravagant methods to be discovered for being grotesque; and he has been singularly successful. The piece makes little impression as music; and of course the composer has not attempted to have it do so. The various more or less strange combinations of sound that he has evolved are not always pleasant; some may find them "interesting." It is doubtful if they are important.

Mr. Bodanzky, after he had finished it, turned to the audience and said that, on account of its novelty, in justice to the composer, he would play it again; which he did. This justice was not tempered by mercy for the audience. It may be said, however, that there is nothing really difficult of comprehension in this music; nor need it be assumed that because it was not liked it was not understood.

The overture to Spohr's old opera undoubtedly sounds old fashioned, yet is pleasing in its old fashion. The crown and climax of the concert came in Brahms's noble setting of Schiller's stately verses — music of profound beauty, deeply felt and glowingly written, both for chorus and orchestra. The new chorus of about 50 won well deserved admiration. Its training by Mr. Townsend has advanced far in the few months of its existence, and its singing yesterday, which showed some beautiful effects in dynamics and in timbre, promises well for the future. It is going to be a main reliance of the Friends of Music.

Cantors Sing for Hospital.

Seventy men of the Cantors' Association of America, led by Leon Kramer and S. Zilbertz, assisted their famous tenor, Josef Rosenblatt, yesterday afternoon at the Hippodrome in a concert for the benefit of King Solomon Hospital. Three sisters, Elsie, Greta and Marie Hilger, making their bow as the Bohemian Trio, were heard in a theme and variations of Tchaikovsky, while Mr. Rosenblatt gave ritual airs and improvisations, adding an air from "Carmen."

Toscanini Conducts Again.

Arturo Toscanini and the Scala Orchestra gave another extra concert last evening at the Hippodrome, a benefit under distinguished auspices for the Society for Prevention of Tuberculosis. The Italian conductor presented Dvorak's popular symphony "From the New World" and a tone poem, "Juventus," by his countryman, De Sabatta, lately produced here by Damrosch. There were operatic pieces from "Barber of Seville," "Parsifal" and "Damnation of Faust." The receipts were estimated at $21,000, of which it was said about $15,000 would go to the Tuberculosis Society.

Philharmonic Plays Wagner.

The Philharmonic's second all-Wagner matinee filled Carnegie Hall to overflowing yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Stransky presented the composer's "Faust" overture and varied excerpts from six music dramas. The large audience applauded most the "Valkyrie" fire music and preludes to "Master Singers" and "Tannhauser." A two-hour program added selections from "Lohengrin," "Tristan" and "Parsifal."

MUSIC NOTES.

Helen Stover, Beryl Rubenstien, Ferry Corwey and a chorus of 200 will appear next Sunday at the Hippodrome for the United Odd Fellows' Orphan Asylum.

Cecil Arden, Martha Atwood, Josef Schlisky, Josef Fuchs and Ruth Clug will assist in a concert of the Jewish Forum at the Republic Theatre next Sunday.

Everhard Beverwijk, a blind pianist from Holland, will give his first recital here on Sunday next at the Hotel Astor. He has appeared in South America.

Members of the Musical Protective Union, Local 150, are to give their services gratis at many theatres on Jan. 30 for the famine sufferers in China.

Mme. Tetrazzini plans to found a society of Daughters of the Italian Revolution, patterned after the Daughters of the American Revolution in this country.

Mana Zucca, the song writer, has offered through the American Music Optimists of 4 West 130th Street a prize of $500 for the best quintet by an American composer.

C. F. Jamison, General Manager of the ELGIN MOTOR CAR CORPORATION, was in New York last week attending the Auto Show. With Mrs. Jamison, he saw "OVER THE HILL" at the BROADHURST THEATRE. He said:
"DURING ALL MY YEARS AS A THEATRE PATRON I CAN RECALL NO PERFORMANCE THAT I HAVE SEEN WHICH OVERSHADOWS 'OVER THE HILL.'
It is entertainment, lesson, a comforter, and touches chords that few dramas do. I am glad I devoted one of my evenings to attending this play."

NEW YORK, MONDAY, JAN. 17, 1921.

A LAW-BREAKING DEPARTMENT.

Congress passed an act on May 22, 1918, providing, among other things, that, after it should be put into effect by the President's proclamation and subject to such reasonable rules, regulations and exceptions as he might prescribe, no alien should enter the United States without a passport bearing the visé of a United States Consul. The act forbade any alien to enter or attempt to enter the country except upon such a passport and subject to such regulations and limitations as the President should lay down. Mr. Wilson issued his proclamation on Aug. 18, 1918. He ordered that no alien should receive permission to enter the United States "unless it "shall affirmatively appear that there "is reasonable necessity" for his coming and that it "is not prejudicial to the United States."

Moreover, this Passport Control act and the regulations made by the President are not "to supersede or "suspend any rules or regulations issued under the Chinese Exclusion "law or the immigration laws, except "as herein expressly provided, but "the provisions hereof shall, subject "to the provisions above mentioned, "be regarded as additional to such "rules and regulations." The President expressly charged the Secretary of State with the power to grant permission to aliens to enter or leave; the Secretary of State and no other official. All other departments of the Government were directed to co-operate with him in the execution of his duties under the proclamation and the rules and regulations made in pursuance of it. The Secretary of Labor was directed, upon the Secretary of State's request, to "appoint a representative to render to the Secretary "of State or his representative such "assistance or advice as he may desire respecting the administration of "this proclamation and of the rules "and regulations aforesaid."

By an Executive order the Secretary of State is "authorized, in his discretion, to prescribe exceptions to "these rules and regulations." Observe, then, that no alien, unprovided with a viséd passport, can lawfully enter the United States unless the Department of State makes an exception in his case. Nobody else can grant permission. The Secretary of Labor's duties in the matter are purely advisory, co-operative, auxiliary, and exist only in so far as the Secretary of State chooses to call them into being. Such was the law, for the willful violation of which or of any order or proclamation of the President, or any permit, rule or regulation under it, Congress ordained a fine of not more than $5,000. Such is the law, for, in October, 1919, the Passport Extension Control act went into effect, extending the Passport Control act till March 4, 1921.

Instead of co-operating with the State Department to enforce this law, the Labor Department breaks it openly and assumes a usurped and lawless competence of its own. The Assistant Secretary of Labor, whose inexhaustible tenderness to exclusibles and deportables has been displayed so often, naturally disregards this statute. When weary of flouting the Department of Justice he flouts the State Department. Mr. Newton of Minnesota said in the House on Jan. 8:

> The Department of Labor is today, and has been for some time, I do not know how long, admitting aliens from Europe into America who do not bear viséd passports, and they are doing this in instances where the State Department has expressly refused to waive the requirements. I know of several such instances.

Mr. Newton cited this edifying example:

> It is the Geitz case. I requested to see the file and after some difficulty saw it and examined it. The opinion prepared for the Secretary to sign provided for the immigrant's admission, provided the State Department waived the visé provision. The typewritten portion containing this proviso was stricken out with a big, broad pen line through it, and the opinion was signed by the Assistant Secretary of Labor, Mr. Post.

According to Mr. Newton, "the "Secretary of Labor is openly dis- "regarding the law and holds that the "law does not pertain to him." The case of Donal O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, who arrived, a stowaway without a passport, at Newport News on Jan. 5, illustrates the contempt of law, of the President's orders and proclamations, that prevails in the Labor Department. O'Callaghan had no passport. Under the law he should have been sent back unless the Secretary of State chose to permit him to enter. Nobody else has the authority. O'Callaghan came as an unsolicited witness before the volunteer Villard committee. His purposes have nothing to do with the case. He violated the law, a criminal statute. The Solicitor of the Treasury held that there was no reason to make an exception of his case. On Jan. 11 the Acting Secretary of State requested the Labor Department to deport O'Callaghan. He is not an immigrant. The pretense that he is a "political refugee" is sickening hypocrisy. A board of inquiry in the Labor Department held that he should be excluded. Secretary Wilson overruled that decision, instructed the immigration authorities at Newport News to release O'Callaghan; and so this privileged person was permitted to go to Washington and testify. Later it was ruled that he had acquired the "status" of a seaman. Why not that of a diplomat? So the law of the land is played with. A passportless alien is encouraged and protected by the Department of Labor. We don't blame O'Callaghan. The unlawful suspension of the law by the Secretary of Labor deserves the strongest censure. It is not only an instance. It is a habit. The Department of Labor puts itself above and beyond the law.

THE POLICE INCUBUS.

In all the rumors and reports about the Police Commissioner and the Mayor, one fact stands out. The sole question with the City Hall is whether Mr. Hylan can any longer stagger under the load. The thing discussed in Fourteenth Street is whether Tammany can further put up with a growing political danger. Police scandals have wrecked more than one administration in New York. Is there any way of getting out from under now?

That is the big problem with which the great minds that gather about Mayor Hylan are grappling. The thought of giving the city a really efficient and honest police force, from top to bottom, does not occur to them. No inquiry into the facts is proposed; no investigation of the prevailing discontent and apprehension in the community as regards the police. The only questions are: "How much is "this hurting us? How many votes "will it cost us in the municipal election this year?"

This being so, it is obvious that a change of Police Commissioner, or a refusal to change him, will have no other than a political motive. If the powers that be decide that they simply can't "stand for" Enright any longer, he will have to go. But this will merely mean, not that they disapprove his methods or are looking for a better man, but that they have taken fright, and want to get rid of the Old Man of the Sea before he strangles them.

THE ARMY MUST BE ADEQUATE.

Congress can go too far in reducing the enlisted strength of the regular army, and it will go too far if the final decision is to make a cut to 150,000 men. General Pershing's view that the minimum should be 200,000, because world conditions are still unsettled and general peace is not assured, leaves out of consideration the presence in the country of the veterans of the war in France who would be available for active service in a great emergency. At the last session of Congress appropriations were made for an enlisted force of 175,000 men, but the War Department contended that the Reorganization act was mandatory in fixing the strength of the engineers, Signal Corps, infantry, cavalry, field and coast artillery and other branches of the army, including the Air and Chemical Warfare Services. It is true that definite numbers are stated in Sections 9 to 20, and that the sum of them would exceed 175,000 as the enlisted strength; but Section 2 provides that "except "in time of war or similar emer- "gency, when the public safety de- "mands it, the number of enlisted "men shall not exceed 280,000, in- "cluding the Philippine Scouts." There is a plain implication here.

The enlisted strength of the regular army should never fall so low as to disrupt any of its constituent organizations and thus prevent the orderly and necessary expansion contemplated by the act of June 4, 1920. But it should be obvious that Congress has the power to say that the enlisted strength of the regular army shall not stand at 280,000 men, Secretary Baker to the contrary notwithstanding. The Senate did not take his argument seriously when it discussed enlisted forces of 175,000 and 150,000 men. Hereafter, when Congress makes an appropriation that does not provide for the maximum complement indicated by the Reorganization act, the mandatory theory is not likely to be urged as justification for excessive recruiting.

From a hospital bed Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, who has always devoted himself to legislation for the national defense, urged the Senate, when it was considering the Lenroot amendment reducing enlisted strength to 150,000 men, to make the minimum 175,000. It must be considered that before the World War the authorized strength of the regular army was fixed at 100,000; the actual strength was slightly less in 1914. During the war the United States accumulated a great deal of army property and vast stores of munitions, which must be guarded and preserved. Auxiliary branches were added to the land force to make it a modern army—it was far from being a modern army in the Summer of 1914. The Air Service—particularly the Air Service—the Chemical Warfare Service, the Tank Corps, the Motor Transport Corps and the new machine-gun organizations must be kept up or the United States Army will cease to be worth the money spent upon it. An enlisted force of 150,000 men would not be sufficient to perform the duties of the reorganized army. The minimum should not be less than 175,000. That is not too large an army for a country of our vast extent, with a population of more than one hundred millions, with one frontier that must constantly be guarded and with laws that guarantee protection and the preservation of order at home. It would be regarded by conservative army officers as the irreducible nucleus. Economy in army and navy expenditures is highly desirable, but parsimony would be fatuous.

WAYS WITH WARSHIPS.

England is proposing to stop building bigger warships because, after they are built, docks and harbors must be enlarged to make them useful or practicable. The total expense runs into too much money for unproductive uses, where the expenditure does not bring in the cost of the capital, but increases current outlay. In that decision the Government only adopts the decision which commerce made first, and for the same reasons. The day of the leviathans seems to be passing, for peace as well as war.

Secretary Baker has announced that he favors the construction of a second Panama canal, because otherwise it would be necessary to limit the increase of the size of battleships. Existing battleships are 105 feet wide, and the Panama locks are only 110 feet wide. Already traffic through the canal taxes its capacity, and the need of another for commerce is apparent. Even on that argument there is room for second thought. In 1920 the Treasury received from the canal earnings $6,608,462, and paid out $12,188,841, to say nothing of such capital costs as private concerns must care for or face insolvency. Also, the Governor of the Canal Zone testified before the Interoceanic Committee last week that the method of measurement for the payment of tolls was such that there has been a loss of $6,000,000 in tolls since the canal has been operated, and that another method, the same for all ships, would collect that loss from foreign ships, for the most part. Discrimination against foreign ships in favor of Americans is rightly forbidden. It would cost us more than the tolls if we sought to free American ships from any tolls collected from foreigners, for our faith is pledged to the contrary. If all ships paid on the basis of actual tonnage, instead of net tonnage, which is an arbitrary figure, there would be complaint, although there would be no discrimination; but the canal would more nearly pay for its cost.

RAILWAY FARES AND TRAFFIC.

When the Interstate Commerce Commission was refusing to raise freight rates because, for one reason, it was unpopular, Seth Low proposed that fares should be reduced as a means of reconciling the public to freight increases. It is obvious that passengers vote and freight does not, while shippers are too few to make their votes important. As a principle of rate-making that seemed more expedient than economic, but even the expediency of that method of fixing fares is thrown into doubt by the latest figures of the effect of the increased fares on travel. The increase was more severe than the freight increase, there being a surcharge which was resented almost as deeply as the excess profits tax. That, at least, is not paid unless there are excess profits, but there is no fund to offset the surcharge on fares, and it has been thought that the result would be to decrease travel and reduce the railway earnings which it was intended to increase.

The fact is that in September last 104,351,950 passengers were carried, compared with 103,204,614 in 1919. The increase in average fare was 17 cents, to $1.23, although the average journey was a fraction of a mile less. The increase in riding is all the more notable because it contrasts with a decreased movement of freight in that month of about three billion tons, over an average haul about thirteen miles longer. The difference in the journeys is probably explained by the fact that more than the usual travel was domestic, and that a considerable part of the freight was for export. The freight figures are more important to the railways, for freight earnings are thrice passenger earnings. That is the reason why haste is made to report the freight earnings, which are always some months ahead of the passenger earnings.

There is little surprise in the fact that the increase of fares failed to reduce travel. In England fares were made punitive with the intention of lessening travel on the overtaxed railways, but passengers were not kept away. Fares are a small part of a journey's expense over moderate distances, and railway service is a necessity for both passengers and shippers, for the most part. Joy riders would pay any fares any public authority would venture to fix, and that portion of travel is irreducible by Pullman surcharges. Commercial travelers are most aggrieved, but their complaint is more personal than economic.

EXPANDING RUSSIA.

Since the defeat of General Wrangel the neighbors of Red Russia have been extremely uneasy. Bolshevist principle demands a world crusade, and the practical advantage of the Bolshevist Government might be served by a crusade with the more modest objective of restoring the old frontiers of the Russian Empire. Some of the leaders of that Government undoubtedly want war and some do not; the decision lies in Moscow, and it will be made for reasons not all of which are visible to the outside world.

At the moment it looks as if no war is immediately intended. The Bolsheviki have recovered a good part of the Transcaucasian provinces of Russia; through puppet governments they control Armenia and Azerbaijan, and not long ago they were concentrating troops on the Georgian frontier. But news comes from Tiflis that this concentration has ceased and that the troops already on the border are being dispersed. Georgia can wait.

Far away to the west Red armies have been slowly gathering on the Dniester and threatening the Rumanian hold on Bessarabia. The extent of this movement seemed alarming to French military and diplomatic observers, but not to the Rumanians. A note from Moscow proposing to discuss the question of Bessarabia was answered by Bucharest with the flat statement that there was nothing to discuss. The question is still open; the Bolsheviki have an issue on which they can start a war if they feel so inclined, but Rumania appears to have no immediate apprehensions.

In spite of many oratorical flourishes at Riga and of many alarming reports of Russian concentration on the Polish frontier, the Russo-Polish peace treaty has been almost completed. It may be broken the day after it is signed, and so long as the Poles lend encouragement to Zeligowski's filibuster at Vilna they are inviting a Russian attack through Lithuania. But war does not seem inevitable on this front either.

A week or so ago there were alarums and excursions in the Baltic States; women attachés of foreign missions were hastily sent away and the Lettish and Esthonian Governments prepared to face a Red invasion and a Red rising. Now, for some obscure reason, the Baltic breathes more easily. The rumors of wars are thus far unfulfilled.

But at any moment the dire predictions may come true, if the extremists get hold of the Moscow Government. And if the Bolsheviki do take the offensive, most of their neighbors will be in for trouble. Poland and Rumania can probably hold their own. But Esthonia, even supported by Finland, and Latvia, even with the aid of Poland, could hardly hold back the Russian steam roller very long. On the opposite corner of Russia, Georgia would probably fall as easily as Armenia fell if the Bolsheviki were free to give their attention to the Caucasus. Our State Department has incurred much criticism by adopting the policy of Kerensky and refusing for the present to recognize any alienation of former Russian territory except in Finland and Poland. Theoretically the policy is open to many objections, but it seems to be based on the practical consideration that some day Russia would want to recover the Baltic and Transcaucasian States, and that she would be able to take them whenever she wanted them. Before long we may see this theory put to the test.

REPUBLICANS AND THE SOUTH.

Ex-President Taft has been discussing in The Public Ledger of Philadelphia the Republican plan—or hope—to break up the Solid South. For this he declares that Mr. Harding "thinks that the time is ripe." Republican victories in Kentucky, Tennessee and Oklahoma, together with the lowered Democratic majorities in most of the Southern States, make an opening for the new President of which he is said to be anxious to make the most effective use. The turning of so many Southern Democrats to the Republican ticket in the November election is regarded by Mr. Taft as a "revolt "against the iron habit of Southern "Democracy" and as a sign that a Republican vote in a Southern State has ceased to be regarded as "a "breach of a sacred community obli- "gation."

As soon, however, as we come to the details of building up a Republican party in the South, that community obligation reasserts itself. Southern Republicans insist that their party must be "lily white." In particular, no negroes must be appointed to Federal offices in the South. The Southern Republican leaders admit, according to Mr. Taft, that competent colored men, who are also good Republicans, are to be found in many Southern districts, but protest that "the psychology of the situation" forbids the selection of any of them for public office. But did not Mr. Roosevelt take the position that the door of hope must not be closed to the negroes, as it would be by making them ineligible to party rewards? Certainly; and the latter-day Southern Republicans declare that they want the door to political preferment of qualified negroes to be kept open—but solely in the North, if you please. They would be delighted to see a lot of colored Postmasters and Collectors in Northern cities, and wouldn't mind it if a few negro Registers were appointed in Washington, but there must be no nonsense of that kind in the South. Otherwise, the Southern Republicans would have to throw up the job and the South would be solider than ever.

Mr. Taft's argument on general principles is sound. It would be better for even local government in the South if there were a vigorous opposition party, fit and ready to take charge of the administration of a State when the party in power had given dissatisfaction. And the certainty for years past that the electoral vote of the South would go to the Democratic Party, no matter who its nominee or what its policies, has been bad both for the South and for the Democratic Party. But the race question which has kept the South solid does not promise to yield to any solution which the Republicans have thus far offered or are likely to propose.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Mr. Macauley Has a Sad Experience. After getting from a Judge and jury an award of $100,000 as damages for arrest and indictment on charges that were not true, there is something of hardship as well as a lot of disappointment in having a higher court decide—and by the close vote of three Justices against two—that no damages at all are to be paid.

That has just been the painful experience of a Toronto mining man who was accused of swindling operations here and in St. Louis for no better reasons than that he happened to be in the two cities when the swindling was done, and that in build and general appearance he resembled the man who did it. On this much of "circumstantial evidence" Mr. Macauley, though of reputation previously unblemished even by false suspicion, not only was subjected to the humiliations of arrest and indictment, and advertised pretty well over the whole country as a passer of forged checks, but he was, or thought himself, in such danger of conviction that he spent some $12,000 in proving himself innocent—a task which nobody should be forced to undertake.

He did prove it, helped not a little by the decidedly belated catching by the police of the real criminal, and then he sued the several firms whose mistaken identification of him had made all the trouble for him—and them. He did not charge malice on the part of his accusers or of the police, but he declared that he had been injured, as indeed he had been, and he sought, as well he might, the only consolation for his losses and his griefs that the circumstances permitted.

And now, after almost four years of waiting and worrying, he is told that for his undenied wrongs the law provides no redress! With this decision he will have to be content—or not content, as he chooses—unless he ventures still higher into the legal atmosphere on the small but expensive chance that there the reversal of the original award will be reversed.

Judges and Jurors Are Unlike. On considering the experience of Mr. Macauley, one observes in it, first, a seeming confirmation of the common prejudice against circumstantial evidence. The confirmation is only seeming, for such evidence carries with it certainly no more or greater possibilities of error than does direct testimony, and perhaps not as many. For, though circumstances can be misinterpreted, as they were in this instance, at least they never are guilty of perjury, and they are not betrayed by interest or sympathy or antagonism into saying honestly the thing that is not so.

Looking further into the case, one sees illustrated by it an essential difference between a board of Judges and a box full of jurors. In spite of the Court's invariable warning, and in spite even of their oaths, jurors incline to regard what they think equity rather than the law's strict letter. Judges, on the other hand, and as they should, take the law as they find it, and pass responsibility to the legislators.

The reasons given for denying damages to Mr. Macauley—that the defendants were not alone in bringing about his wrongs, and that to make them pay would tend to discourage prosecution for crimes committed—probably do not seem to him entirely satisfactory, or even very relevant to the vindication of his rights. Other laymen will be disposed to agree with him—as did, for that matter, the two dissenting Justices—yet even a layman can see that what Mr. Macauley suffered was something likely to occur, now and then, under any system of law enforcement and without any evil intent on anybody's part.

Our Wards Seem Ungrateful. Considering the origin of the Republic of Panama and the present fact that upon the safety and prosperity of the canal all its interests and its very existence depend, its officials reasonably might be expected to view the American Government at least with good-will. For them to put difficulties in the way of that Government's acquisition—with due compensation, of course—of a few acres of land near one of the canal entrances and needed or desirable for its adequate defense—surely such a proceeding hints that the Panamese—or Panamans or whatever their name may be—are not quite as well equipped as they might be with either gratitude or wisdom.

They object, it seems, to having this little transaction in isthmian real estate put through—or over—by the military authorities of the Zone; they want the thing done by diplomatic representatives of the two countries, presumably because they think that thus they could demand and get a higher price for their land. That, in itself, is not a criminal ambition, nor even an unworthy one, but in the circumstances it would become them to be gracious and trustful.

If they do not know that nobody wants to cheat or rob them, or is likely to do so, they are poor students of history. At any rate, it is not for them, however it may be for the Colombians, to dislike or suspect the Americans. That they do both, it did not need this episode to reveal, and the several differences between the two peoples make it likely that they always will do so. We fret them with our fussy notions about sanitation and lotteries and cock fights and strong drink and—but the list is endless, and the most trying item on it is that Panama is little and the United States big.

Applicants Should Be Numerous. With so many young doctors not finding the establishment of themselves in profitable practice the easiest thing imaginable, it seems likely that there will be not a few responses to the appeal of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions for a medical man, preferably married, to take charge of its station at Point Barrow in Alaska.

The pay offered—$2,000 a year, with housing, travel expenses and equipment, and $135 a month to the wife if she will and can teach the Indian children—is not colossal, but neither is it at all despicable. And the adventure of it—the chance to make fame if not fortune by writing for the magazines about what even a Canadian would admit to be life in the Arctic, the opportunity to be really helpful to people who according to all accounts are amiable as well as interesting.

Surely these are attractions for a young man and woman worthily inspired. Point Barrow is remote, and the Winter there is not exactly mild, but what of that? Nobody who ever went to Alaska denies the effectiveness of its stern charms.

AU REVOIR TO DR. FINLEY.

Mr. Glynn's Albany Paper Sounds His Praises, Refusing to Say Good-bye.

From The Albany Times-Union.

We all have a tendency to "go back home," and in going to The Times Dr. Finley "goes back home." The first work he ever did in life was in a printing shop, and, like Benjamin Franklin, he wrote his own articles and set his own type.

When Benjamin Franklin grew up and absorbed the wisdom of years he came to Albany and presided over an assemblage whose resolutions and debates were the educational basis for the adoption of the Declaration of Independence. And so, too, Dr. Finley came to Albany to preside over an educational mission, and the results of his work here will be blessed in the future with a benediction somewhat akin to that which rests upon the work of Benjamin Franklin in this city.

But Benjamin Franklin left Albany, and so does Dr. Finley. Benjamin Franklin went back to his writing and his printing in Philadelphia; and Dr. Finley goes back to it in New York. There is a magic in printer's ink. Once it gets into a man's system it never gets out. So Albany bids "au revoir" to Dr. Finley—but not "good-bye." While here he made himself an institution in the town. He put the State Department of Education on the map. His work as head of the educational system of New York has won the praise of leaders of national thought and the commendation of savants abroad. Amid the multitudinous duties of his official position he always found time to give himself to every civic and patriotic movement. He impressed his genius and his personality on the city, the State and the nation. His speeches were always greeted with acclaim everywhere. His writings in the leading magazines of the country told the world that Albany still held some of the literary aroma of Harold Frederic and Henry James and Saxe and Bret Harte. And, when tired of the dusty roads of prose, Dr. Finley, with an amazing facility, would put Albany on the Parnassian heights of poetry. Some of his poems have been reprinted wherever belles-lettres flourish, and in the anthologies of the poetry of the World War Dr. Finley has two or three poems that rank among the best.

But above all his literary work, above all his honors and achievements, Dr. Finley was human and lovable. Literary applause did not spoil him, honors from crowned heads did not change him. He was always a typical American—as typical today as when he first came out of the West.

Coal Prices.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During the war coal was scarce (owing to the great demand for it), means of transporting it were taxed to the breaking point and, during at least one winter, weather conditions over a large part of the country were very bad. During the terrible storms of that winter householders in this town were only allowed 100 pounds of coal at a time. The price of this was at the rate of $10 a ton (for pea coal, which is next to the smallest and cheapest size), and this price was about twice what the normal price had been.

Since that time, with improved mining, transportation and weather conditions, the price has steadily risen. I have before me four bills from our local dealer showing what this rise has been. Nov. 13, 1919, $9.50; March 12, 1920, $10.50; July 20, 1920, $11.75; Jan. 12, 1921, $13. Thirteen dollars a ton for pea coal!

Will Senator Calder's inquiry result in relief to the long-suffering public?

W. B. ABBOTT.

Forest Hills, Jan. 13, 1921.

WINTER'S A ROBBER.

Winter's a robber,
He hides loot,
Grass and song,
Leaf and fruit.

Winter's a thief,
Under your nose
He thrusts a hand
And your treasure goes.

Winter's a robber,
One day he Came to my garden
And took from me

A rainbow scarf
And a jeweled cup,
And gold that a dahlia
Wand held up.

There must be a cave
In sea or sky
Where he hides what he takes
As he passes by.

I wish I could find
His treasure heap,
With guarding winds
All fast asleep.

I'd snatch a flower,
A song, maybe;
Or the ribbon bough
Of a willow tree!

LOUISE DRISCOLL.

TO DEFEAT HOUSE INCREASE.

Republican Leaders Decide Against Reapportionment Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—As an economy measure Republican leaders in Congress have decided to prevent an increase in the size of the House in the reapportionment legislation requested every ten years to conform to the increase in population. The House Steering Committee in session yesterday went on record as against any increase over the present membership, 435, on the ground that an increase of forty-eight members as provided by the bill which will come before the House on Tuesday would mean an annual increase in expense of at least $1,000,000.

Objection is made to increasing the membership on the further ground that there is no public demand for an increased membership and that there is no public service that cannot be efficiently rendered by a House of 435 members. They say to accept the contention of the proponents of the bill would be making concessions to the slow-growing States which, they believe, should suffer in representation if need be. It is pointed out that if the present bill increasing the size of the house to 483 members were passed, no State would lose its present representation, but many large States would make great gains and would have such a preponderance in legislation as to make it possible for a few States east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio to control legislation in the next Congress.

DEFENDS COLLEGE MORALS.

Dr. Carstensen Declares Students Today Are Not Wild.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 16.—The Rev. Dr. Gustave Carstensen, rector of Holyrood Church, New York City, preaching at St. Stephen's College, Annandale-on-Hudson, this morning, declared that the young people of today were not wild or immoral. Talk about wild young people in college was nonsense, he said, even though the advocates of blue laws wept and wailed about the decay in morals and manners.

"I can say to you young men," added Dr. Carstensen, "that the average student in college today is at least twice as clean, twice as honest, and twice as hard a worker as was the average collegian of fifty years ago. We hear of wild groups at Princeton, Yale, &c. There are some such today, but they are in a small minority. In my day they dominated in every college. Moreover, while the collegian of today does not to the same extent advertise his allegiance to religion, fundamentally he is many times more interested in religion than my crowd in the 1870s. This is true everywhere, but I believe the students in small colleges, as a rule, have a higher standard of honor than those in larger ones and work much harder.

URGE PACIFYING EUROPE.

MILAN, Jan. 15.—At the close of the sessions here on Friday of the League of Nations Societies Conference the delegates addressed a telegram to the British and French League of Nations Societies, which had abstained from being represented at the conference, expressing regret over the absence of representatives of those nations.

The message added that the meeting had attained its object of bringing out expression of the viewpoints of the various nations represented at the gathering and that all had manifested their purpose to work together for the definite pacification of Europe.

The Milan conference of League of Nations Societies was called by the Italian League of Nations Society several months ago and was attended by Austrian, Bulgarian, German, Hungarian and Italian delegates. The British and French Societies declined to attend on the ground that the questions to be discussed had already been covered by the Geneva Assembly of the League.

ANN RUTLEDGE HONORED.

Granite Monument Is Placed on Grave of Lincoln's Sweetheart.

PETERSBURG, Ill., Jan. 16.—The grave of Ann Rutledge, sweetheart of Abraham Lincoln, who lies buried in Oakland Cemetery here, was marked yesterday with a granite monument purchased by descendants of those who were intimately acquainted with the great emancipator when he was located at New Salem.

The monument replaced a small crude stone, roughly hewn, inscribed "Ann Rutledge," which has been the only marker to the final resting place of the girl who was nearer and dearer to Lincoln than perhaps any one else in his early days.

The new stone is a massive one of dark Quincy granite and is inscribed with Edgar Lee Masters's poem, "Ann Rutledge."

ARCHIBALD ROOSEVELT HOME

Returns With 1,526 Others on the France—Tells of Oil Deal.

When the French liner France arrived yesterday from Havre with 1,528 passengers, Captain E. Maurras said he was twelve hours late because of stormy weather.

Archibald B. Roosevelt, who has been in France since November as representative of the Sinclair Oil Company, was a passenger. He said a deal had been closed by the American Sinclair Oil Company to take over a French oil company operating distributing stations throughout the country. The French people are willing to buy all the oil obtainable, Mr. Roosevelt added, and the market there was limited only by the supply.

Mr. Roosevelt was accompanied by Major G. G. McMurtry of 810 Fifth Avenue.

MILITIA TO GET EAGLE BOATS

Four to Be Brought Here From Portsmouth for Naval Training.

Fifteen officers and seventy-five men of the New York Naval Militia and Naval Reserve will leave today for Portsmouth, N. H., to bring into this Naval District four Eagle boats, Nos. 13, 23, 26 and 44, to be used for training militiamen and reserves. They expect to arrive in New York Friday or Saturday.

Eagles 13 and 23 will be assigned to the Second Battalion, Naval Militia, Fifty-Second Street, Brooklyn, and the other two craft to the First Battalion, U. S. S. Granite State, off West Ninety-seventh Street. Commodore R. F. Forshaw, commanding the militia, said yesterday that next Summer he expected to send the militia away for two-week practice cruises along the coast.

ABBOTT HITS COMMUNISM.

Defends America's Industrial Democracy Against Russian System.

Dr. Lyman Abbott defended what he called the "industrial democracy" of America against communism, yesterday afternoon, at a meeting in the West Side Y. M. C. A.

Prefacing his address with an acknowledgement of the faults of the present economic system, he outlined the theory and operation of communism by reading extracts from recent writings of Lenin and Trotzky, compared the industrial system of America and its theory, and concluded with the statement that the American system can confer more benefits on the worker than the Russian system.

PEACE PAINTINGS ON EXHIBIT HERE

DONE BY AMERICAN ARTISTS

President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George Are Portrayed at Their Desks.

Portraits of American and allied leaders who took part in the Peace Conference will be placed on exhibition today at the Metropolitan Museum of Art at a reception to members of the Museum and special guests from 2 to 5 o'clock. The exhibition will be opened to the public tomorrow.

The portraits, which were painted at the instance of the National Art Committee by American painters, different cities contributing the artists and the money for the work, will find a permanent home in the National Portrait Gallery, Washington, D. C. The exhibition will continue here until Feb. 12 and will then make the rounds of the large cities of the country before it reaches Washington. There are twenty-four portraits in all and twenty-one are to be shown in the New York exhibition. The other three have not yet been completed.

The Peace Conference, showing the gathering of the great war leaders of the world, has been completed so recently that it was only ready to hang this morning. It is a large painting and was painted by John C. Johansen. The other pictures as they are divided among the different artists are:

Leaders Shown at Desks.

An outstanding portrait is Cecilia Beaux's "Cardinal Mercier," in his clerical dress with the dominant note of red. On the opposite wall another portrait by the same artist, three-quarter length, which also stands out notably, is Admiral Beatty, in uniform, wearing a large cloak, his hands resting upon his sword, which he holds upright before him, while in the background is the suggestion of the sea and war.

Charles Hopkinson's three pictures are interesting because of their strong contrasts. There is elaboration of decoration and brilliancy of color in the background of the portrait of the handsome Premier of Rumania, Bratiano, who is sitting in a large chair in an easy attitude, resting his head against one hand. There is no bright color, but in the background of the portrait of the white bearded Premier Pachitch of Serbia, delegate from Jugoslavia, is seen the simple furniture in the room in which he sits as he holds a large book in both hands.

Quite different is that of the delegate to the Peace Conference from Japan, the fine old diplomat of eighty-two years, Prince Kimmochi Saionji. The picture is in gray and black and white. Gray is the prevailing note. The old statesman sits erect in the very centre of the canvas, gray in the immobile face and hair against a gray background. The simple outlines of a teakwood chair can be seen. The Prince wears dark European dress and there is the note of white at neck and wrists. His hands are folded in his lap. There is no decoration, the portrait being severe in its simplicity of color and line.

New War Pictures.

Visitors to the war portraits will find recent accessions in the museum which are of special interest. In the Recent Accessions Room there are acquisitions of the last five years for the Classical Department. Owing to the war it was not possible to transport them and they are now shown together. There is Greek sculpture of the best age of Grecian art, the fifth and fourth centuries B. C. Of a beautiful torso of a youth Miss Gisela M. A. Richter of the Classical Department says:

"Such a conception could never have been surpassed, even by the Greeks themselves, for they, too, passed from the simple, reverent spirit to which alone such a product is possible to a more complicated and restless age."

Another torso, that of a seated man, is shown. There is a statue of a boxer, fourth century B. C., and also of the same period a gravestone with a remarkably preserved bas-relief, and an "Old Fisherman" is of the Hellenistic period. The earliest piece is the archaic head of a youth, beginning of the fifth century B. C., the Museum's first piece of the period.

In bronzes, more than 100, there are acquisitions which in addition to the Museum's present collection will place it practically in the first rank in this department among the museums of the world, only Great Britain being able to dispute its supremacy. There are eighty new vases, thirty in Etruscan bucchero pottery, and of first excellence, and the fifteen Arretine molds place the Museum collection in the front rank in this line of art. Important terra cottas are also included in the accessions, and high among the additions is a tiny piece of amber, an archaic statuette of a woman carrying a child, delightfully finished and only two and one-half inches high.

Gold jewelry and the silver ornaments of an old jewel casket, all from the tomb of a Chinese empress of the T'ang period, are treasures, delicate, beautiful and very rare—an unusual find, which may be seen for the first time in the Department of Far Eastern Art.

Of interest to furniture experts are a couple of scrapbooks containing 207 sheets of original drawings of that famous maker of fine furniture, Chippendale. The books were picked up through what William M. Ivins Jr., the Museum's print expert, calls "one of fortune's oddest quirks," at an auction sale in New York last Spring. The British Museum has been proud to own fifteen original Chippendale drawings, and now, by this chance, these two books, containing 207 original drawings for Chippendale's book of designs, came over to America and fell into the hands of the man who knew their value.

FIGHT NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE

Nebraska Farmers Meet to Prevent Gaining of Foothold There.

CLAY CENTER, Neb., Jan. 16.—Charging that Non-Partisan League organizers are seeking the overthrow of existing farmers' organizations, farmers and business men united at a meeting called here last night by the American Legion to seek a method of halting the formation of a league in the county.

Feeling was tense and although the organizers were present they made no effort to speak.

A county mass meeting will be held Monday at which Earl Kline, former State Commander of the American Legion, will be the principal speaker.

ON ANTI-SEMITISM

A Notable Document Signed by Distinguished Americans, Led by President, Put on Record.

WHOLLY OF CHRISTIAN ORIGIN

Originated by John Spargo, Leaders of Thought Readily Signed It, Some of Them Adding Personal Comment.

BENNINGTON, Vt., Jan. 16.—A protest against anti-Semitic propaganda in the United States, bearing the signatures of President Wilson, William H. Taft, Cardinal O'Connell and 116 other widely known men and women of Christian faith, was made public here tonight by John Spargo, Socialist author. It exhorts particularly those who are "moulders of public opinion—the clergy and ministers of all Christian churches, publicists, teachers, editors and statesmen—to strike at this un-American and un-Christian agitation."

"We regret exceedingly," the protest says, "the publication of a number of books, pamphlets and newspaper articles, designed to foster distrust and suspicion of our fellow-citizens of Jewish ancestry and faith—distrust and suspicion of their loyalty and their patriotism."

A new and dangerous spirit, it asserts, is being introduced into the national political life by these publications, challenging and menacing American citizenship and American democracy. Men and women of Jewish faith, it declares, should not be required alone to "fight this evil, but that it is in a very special sense the duty of citizens who are not Jews by ancestry and faith."

Probably no similar document ever bore such a distinguished array of signatures. It is said to be quite unprecedented for such a memorial to bear the signatures of the President of the United States and the Secretary of State, as this does. In making it public Mr. Spargo also let it be known that no Jewish person or organization had anything to do with the preparation or publication of the protest.

"A single citizen, a non-Jew, acting upon his own initiative and responsibility, and without consultation with anybody," he said, "wrote the brief protest and invited other distinguished citizens, non-Jews like himself, to sign it. All the work connected with the protest and all the expense involved, therefore, represent the contribution of an individual citizen to the defense of American ideals. Neither directly nor indirectly did any person of Jewish ancestry or faith, or any Jewish organization, contribute as much as a postage stamp to the cost of the undertaking."

President Wilson's Opinion.

So far as the President's signature is concerned, it was learned that when the protest was submitted to Mr. Wilson by its originator there was no thought in his mind that the President would himself desire to sign the document. At most the originator believed and hoped that Mr. Wilson might send some word of sympathetic approval of the protest. The President, however, preferred to sign the document and personally requested that his name be attached. President Wilson wrote:

I have your letter of Dec. 22 and am heartily in sympathy with the protest against the anti-Semitic movement. I beg that you will add my name to the signatures.

With best wishes, sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

Ex-President Taft responded with great readiness and since then has spoken on the subject in a public address.

President-elect Harding, while preferring to avoid the creation of a troublesome precedent for himself by signing the memorial, which would make it difficult for him to refuse to give his name to other memorials for worthy causes in the future, took pains to make plain his emphatic disapproval of the anti-Semitic agitation. In a personal letter to the originator of the protest he wrote:

I am sure you can understand why, at the present time, I am seeking the avoidance of undue publicity and reluctant to make public statements relating to any of our pending problems. I am no less sure that you already know, and that the American people already believe, that I am giving no sanction to anything so narrow, so intolerant or so un-American as the anti-Semitic movement. I have been preaching the gospel of understanding and good-will, and no one who believes in these things and hopes for the concord of America can be interested in any movement aimed against any portion of our American citizenship. Very truly yours,
WARREN G. HARDING.

Mr. Lansing on the "Protocols."

The protest also bears the signatures of Secretary of State Colby and former Secretaries of State Lansing and Bryan. Secretary Colby cabled from South America his desire to be included among the signatories. Ex-Secretary Lansing in sending his adhesion to the protest explained that he had made a personal examination of the much discussed "protocols," and reached the conclusion that they were "forgeries circulated for malicious purposes." In his letter he wrote:

I remember that they were brought to my attention while I was Secretary of State, that I examined them and returned them to the division having charge of such matters with a statement that there was no evidence as to their authenticity, and that personally I considered them to be without the least foundation in fact, but forgeries circulated for malicious purposes. My examination took place certainly over a year ago, and it is possible that it was over two years ago—I am unable to say which. They are, in any event, entirely without evidence to support them. If I can do anything further to aid in this justifiable campaign against the enemies of the Jewish race in this country I will be glad to serve.

Cardinal O'Connell's Letter.

Cardinal O'Connell, in joining the protest, wrote as follows:

My attention has been brought to what would appear to be an organized campaign against the Jews in America. Such a campaign is entirely at variance with America's best traditions and ideals, and its only effect can be the introduction of religious tests to determine citizenship and a reign of prejudice and race hatred wholly incompatible with loyal and intelligent American citizenship. To discriminate against any race or religion is utterly un-American; and I, therefore, wish to register my protest against any campaign against the Jews or any other religious groups constituting the great citizenship of this country.
WILLIAM (Cardinal) O'CONNELL,
Archbishop of Boston.

The other signatures include such eminent representatives of the Protestant churches as Dr. Lyman Abbott, Dr. Robert E. Speer, President of the Federal Council of Churches; Bishop Williams of Michigan, Bishop Brewster of Maine and Bishop Brewster of Conn.; such eminent dignitaries of the Catholic Church as Archbishop Hayes and Bishop O'Connell, and other religious leaders so diverse in their general views from these two groups as Commander Booth of the Salvation Army, the Revs. John Haynes Holmes and Jesse H. Holmes, President of the National Federation of Religious Liberals. Others are Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University; Dr. John Grier Hibben, of Princeton University, and President Hopkins of Dartmouth College; the Rector of the Catholic University of America, Dr. Shahan; James M. Beck, John G. Agar, Paul D. Cravath, George Wharton Pepper, Judge Gray, and former Attorney General Wickersham, eminent lawyers and jurists; Jane Addams, Charles Dana Gibson, William Sergeant Kendall, the portrait painter; Judge Lindsay, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, the novelist; William Fellowes Morgan, R. Fulton Cutting, and Darwin P. Kingsley, men connected with large financial enterprises; Dr. DuBois, the radical negro editor; Henry C. Ide, the veteran diplomatist; former United States Sen-

Following is the text of their protest with the full list of signatures:

The undersigned, citizens of Gentile birth and Christian faith, view with profound regret and disapproval the appearance in this country of what is apparently an organized campaign of anti-Semitism, conducted in close conformity to and co-operation with similar campaigns in Europe. We regret exceedingly the publication of a number of books, pamphlets and newspaper articles designed to foster distrust and suspicion of our fellow-citizens of Jewish ancestry and faith—distrust and suspicion of their loyalty and their patriotism.

These publications, to which wide circulation is being given, are thus introducing into our national political life a new and dangerous spirit, one that is wholly at variance with our traditions and ideals and subversive of our system of government. American citizenship and American democracy are thus challenged and menaced. We protest against this organized campaign of prejudice and hatred, not only because of its manifest injustice to those against whom it is directed, but also, and especially, because we are convinced that it is wholly incompatible with loyal and intelligent American citizenship. The logical outcome of the success of such a campaign must necessarily be the division of our citizens along racial and religious lines, and, ultimately, the introduction of religious tests and qualifications to determine citizenship.

The loyalty and patriotism of our fellow citizens of the Jewish faith is equal to that of any part of our people, and requires no defense at our hands. From the foundation of this Republic down to the recent World War, men and women of Jewish ancestry and faith have taken an honorable part in building up this great nation and maintaining its prestige and honor among the nations of the world. There is not the slightest justification, therefore, for a campaign of anti-Semitism in this country.

Anti-Semitism is almost invariably associated with lawlessness and with brutality and injustice. It is also invariably found closely intertwined with other sinister forces, particularly those which are corrupt, reactionary and oppressive.

We believe it should not be left to men and women of Jewish faith to fight this evil, but that it is in a very special sense the duty of citizens who are not Jews by ancestry or faith. We therefore make earnest protest against this vicious propaganda, and call upon our fellow citizens of Gentile birth and Christian faith to unite their efforts to ours, to the end that it may be crushed. In particular, we call upon all those who are molders of public opinion—the clergy and ministers of all Christian churches, publicists, teachers, editors and statesmen—to strike at this un-American and un-Christian agitation.

MRS. CYRUS McCORMICK ILL.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—A thousand-mile race against time to reach the bedside of his wife was won tonight by Cyrus H. McCormick 2d of the International Harvester Company and his son, Gordon McCormick. Mrs. McCormick is critically ill at St. Luke's Hospital following an emergency operation performed on Jan. 6 by Dr. L. L. McArthur.

Her condition became so serious Saturday night that Harold F. McCormick telegraphed her husband, who, with Gordon, was in New York. The husband chartered two coaches and had them attached to the first train out of New York on the Pennsylvania Railroad. At Fort Wayne, Ind., where the train arrived at 4 o'clock this afternoon a special locomotive picked up the two coaches and raced ahead to Chicago.

They arrived here at 7 o'clock. An automobile was awaiting them at the Union Station. They reached Mrs. McCormick's bedside at 7:20 o'clock.

Mrs. McCormick has been ill for some time. Tonight both Dr. McArthur and F. A. Steward, Mr. McCormick's secretary, admitted that her condition was serious. For many years Mrs. McCormick has been engaged in philanthropic, civic betterment and child welfare movements. She has endowed many educational institutions and given to organizations engaged in settlement work.

BORI TO SING AGAIN.

Spanish Star Due on Imperator to Rejoin Metropolitan.

Lucrezia Bori, the Spanish soprano, is arriving on the Imperator from Europe today to rejoin the Metropolitan Opera Company, with which she last appeared five years ago. Many operagoers as well as her stage associates prepared to welcome her, and a gala occasion is promised when she reappears in the course of the next fortnight among Mr. Gatti-Casazza's stars, with whom she made her début in 1912. She became a favorite artist, creating leading rôles in "Amore dei Tre Re," "Amore Medico," "L'Oracolo" and "Iris," and was to have had her great chance in "Madam Butterfly."

Miss Bori sang four years at the Metropolitan, and while abroad in the Summer of 1916 underwent a slight operation to relieve an obstruction of the vocal cords. Sailing for this country, she suffered from seasickness, which impaired the process of healing after the operation.

Fellowship Formed to Prepare Pieces for Production.

A new theatrical organization entitled The Players' Fellowship has been formed to prepare plays for production, with a view of interesting managers after the plays have been fully rehearsed and are ready to be housed in theatres. A group headed by Lucille Watson, Edward Ellis and Doris Kenyon are at present rehearsing "The White Villa," a dramatization by Edith Ellis of Karen Michaelis's "The Dangerous Age," and the play will later be shown privately to possible producers.

The Players's Fellowship will concern itself principally with unusual plays which might not otherwise be brought to the managers's attention. In addition to those mentioned, the group includes Frank Morgan, Olive Oliver, Anita Roth, Edward Reese, Grace Fischer, John Clements and Barbara Chambers.

Miss Burton made her début some years ago, and is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Johnson is well known as an author, and lives at 326 Lexington Avenue. He has been married three times and has three children, two girls, Olivia and Katharine, and a young son, Robert. In addition to his work as a novelist Mr. Johnson is known as the founder and first editor of the Lawrenceville Literary Magazine, and was Chairman of the Yale Literary Magazine for the Class of 1900, with which class he was graduated. In 1919 he was created a Knight of the Legion of Honor. No date has been mentioned for the marriage.

COATES SELECTED TO AID DAMROSCH

H. H. Flagler Announces That English Leader Will Be Associate Conductor Next Year.

FOR TEN WEEKS SEASON

Engaged at the Request of Symphony Conductor to Share Expanding Task.

Albert Coates, the English musical leader, who won great favor in three concerts here recently and especially in a program of British composers, which was repeated before he sailed for London, is to return next season as the regular associate conductor of the Symphony Society of New York. The announcement was made last night by Harry Harkness Flagler, President of the Symphony Society and sole guarantor of its concerts for some seasons past as well of its European tour last year.

In a letter to the society's members Mr. Flagler wrote:

"In accordance with the desire of Mr. Walter Damrosch, expressed to me frequently during the last year, that there should be associated with him another conductor of high artistic rank with whom he could share his constantly expanding work, I am pleased to announce the engagement of Mr. Albert Coates, the eminent conductor of the London Symphony Orchestra, of the Royal London Philharmonic Society, and of the Royal Opera Covent Garden, to fill the post of associate conductor for the season of 1921-22.

"Last Spring, before Mr. Damrosch sailed, I suggested to him that in furtherance of his wish to share the conductorship of the New York Symphony Orchestra, he make use of the opportunity offered by his European tour to look the field over for an associate who would not only impart novelty to the American season, but who would maintain the musicianly traditions of the Symphony Society.

"With this end in view, his choice fell upon Albert Coates, who had recently returned to London after a long service in the cause of music at Petrograd, and to whom an invitation to visit us as guest conductor for a short period this season was extended.

"Mr. Damrosch's selection has been more than justified by the enthusiastic recognition of Mr. Coates's ability by both press and public, and I am glad to avail myself of the option on his services for a period of ten weeks of next season which he gave to Mr. Damrosch last Summer before our orchestra left England."

The President's letter was sent to all the Symphony Society's directors and boxholders, including Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, Miss Helen Frick, Mme. Sembrich, Messrs. Daniel Frohman, Frank Damrosch, Daniel Guggenheim, Henry W. Taft, Henry Seligman, Felix M. Warburg, Richard Welling and others, associated in an advisory capacity with Mr. Flagler in matters of the society's vices for a period of ten weeks of next GOVERN I. C. A. A. A. A.

Executive Committee Recommends This Administrative Change in Athletic Body.

WOULD REVISE TITLE MEET

Alteration of Program of Championship Events Urged—Seeks Another Date for Harrier Race.

An advisory committee, consisting of three college faculty representatives and two others to be appointed by the President of the association, will participate in the future administrative affairs of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America, under a recommendation adopted yesterday at a meeting of the I. C. A. A. A. A. Executive Committee and Advisory Committee at the Columbia University Club. The recommendation will be submitted to the annual I. C. A. A. A. A. convention at the Columbia Club March 5, when it will undoubtedly be adopted.

Chairman Gustavus T. Kirby of the Advisory Committee announced after the meeting the adoption of the recommendation, together with proposed amendments to the constitution and by-laws, affecting the annual outdoor track and field championship meeting and the cross-country title race. The governing officials of Eastern collegiate athletics, through a proposal submitted by Columbia University, will seek changes in the track and field program, eliminating the two-mile run and substituting a three-mile test, and adding a quarter-mile hurdle race to the existing track schedule, and a javelin throw and discus throw to the field program. With regard to the hill and dale championship it was decided on a proposal submitted by Massachusetts Institute of Technology to seek a change in the date of the race, probably to the Monday preceding Thanksgiving Day, in order that the race might have a distinctive significance, instead of its present status, which practically amounts to a preliminary to one of the important football games.

Would Merge Committees.

The administrative change recommended is regarded by the I. C. A. A. A. A. officials as one of the greatest progressive moves in the history of the association. Under its provisions the Advisory Committee and the Faculty Committee, including a combined personnel of eight college officials under prevailing conditions, would be merged into one governing body of five officials. For years the duties of the Faculty Committee have been limited almost to the extent of being unnoticeable. The task of the members on this board was to pass on scholastic questions involving protests on competitive eligibility and less important details. Of late years there has been little or no work for the committee, which has gradually become to be regarded more or less in the light of a superfluity, according to Chairman Kirby. With the ever increasing popularity of athletics and the widening scope of I. C. A. A. A. activities, Chairman Kirby declared following the meeting that it was felt the time had come to effect a reorganization calculated to improve the existing administrative work of the collegiate governing sports body.

"The proposition has received considerable attention as collegiate athletic activities have increased," said Chairman Kirby, "and officials are united in the belief that the plan will work an improvement. Major Palmer E. Pierce of the National Collegiate Association and myself have discussed the matter frequently, and we are convinced the time is opportune for the progressive step planned. The proposed amendment will get faculty representatives into the administrative and executive work of the association, a condition which is desirable now more than ever before, particularly in view of the increasing athletic activity.

Method of Appointment.

"Under a tentative plan the new Advisory Committee would consist of five members, three of them appointed by the colleges finishing first, second and third in the track and field championships, and two to be appointed by the President. In this manner administrative affairs will be placed in the hands of undergraduates, Faculty and alumni. The committee would meet with the Executive Committee and share in the conduct of the association's affairs."

The proposal to revise the existing track and field championship schedule is likely to meet with opposition when it comes up for consideration at the annual meeting, but it is expected that the outdoor card will undergo a decided change nevertheless. Opposition is expected to attach only to the proposed change affecting the field events. The addition of the javelin and discus tests has long been advocated, but their inclusion never materialized. The attitude of the different colleges to this proposed change is understood to be divided, some favoring the addition of one but not both of the competitions.

Back of this proposal is an effort to develop most formidable representation for this country in these events. At the recent Olympic Games the American team was weak in these events to such an extent that the athletic leaders of the country returned home convinced of the necessity for developing material capable of competing against the stars of other nations.

The same is true with respect to the elimination of the two-mile race in favor of the three-mile journey. Chairman Kirby pointed out the need for encouraging the holding of races over the longer journey for the purpose of developing distance runners.

May Change Harrier Race.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology's recommendation that the annual cross-country championship race be held on a Monday instead of Saturday, as has been customary in the past, was supported by Princeton. Indications point to the adoption of this proposal. It is possible that a decision will be reached whereby the race will be run over the same course each year, instead of being awarded to different courses as heretofore. The ermanent course advantages are seen in the improved condition of training for the event and the elimination of any possibility of advantage by the home college runners through familiarity with their own course. With the race being conducted over a permanent trail year in and year out, there would be no necessity for a variation in the training of the collegians, because of the difference in the various college courses.

The meeting was attended by the complete personnel of the Executive Committee and the Advisory Committee. The Executive Committee is composed of Charles C. Bailey, Cornell, President; Sydney J. Croley, New York University, Treasurer; Thomas O. D. Fitzgibbon, Columbia University, Secretary; A. Jocelyn H. Magrath, New York University, Graduate Secretary-Treasurer; William B. Marshall, Yale; Joseph E. Lane, Dartmouth; Irving O. Hockaday, Princeton; William L. Seidel, Pennsylvania; Thomas M. Taylor, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Davis Merwin, Harvard. The Advisory Committee includes Gustavus T. Kirby, Columbia University, Chairman; Thornton Gerrish, Harvard, and Roland C. Fenner, Pennsylvania. The Faculty Committee includes Frank A. Barton of Columbia University, Talt McKenzie, Pennsylvania; Ralph W. Aigler, Michigan; Dean Le Baron R. Briggs, Harvard, and Professor James F. Richardson, Dartmouth.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

BOXING

In the biggest and most successful effort yet made to bring boxing under the control of an organization national in scope, one unfortunate feature stands out prominently. That is the failure of the most populous State in the Union to join the ranks of those engaged in making possible something that has long been needed in the sport. The New York Commission, in control of boxing's most important and lucrative field, has seen fit to declare itself out of the association with which all other State commissions save one have affiliated.

In explanation of its stand, the New York Commission raises the point that its powers would be subordinated to those of the national body if it consented to join. If such were the case, the attitude of the New York body would be generally approved by the boxing followers of the State. The announcement of Secretary Tex O'Rourke of the new organization puts the situation in another light. He points out that the constitution of the association, as finally amended, provides that "the rulings of this body shall be enforced only when they are not inconsistent with the laws of any State."

It will be interesting to see what action the New York Commission may take now that its main point of objection to entering the association has been removed. The opportunity to join is still open to the New York Commission and it has received a special invitation to join in view of the prestige which its membership would mean to the association. With the last obstacle removed it seems to be the part of the New York Commission to make the move which the good of the sport demands. It would be unfortunate, indeed, if petty politics should interfere with such a worthy project as that originated by the International Sporting Club of New York. If boxing is to progress it needs every aid that may be furnished by those within its own ranks.

Boxing unquestionably added many new friends through the Leonard-Mitchell championship bout at Madison Square Garden last week. What was in some respects the most notable crowd in New York's ring history looked on while a bright chapter was written in pugilistic history. The contest carried thrills, the best of order prevailed throughout and devastated France reaped handsomely through the medium of this contest. The promoters paid high for the card, but the response justified the business arrangement. It must be remembered, too, that the big success of the undertaking was made possible by the average boxing enthusiast rather than the person who is inclined to subscribe to something which appeals to him only in the light of a worthy charity.

BASEBALL

The staunchness of the baseball craft launched at Chicago last week can hardly be sincerely questioned. It has been fashioned by the most able of workmen, and even the hammers of foemen have succeeded only in driving its rivets deeper. The captain, who will act as pilot also, is a man of such temperament and mental powers as to make him apparently ideal for the post. His crew is with him, if not to the man, at least almost en masse, and he will know how to deal with the occasional trouble-makers, if such arise.

That a worthy substitute for a partially unworthy national commission has been found, is the confident belief of practically everybody in touch with the situation. The one-time ruling body was far from satisfactory, the latter part of its régime, particularly after the passing from its councils of August Herrmann. Its inability to function properly had made necessary a change, and a better one could not have been devised. The commission at times of late had appeared to pigeonhole the welfare of the game in favor of the politics of the game.

This condition of affairs will no longer exist. Complete and speedy justice in moot questions is the plan of the eminent citizen who is to guide the organized game for at least seven years to come. Such storms as burst in the Mays and Perry cases will be rendered extremely unlikely, if not impossible. The sinister infusion into baseball's destinies of such creatures as the sure-thing gamblers will be made a most perilous venture, both for them and for any possible silly victims whom they might corrupt within the playing ranks.

As an earnest of the fixed determination of Judge Landis, High Commissioner of Organized Baseball, to operate deeply upon the corrupt spots, lovers of the game will welcome his announcement that, regardless of the action of the courts in their cases, the players accused of throwing the world's series of 1919 will never again appear upon any diamond controlled by the leagues signatory to the new agreement. Legal technicalities and the law's delays will not be allowed to operate in their cases, save, perhaps, in the courts. The fans are glad, for they believe firmly that it would be for the very worst interests of the game if any of these suspected men should ever play again except in their own back yards and behind a high fence.

ROWING

It is too early to conjecture at great length on the proposed invasion of the United States by an Oxford or Cambridge crew next Spring, for the English authorities themselves are not yet certain that the journey across the Atlantic will be practicable. Cornell University, of course, is awaiting the decision with more than the usual anticipation. It would be a distinct feather in the cap of the Ithacans if they should be the hosts to the first English crew, as far as memory reveals, that ever came to the United States.

The importance of the invasion as a landmark in international athletic competition can hardly be overestimated. We have seen invasions by English yachtsmen, tennis players, golfers, boxers, cricket teams, rugby teams, track and field teams and representatives in other sports, but there has been an absence of oarsmen. The plans of the British authorities, as brought back by Coach Jack Moakley, call for a track and field meet or a crew race, or both, with Cornell at the latter's Spring Day games in May. The ideal arrangement, it seems, would be for the winner of the Oxford-Cambridge dual race to come to the United States. The inter-varsity race between the Dark and Light Blue will be held at Putney on March 30, which would allow plenty of time for the victorious eight to prepare for and make the trip to America.

The international note was also struck in rowing during the week by the announcement of plans for the annual intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie. As if in answer to the proposal of the English, the Board of Stewards threw the race on the Hudson open to the world. The action was one that should have been taken long ago and came at a time when grave doubts were beginning to develop concerning Poughkeepsie's supremacy in the rowing world. The reduction of the distance to three miles will attract more American colleges, and it is optimistically predicted that California or Washington, Princeton, M. I. T. and the Naval Academy will line up alongside the three members of the association—Columbia, Penn and Cornell. But even more interesting is the possibility that an Australian eight and Oxford or Cambridge will also be present on June 22. With this glittering array at the starting line, the Hudson River regatta would be truly international instead of merely intercollegiate. Even the Royal Henley of England would have to look to its laurels.

WRESTLING

Sport has no place for torture, no place for any element likely to prove injurious to any person engaged in competition. For that reason it seems incumbent upon those who direct the destinies of wrestling to eliminate at once that dangerous hold known as the headlock. In the same category might be mentioned the vicious toe hold which aims to achieve by torture a result which should be gained by skill. Of the two holds the headlock is by far the more dangerous and it is impossible to reconcile its use if the best standards of sport are to be applied to the grappling game.

Recent experiences of Joe Stecher and Wladek Zbyszko furnish striking examples of the dangers attending the use of the hold which has come into prominence in the last few years. Stecher is out of the wrestling game for a year, possibly for all time, as a result of an attack of paralysis which his physician ascribes to the deadly headlock. Zbyszko spent some days in a hospital after his most recent experience with this particular hold, and for a time it was feared that he would become blind. He escaped this fate, fortunately, and Stecher may recover from his paralysis, but it cannot be denied that the warning has been sounded. It will be a sad commentary on sport in general and wrestling in particular, if there is a delay in relegating the headlock to the discard until more serious injury results from its use.

Numerous nerves and arteries are affected by the prolonged application of this hold which has become a specialty of one wrestler and has been taken up by others. The pressure which can be exerted by a man of might when he gets an opponent in this vicious grip is sufficient to cause any one of numerous permanent injuries affecting the eyes, ears, brain or even the spine, as the wrestler in the vise-like grip struggles to free himself. Those who have suffered from the hold tell of the agony which it produces, while the injuries inflicted on victims stamp it as outside the pale of real sport.

Several years ago the strangle hold was employed in the wrestling game. Eventually a rule was passed which banned the hold as dangerous, painful and unethical. This ban made it necessary for grapplers to resort to skill for their victories instead of employing torture. All that was found offensive in the strangle hold is to be found in the headlock. Wrestling in the recent past has attained a plane which it did not enjoy for years, but it cannot expect to remain there unless it is modified into the sort of a game which embodies the ethics of sport at its best.

TURF

Racing men, particularly those who are guiding the destinies of the sport, have good reason for feeling encouraged by the number of nominations made for the Futurity to be run in 1923. The date is so far away that to the public it may mean little, but to those who constantly feel the pulse of the game the record list indicates a healthy condition for racing.

The most interesting feature about the 1,402 nominations is that they came from a wider field than those of other recent years. They present more breeders than have named horses for the juvenile classic in a long time. This is in part due to the fact that the increased value of the stake has attracted nominations that might not have otherwise been made, but generally it shows that breeders are increasing in number, which means that the interest is increasing.

Under the guidance of the Jockey Club racing has steadily improved since it was resumed in this State. To the handful of men who gave it a fresh start has been added hundreds of new owners and breeders, until now it is safe to say that the sport is as prosperous as it ever was in the so-called old days, and on a much firmer foundation.

While the associations operating on the New York tracks have not been able to offer the huge purses that have been put up in Maryland and Kentucky where the pari-mutuel system prevails, they have added to the chief events from year to year until the Futurity stands as the richest of the juvenile events run in this country. From present indications its value will continue to increase. The Futurity is one of the races which acts as a spur to the breeder and has resulted in the improvement of the American race horse. With more and better horses come larger crowds to the tracks and, under proper regulation, there is general benefit for all.

HARLEM ROAD RACE IS WON BY HECHT

Glencoe A. C. Harrier Takes Premier Honors When W. Jensen Is Disqualified.

Philip Hecht of the Glencoe A. C. was awarded the premier laurels yesterday in the weekly handicap road race of the Harlem and Heights Athletic League, held over a course of about four and one-half miles under the auspices of the Alpha P. C. C. Hecht, from the 3:30 mark, finished second to W. Jensen, an unattached runner, who started with the limit allowance of 4 minutes 30 seconds. Jensen, however, was disqualified when his eligibility was protested.

The race attracted sixteen qualified harriers, the biggest field of recent weeks. All finished the grind. Hecht, gaining second position before the completion of the first mile, gave spirited chase to Jensen as the latter raced over the course, but never threatened to displace the runner, who was disqualified after leading the field home. At the finish Hecht was several blocks back of Jensen, but enjoyed a lead of about one hundred yards on A. Sepel, Morningside A. C. runner, who finished second. Hecht's time as victor was 25:11h.

Frank Titterton of the Mohawk A. C., a representative of the Bronx A. L., recorded the fastest time. He started from scratch and finished eleventh in 22:54. It was the first time that an athlete had been permitted to compete in an Intersectional A. L. closed race outside of his own district. The distinction of scoring the fastest time among members of the H. H. A. L. went to Sol Silverstein of the Glencoe A. C., who finished twelfth from the thirty-second mark in the actual time of 23:43.

Also Takes Time Prize in Five-Mile Run of Easton A. C.

Russel Jekel of the Brooklyn A. A. showed the way yesterday in the invitation handicap road race of the Easton A. C. of Brooklyn, conducted over a course of about five miles. Jekel, starting from scratch, gained the lead in the closing three-quarters of a mile and remained in front of the field until the finish line was reached. In addition to his victory Jekel added the further distinction of registering the fastest actual time for the journey. He covered the distance in 28:36. J. Cooper, Thirteenth Regiment runner, finished second, and H. Haupt, Easton A. C., was third.

R. Jekel, Brooklyn A. A. (scratch), 28:36; J. Cooper, Thirteenth Regiment A. A. (3:00), 31:40; H. Haupt, Easton A. C. (4:00), 32:39; John Roesch, Easton A. C. (3:00), 32:02; D. Francis, Easton A. C. Racial Objection Causes Cancellation of Track Meet

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 16.—The dual track meet between Harvard and Virginia, scheduled as one of the big sporting events of the Spring season at the University of Virginia, has been called off. Just before signing the final contract for the meet the Harvard graduate manager, it is said, informed Dr. Lambeth of the Virginia Faculty that two of the best men on the Crimson squad had negro blood in their veins and that it was not deemed advisable to bring the squad South without them. The manager stated that he realized the feeling prevailing in the South regarding the matter and desired to make the facts known. With this information at hand, a decision was reached by the Virginia authorities to cancel the meet.

M'GOWAN WINS TWO RACES FROM BAPTIE

Leads In Another Which Judges Call No Contest—To Meet Again Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 16.—The time-honored battle of youth and strength against experience and perfected skill was enacted again today in a skating contest between Everett McGowan, the young St. Paul skater, and Norval Baptie, famous "Flickertail Flyer," at the St. Paul Hippodrome. Youth would not be denied, McGowan taking all three of the day's scheduled events, although a premature start in the 220-yard event brought a protest from Baptie, and the race will be skated again on Tuesday in connection with the three others scheduled for that day.

A throng of 3,500 was present when the first race, 220 yards, was called promptly at 3 P. M. McGowan clearly "beat the gun" in his start, getting a lead which sent him over the line a winner by a wide margin. Baptie immediately entered a protest, and the judges ruled it no race. The time was 0:29 1-5.

The half-mile event was taken by McGowan by a narrow margin in 1:13.

The three-mile race brought out all of Baptie's well-known race strategy, and but one inch separated the two men as they crossed the line. Baptie led most of the way, and to the spectators he appeared to be an easy winner, but as he neared the tape he glanced over his shoulder to note his opponent's position, losing his stride and the race. The time was 10:29 1-5.

Both men were in excellent condition when they came upon the ice, and the result was an exciting contest at all stages of the racing. Baptie lacked some of the speed which made him famous years ago, but he has lost none of the generalship on the ice which won many previous races for him. Many in the crowd today predicted that on Tuesday he will stage a great come-back.

DARTMOUTH'S FIVE AT TOP OF LEAGUE

Dartmouth's sensational rise to the top of the Intercollegiate Basketball League in the games played so far this season has been the chief feature of the race for honors in the Eastern organization. The Hanoverians have occupied a humble place near the bottom of the standing for several seasons, but they now lead the race with two victories and nary a defeat. The first triumph came at the expense of Yale, but more of a surprise was the Green's success against the strong Cornell five in the game at Hanover last Saturday. This result toppled Cornell from the top of the league, and Dartmouth now has a clear advantage.

The champion Penn team made its début on Saturday and defeated Columbia, which had won its only league contest theretofore. Penn is now on the heels of Dartmouth, in second place, while Cornell, victor in two out of three battles, nestles in third position. Columbia has an average of .500 in fourth place, and Yale and Princeton, with two defeats, are tied for the lowest rung.

Two Cornell players, Sidman and Captain Molinet, are in the lead for total points scored. Sidman is out in front with 32 tallies, this consisting of 7 field goals and 18 tosses from the foul line. Molinet, in second place, has thrown 14 goals from foul for a total of 28, and he also enjoys the distinction of showing the way in the number of field goals. Cullen, the Dartmouth forward, is third in points with 27, only one behind Molinet. The fourth man is Johnson, Columbia's colored flash, whose total of 26 markers is made up of 4 field goals and 18 foul throws. The negro star is also tied with Sidman in the matter of foul attempts scored.

Eddie McNichol, the Penn Captain, has the best average of points. He has played in only one game, but his total is 15, seven more than the average per game of Sidman. Johnson of Columbia has contributed an average of 13 points in the two games he has played.

Cornell has a place at the top in the team totals. The Ithacans have scored 92 points in three games. Dartmouth is second with 51 and Yale third with 41. The best defensive aggregation is Columbia, which has had an average of only 21 points scored against it by opponents.

The leading individual scorers and team totals follow:

Governor Miller Has Proclaimed This "Franklin Thrift Week"

Make Every Week a Thrift Week

Do Your Motoring the Franklin Way

20 miles to the gallon of gasoline
12,500 miles to the set of tires
50% slower yearly depreciation
(National Averages)

TO-DAY is Benjamin Franklin's birthday. To honor his memory and to inspire every one to follow his world-famous principles of economy, this week has been officially set aside as "Franklin Thrift Week."

The name of the Franklin Car is in no way connected with this prominent figure in our early history. Yet in the motoring world it not only was the pioneer, but for 19 years has been the outstanding representative of Benjamin Franklin's 150-year-old principles. The Franklin is economical because it is light, flexible and direct air cooled. Lightness saves gasoline; with flexibility, it saves tires; with air cooling, it saves trouble, prevents breakdowns, gives longer life.

Applying economy to motoring does not mean doing without—the automobile to-day is not only a utility, but a necessity. It means, in Roosevelt's words, "Common sense applied to spending."

If you want to do your motoring the common sense way—to get the maximum of comfort and utility at the minimum of expense—do it the Franklin way.

The actual figures of the Franklin Car's economy are quoted above.

Takes Handicap Honors After Shoot-Off—Gluck Captures Leg on Distance Trophy.

B. S. Donnelley and E. M. Alexander won the more important prizes over the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. The former took the high scratch prize, with a card of 95 out of a possible 100 targets, and Alexander won the high handicap prize after a shoot-off. Both scored a leg on the Buermeyer Cup, with scores of 45 out of 50 targets each. Donnelley also ran straight in the shoot for the Tournament Cup.

D. W. Gluck was the winner of the weekly leg on the Distance Handicap. He took the cup with a 24 out of 25 targets, shooting from the 18-yard mark. Two special events were on the program. Dr. G. H. Martin won the scratch special with a straight score of 25 targets. The handicap special went to F. W. Finch.

SHORT CAPTURES PRIZE.

Is High Scratch Gunner at Larchmont Traps With Score of 95.

Dr. W. B. Short, who has been doing very little shooting this season, won the high scratch prize over the traps of the Larchmont Yacht Club yesterday. He took the cup with a card of 95 out of a possible 100 targets. Four gunners tied for the high handicap prize. They were A. Baxter Jr., A. W. Fitzgerald, J. W. French and A. B. Alley. All had full scores of 100 targets. The first three shot off for the prize. The winner was A. Baxter Jr., who made a 24 out of a possible 25 targets. The other two had 23 targets each.

BOUT IN GARDEN TONIGHT.

Chaney and Beecher, Featherweights, to Meet in 15 Rounds.

Two of Johnny Kilbane's challengers for a featherweight championship battle will exchange blows this evening in a fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden. The lads are Andy Chaney, who is being advanced as the most formidable rival of Kilbane, and Charley Beecher, east side boxer. It is expected that a contest will be arranged for some time next month between Kilbane and the winner of this encounter.

Chaney and Beecher are both reported in excellent fettle for the match. The lads have agreed to weigh in at 126 pounds at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Both are reported at the required poundage. This will mark the third meeting between Chaney and Beecher, their previous bouts having been no-decision affairs in Philadelphia, and Jersey City.

Two ten-round contests and a six-round match will precede this bout. Tillie (Kid) Herman, California lightweight, will engage Eddie Fitzsimmons, of Yorkville southpaw, in the semi-final of ten rounds. In the first ten-rounder the combatants will be Joe Mooney, veteran west side featherweight, and Earl Baird of Seattle. Tim Kelly of San Francisco and Frankie Fleming of Staten Island will compete in the opening bout of six rounds. Promoter Rickard has installed a popular-price scale for tickets to the bouts.

Tennis Team Wins Last Four Matches of Tournament With Seventh Regiment.

Resuming its victorious play where it was interrupted Saturday, the Heights Casino tennis team made a clean sweep of the four remaining matches in its dual clash with the Seventh Regiment Tennis Club, which was completed yesterday on the Casino court. The result of yesterday's matches gave the Casino representatives a record of nine victories. The team had clinched the two days' match on Saturday by registering five successes against the Seventh Regiment players.

The closing matches all were decided in straight sets. The closest struggle of the quartet was provided by Cedric Major of Casino and Frederick C. Anderson of the Seventh Regiment in the singles. This struggle was twice forced to deuce sets before Major finally annexed the victory by scores of 8—6, 7—5. Frequent rallies marked this match, in which Major's comparatively consistent work, coupled with his rival's tendency to be erratic at critical stages of the match, brought about the downfall of the Seventh Regiment player.

D. A. L. Dionne of Casino recorded the easiest victory of the afternoon when he vanquished Samuel R. McAllister of the Seventh Regiment in straight sets at 6—0, 6—2. The visiting team leader was unable to combat the long range work of the veteran Dionne, whose remarkable recoveries and corner work gave him the upper hand throughout.

The other singles match resulted in a victory for Hugh Kelleher of the Casino over Merritt Cutler, Seventh Regiment, by scores of 6—3, 6—2. Kelleher played a fast, accurate game, which forced his rival to an uphill battle in each set. The result was a series of spirited rallies in which Cutler sought to turn the tide, but the Casino player's terrific drives gave Kelleher the match in convincing fashion.

The summary:

Singles—D. A. L. Dionne, Heights Casino, defeated Samuel R. McAllister, Seventh Regiment, 6—0, 6—2; Hugh Kelleher, Heights Casino, defeated Merritt Cutler, Seventh Regiment, 6—3, 6—2; Cedric Major, Heights Casino, defeated Frederick C. Anderson, Seventh Regiment, 8—6, 7—5.

Doubles—William J. Calhon and William A. Campbell, Heights Casino, defeated Samuel R. McAllister and W. Dickson Cunninghani, Seventh Regiment, 6—4, 6—3.

DURLAND OAKS VICTORS.

Trounce Brooklyn Polo Team, 12 to 5, in Senior Tourney Match.

The Durland Oaks buried the Brooklyn Riding and Driving Club's No. 1 team under a stinging 12 to 5 defeat yesterday in the senior division of the Indoor Polo Association's tournament at Durland's Riding Academy. The victorious team conceded a handicap of one goal to the trio from across the bridge, but there was never any indication that the handicap would jeopardize the chances of the Durland riders. Practically from the outset the result was foretold in the decisive manner in which the Oaks outrode and outgeneralled their rivals. The Brooklyn defense was swept aside in the rush of the Oaks to a succession of six goals in the opening period, which ended with the Durland team in front by 6 to 3, the Brooklynites' total including their one goal advantage by handicap. In the second period the Durland trio continued its superb play and over-rode the resistance of the Brooklynites.

M. Goodman, at No. 1 for the victors, exhibited a smashing game, leading in a majority of his team's offensive plays and contributing five goals to the Oaks cause. H. Levinski, at No. 2, accounted for six goals for the Durland trio. In the second period, however, Levinski was summoned off the field for an infraction of the Association's rules and he was replaced by H. Crossman. Following the game President George Sherman of the Indoor Polo Association, announced that Levinski had been suspended for a week.

The lineup:

How the Right Quality Gasoline Keeps Battery Costs Low in Winter

A Common Cause of Battery Strain

Gasoline that does not vaporize readily at low temperature accounts for much battery trouble and expense in winter. Spinning a cold motor for several minutes before you can get started puts a big strain on the battery. This is not necessary if you are careful to select gasoline of suitable composition for winter use.

Why You Should Use Straight-Distilled Socony Gasoline

For satisfactory and economical operation, gasoline with a low boiling point—gasoline that vaporizes freely at low temperature—is absolutely necessary. Furthermore, it should contain a complete, continuous chain of boiling points, since that alone can insure quick, complete, powerful combustion.

Socony Meets the Tests

Socony gasoline meets all these requirements. With Socony you get quick starts, even in the coldest weather. This, combined with its absolute uniformity at all times and in all places, partly explains why experienced car owners and motor transport executives specify Socony.

Other and important considerations are complete combustion, maximum power and mileage, freedom from excessive carbon accumulation and from heavy and offensive exhaust odors.

The Quality Gasoline

You can always rely upon every gallon of Socony gasoline for consistently fine quality.

Our manufacturing plants are operated under the most skillful and critical supervision. Back of the materials, equipment and methods of refining there are fifty years of practical experience and improvement.

Reliable, Obliging Dealers

Socony dealers constitute the last link in the great chain of Socony service. They are always dependable, competent and obliging—glad to render the little courtesies that make motor service complete. Look for the red, white and blue Socony sign.

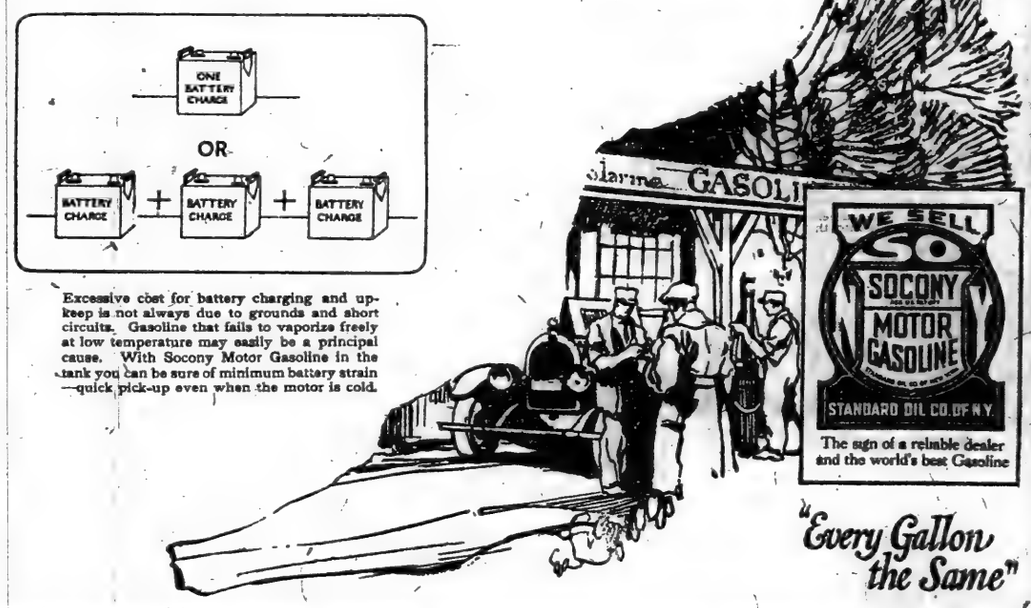
MOTOR GASOLINE



Excessive cost for battery charging and upkeep is not always due to grounds and short circuits. Gasoline that fails to vaporize freely at low temperature may easily be a principal cause. With Socony Motor Gasoline in the tank you can be sure of minimum battery strain—quick pick-up even when the motor is cold.

FREE NATION LEAGUE REPLIES TO DAVIS

HOPES FOR AN AGREEMENT

Suggests Our Mexican Policy as a Model—Denies Letters to Soviet Russia Are Mailable.

The League of Free Nations Association, through its Committee on Russia, made public yesterday a letter to Norman H. Davis, Acting Secretary of State, dealing with Mr. Davis's recent elucidation of the American policy toward Soviet Russia. Mr. Davis's statement was addressed to Alton B. Parker and was in reply to a questionnaire addressed to the Presidential candidates several months ago by the League of Free Nations Association. In defining the attitude of this Government, Mr. Davis accused the league of making false statements and of so framing its questions to the candidates that the answers would be prejudged.

Taking up Mr. Davis's discussion of the charge that Secretary Colby proposed officially in his note of Aug. 19 to guarantee Russian territorial integrity, the letter says:

"Nothing is more welcome than your distinct assertion, in answer to Paragraph IV. of our questionnaire, that the United States is not supporting any armed action against Soviet Russia and the plain intimation that it has no commitments in that direction, and that it does not now propose to make any. This, to be sure, is written since the definitive defeat of General Wrangel, the withdrawal of our military observers with his armies, and of our medical and other agencies operating in connection with his forces.

"By friendly and sincere desire to reach an agreement we are in a fair way to solve our Mexican problem. A similar attempt may well meet the Russian difficulties."

The original questionnaire embodied the declaration that the recent policy of this Government, "although never clearly stated, has been to refuse to permit relief to be sent to that portion of Russia which is under the control of the Soviet Government." Mr. Davis characterized this as "unqualifiedly false." The present letter argues at length that the relief policy of the United States was pictured correctly, concluding:

"Your idea of encouraging relief appears to be permission to relief workers, without passports, without sanction and without approval, to adventure as best they can; and you express the belief that they will encounter every difficulty on the Russian side." Instances of cooperation with relief organizations by the Soviet Government are cited.

Mr. Davis's announcement that Americans can get passports as far as the Soviet border and that such travel by persons who wish to enter the country will not be hindered is acclaimed as satisfactory by the League.

The letter suggests that Mr. Davis's communication to Mr. Parker may have Soviet Russia are mailable and asserts that this is not the case.
out that such is not the case.

WOULD CLOSE OLD PRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 16.—If building conditions were normal and the finances of New York City in better shape to stand a big outlay at this time, the Jefferson Market Prison would be immediately ordered closed by the State Prisons Commission as unsanitary.

Inspection of the prison in November last led to this report, just filed by John S. Kennedy, President of the commission.

"This old prison, built forty-five years ago, and in which 7,825 prisoners, of whom 2,204 were women, were confined during the first eleven months of 1920, certainly comes very close to the point where the commission should exercise its powers to close any city jail which is unsanitary or inadequate to provide for the separation and classification of prisoners as required by law," says the report.

Besides recommending that additional baths be immediately provided, the commission recommends that a screen be placed in both the men's and women's sections so visitors cannot pass drugs to addicts housed in the prison.

CABINET DEBT URGED ON HARDING

WANTS TO AVOID PRESSURE

HAYS TO GIVE PARTY LIST

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Jan. 16.—It appears to be President-elect Harding's plan to unravel as far as possible Cabinet tangles without tying the strands together before he leaves this week for Florida.

That he will be definitely committed on all ten Cabinet posts in the next few days is regarded as improbable. Only recently, after the President-elect's declaration that Cabinet matters were "shaping up well," he has been advised to delay announcement of the whole of his official family until just before the inauguration, in view of the possibility that between now and March 4 situations might arise in which he would be compelled to reverse some of his decisions.

With the exception of Charles E. Hughes, already decided upon for Secretary of State, and the next Secretary of the Treasury, both of whom the President-elect would "put to work" before inauguration, Mr. Harding has been urged to complete a tentative Cabinet slate and revise it if necessary while in Florida, but to make as few promises as possible and thereby avoid pressure upon himself to change his appointments to the time they go to the Senate for confirmation.

Avoiding Early Decisions.

It is believed that this advice appeals to one of Mr. Harding's temperament. Throughout his campaign and since the election he has avoided making early decisions. One illustration of this is his outwardly unchanged attitude toward foreign relations. During the campaign Mr. Harding declined to be committed to details of an association of nations on the ground that conditions might change before he came into a position of authority. Now that he is satisfied that the majority of those with whom he has conferred are in accord with his general principle, he is still unwilling to decide upon details until after other nations have been approached.

Mr. Harding's six weeks in Marion since his election resemble closely the first six weeks of his campaign, between his notification and his first important campaign speech delivered Aug. 28. During that period in the campaign much of his time was spent in conferences with leaders of all party elements going over possible campaign issues and endeavoring to unite various Republican factions.

It was not until September that he elaborated upon campaign issues and first committed himself. In the last six weeks Mr. Harding's time has been spent in conferences with leaders of both parties going over foreign and domestic problems and endeavoring to unite opinion upon basic principles of a foreign policy. He has sought advice upon Cabinet selections and has conferred with Republican Congressional leaders upon subjects to be taken up in his inaugural address. Now he is ready to draft his first message as President and to decide upon Cabinet and diplomatic appointments.

With the visit yesterday of former Senator John W. Weeks, believed to be Mr. Harding's choice for Secretary of War, and the visit today of Harry M. Daugherty, aspirant for Attorney General, the President-elect appears to be concerning himself with the purely politics accompanying Cabinet making. Mr. Daugherty since he was in Marion a week ago has been in Washington and is presumed to have given the President-elect a report of his mission. Neither would discuss their conference this afternoon

Hays to Recommend Appointments.

Mr. Harding's list of engagements for tomorrow shows several names mentioned in connection with Cabinet or other appointments. Will H. Hays, the Republican National Chairman, who is now the only individual mentioned as the next Postmaster General, is due here early tomorrow morning. In addition to his own known Cabinet aspirations it is expected that Mr. Hays will have recommendations to make to the President-elect concerning Federal appointments. The Republican Chairman is said to have a somewhat formidable list of party adherents to be recommended for appointments ranging from the Internal Revenue Service to Assistant Secretaries in the Federal departments.

Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois is also expected tomorrow. Mr. Lowden has not been mentioned in Cabinet gossip since the ascendency of Charles G. Dawes, another Illinois man, as the possible Secretary of the Treasury. It is no great secret that Mr. Harding intends to give some form of official recognition to Mr. Lowden, his opponent at the Chicago Convention, whose released delegates flocked to Mr. Harding on the first balloting.

Reports that Mr. Lowden had received an offer of a diplomatic appointment were denied two weeks ago, but it is generally accepted that he is in the President-elect's mind for an ambassadorship.

Another Cabinet aspirant who is to visit Marion tomorrow is Walter S. Dickey of Kansas City, former Republican State Chairman for, Missouri. He has been a liberal contributor to party funds and his name has been presented to Mr. Harding in connection with according "material recognition" to Missouri by appointing him Secretary of the Interior or of Commerce.

"General" Jacob S. Coxey, whose unemployed army in 1893 is still remembered vividly by Middle Westerners living along its line of march to Washington, arrived here tonight to see the President-elect tomorrow.

BACK FIDLER FOR CABINET.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 16.—At a meeting of Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York and Pennsylvania officials of the Order of Railroad Station Agents in this city today, Harry L. Fidler, of Indianapolis, prominent in railroad labor circles and Chairman of the Labor Bureau of the Republican National Committee, was indorsed for the post of Secretary of Labor in President Harding's Cabinet.

This action was taken in response to a request on the part of President-elect Harding for a recommendation by railroad men. Attending the meeting were National President E. H. Morton and National Secretary W. T. Heacox, of Chicago. Secretary Heacox was indorsed for membership on the Railroad Labor Board.

WOMEN VOTERS Should Not be Hypocrites

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 16.—Miss Lucy Page Gaston of Chicago, representing the National Anti-Cigarette League, announced today that she had received a reply from President-elect Harding to her letter in which she asked him to refrain from the use of cigarettes as an example to youth.

"I think it is fine to save the youth of America from the tobacco habit," says Mr. Harding's reply. "I think, however, the movement ought to be carried on in perfect good faith and should be free from any kind of hypocrisy or deceit on the part of those who are giving it their earnest attention."

HARDING TO CONSULT BRITAIN ON TOLLS

KNOX SEES NO OBSTACLE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—As the first move to carry out his campaign pledge to exempt American coastwise trade from Panama Canal tolls, it was learned today that Mr. Harding, after he becomes President, intends to open negotiations with Great Britain before sanctioning any action in Congress. Diplomatic negotiation will be renewed where it was left off in the Taft Administration, under Secretary Knox, as the result of the attack upon the law exempting American vessels from tolls, opened in the Senate by Elihu Root.

Before Secretary Knox had completed an agreement with Great Britain, Mr. Root, in 1912, declared in a speech in the Senate that the plan was a direct violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. This attack, reflecting a Republican view, in opposition to that of the then Republican Administration, brought the diplomatic correspondence to an end, although Mr. Knox has said since that the two countries were on the point of adjusting the dispute over the treaty when Mr. Root made his attack.

President Wilson two years later demanded of Congress that it repeal the law and place the vessels of all nations on a parity. He coupled his demand with an intimation that serious foreign relations, apparently our relations with Great Britain, concerning Mexican matters, then pending, made it necessary that the law be repealed.

"I ask this of you," he said on March 5, 1914, "in support of the foreign policy of the Administration. I shall not know how to deal with matters of even greatest delicacy and nearer consequence if you do not grant it to me in ungrudging measure."

Congress complied, the Senate acting a few days after American troops were landed at Vera Cruz, although the opposition to such action was great even in the Democratic party. Speaker Clark and Oscar Underwood, then House leader, voted in the negative, with Senators O'Gorman and Chamberlain opposing in the Senate. Fifty-two Democrats voted against repealing the exemption law in the House and ninety-three Republicans and seventeen Progressives were aligned against the President. The vote in the Senate was 50 to 35.

It is believed by Senator Knox that Great Britain will concede the right to exempt American coastwise vessels, and that there will be no difficulty in passing the bill repealing the present law Senators Knox and Borah will direct the fight for repeal in the Senate, but it is announced that nothing in that direction will be done until Great Britain has been approached diplomatically.

Republicans who have spoken recently on the subject are determined that American vessels engaged in coastwise traffic shall be exempted from tolls. They say that three Republican Presidents have supported such proposed legislation, Rosevelt, Taft and Harding, and that the sentiment in the country is demanding the repeal of the exemption. American traffic. Continental railroads controlling steamship lines are opposed to the exemption. This opposition is especially strong among the Canadian railroads.

Five international questions loom strongly on the horizon for solution by the incoming Administration. These are: Finding a substitute for the League of Nations; irregularities in the elections in Cuba; relations with Mexico; a treaty with Japan to prohibit Japanese immigration and repeal of the Panama Canal tolls law.

YACHT READY FOR HARDING.

The Victoria Taken Through Inland Waterway to St. Augustine.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 16.—The yacht Victoria, on which President-elect Harding will be the guest of Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey on a cruise in Florida waters, is in the harbor here awaiting the arrival of the Harding party. The vessel was brought through the inland waterway from Charleston, S. C., by Captain Thomas Dahlberg, who is in command.

The Victoria is specially outfitted for the voyage. Four staterooms are available. She is 88 feet in length, 19 feet beam, 63 tons weight and has two 50-horsepower engines.

SMUTS MUST FIGHT TO KEEP PREMIERSHIP

His Seat and Those of All Other Ministers Contested in South African Election.

CAPETOWN, Union of South Africa, Jan. 14.—Nomination day for the coming elections in the Union of South Africa developed considerable excitement today throughout the Union, there being every indication from the happenings that the election would be an exceedingly hard-fought one.

Both the South African-Unionist coalition, the party of the present Government, led by General Jan Christian Smuts, and the Nationalist Party, which supports a policy of separation from the British Empire, put up candidates in almost every possible constituency. A feature of the nominations was the large number of the three-cornered contests developing, in which the Government Party, the Nationalists and the Labor Party are competing.

General Smuts in his latest speech expressed confidence that the Government would obtain a good working majority, while the Nationalist leaders declare themselves confident of coming back stronger than before.

Among the few candidates returned unopposed are John Merriman, General Hertzog, Patrick Duncan, Sir David Harris and Deputy Speaker Edward Booth. General Smuts and all the other Cabinet Ministers, and also most of the leaders of the South African Party, are having contests.

SOLDIER SEES U-BOAT AS AGENCY OF PEACE

Admiral Says Dread of It Will Prevent Nations From Going to War.

WOULDN'T SCRAP BIG SHIPS

He Believes Dreadnoughts and Submarines Should Be Built, According to Needs.

Copyright, 1921, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

WEIMAR, Jan. 16. — "Superdreadnought or cheap little submarine, battle cruiser or aircraft, reliance on old ships of war or on new inventions—which should be America's program for 1921 and the coming critical years in which four great naval powers will strive for the supremacy of the seas?"

I put this question to the one man considered by many to be the greatest living authority, Admiral von Scheer, the commander of a nation's fleet which has fought with every weapon, and who remains a student. This is the first time since Germany signed peace that the Admiral has permitted a visit by a newspaper correspondent.

He declared, as he entered his study, which is simply furnished, but embellished with naval pictures, that he was loath to discuss questions in which his own country had no interest, but in view of the fact that The Chicago Tribune published his famous letter to the Kaiser on the Battle of Skagerrak [Jutland], he was willing to explain the most mooted points in those letters.

"I said in my letter, for whose publication I have The Chicago Tribune to thank," said the Admiral, "that the heavy line ship remained the backbone of a navy. That was just after the Skagerrak action, where we bested a British fleet double the strength of ours. Since then in a letter I stated that submarine development made it possible for a nation possessing a few of these weapons to withstand any of the world's great navies. These statements are not as contradictory as they appear. From 1916 we waged a great submarine campaign from which we gained much knowledge. My final conclusion is that a fleet composed of capital ships only or submersibles only is not complete. Every fleet must be completed according to the geographical position of the country and the political objectives sought. Both types must be represented in proportions depending upon the country's needs.

"The proposal to abandon capital shipbuilding in favor of submarines is false. Certainly there should be greater concentration of submarines. The new arm must be developed to the utmost, for the destruction of enemy trade affords a defense undreamed of heretofore.

"From what I have heard of Mr. Harding's program, it is evident that capital ships will not be abandoned, which shows that the campaign against them has failed in America. But I don't hear much about an American submarine program on a big scale or the progress of construction and experimentation in that weapon, although it is agreed that the policy of the line ship must be continued, it seems to me that America is not paying enough attention to the extraordinary effectiveness of that weapon.

"Speaking hypothetically, in a war between America and Great Britain, or between America and Japan, an American submarine flotilla could raise havoc with British or Japanese commerce, thus endangering the life of the nation which lives on imports. Then, made it necessary that the law be repealed.

"I ask this of you," he said on March 5, 1914, " in support of the foreign policy of the Administration. I shall not know how to deal with matters of even greatest delicacy and nearer consequence if you do not grant it to me in ungrudging measure."

Congress complied, the Senate acting a few days after American troops were landed at Vera Cruz, although the opposition to such action was great even in the Democratic party. GERMAN HAS PLANS FOR HUGE SUBMARINE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—Dr. Flamm, Professor of Shipbuilding at Charlottenburg Technical High School, is reported to have solved the problem of constructing submarines of practically unrestricted size and as fully armored as battleships. The invention is said to be based on an entirely new principle of stability. Its nature is not disclosed, but it is understood to have nothing to do with either the gyroscope or the system of compensating tanks. It was by the latter method that toward the end of the war the German designers were trying to overcome the difficulty of a heavily armored vessel losing its stability when submerged.

Professor Flamm has completed plans for an armored submarine of 1,443 tons, with an armoring of 35-millimeter strength and carrying two 10.5-centimeter guns, as well as torpedo tubes, both on and below the deck surface. The speed of the craft is to be 17½ knots.

Professor Flamm, who is recognized as an authority of high standing, has already given notice of his intention to acquire patent rights in England, Italy and Holland, and is negotiating with the United States. Several important German firms, among them the Krupps, have given him expert assistance in working out his plans.

Some German papers are boasting about this latest feat of German science. In a special interview today, however, Professor Flamm deprecated exaggerated claims for his invention.

"For some time past," he said, "I have been trying to devise a form of construction by which submarines can be armored without endangering their stability for submerging. The main difficulty hitherto was that, if armored, a submarine ran the risk of capsizing when diving. The simplest apparent method of maintaining stability by taking in ballast was ruled out, because it would increase the dead weight of the boat to an impossible extent. My construction guarantees the stability of the boat without taking in ballast or increasing weight. My plans for an armored submarine cruiser have been drawn in accordance with the results of long-continued experiments with models."

PARIS, Jan. 16.—The Dadaists and Futurists who have been brothers and enemies ever since the inception of the former, have come to open war. What it is all about only they themselves know, for no outsider, even if he does pretend to understand the futurism of Signor Marinetti, can ever understand Dadaism. Even the Dadaists don't. They, however, have taken the offensive in the war and, apparently jealous of their place as the very newest of all new movements, they have banded together to declare an utter foolishness "tactilism," the latest form of art discovered by the Futurist leader, Marinetti.

Tactilism, in the opinion of the Dadaists, is "just rot," and in true Futurista' fashion, for they are descendants in the direct line, they scoff at all allegiance to their former leaders and poured scorn on Signor Marinetti when he tried to expound his great discovery to them.

Tactilism, it should be mentioned, is all of touch which, according to the futurist leader, has been sadly neglected by mankind. As much aesthetic and imaginative pleasure, he declares, can be had from touch as from sight, smell or hearing. But touching real things is not art. There is, of course, a pleasure in holding a cold stone to the forehead and breast, a pleasure in feeling the waves curl and beat on the body or in a hot bath. But tactilism has not really anything to do with these matters. At least they are only the beginning. Marinetti arranges objects which touched successively tell a whole story just as a poem or a sonata unfolds itself.

Thus he had square inches of different kinds of clothes to represent the lightness and agility of the French people, which is conveyed to sehses and brain by touch. When one comes to a strip of silver paper one knows one is crossing the Seine, while a score of other places and impressions of the capital, including the bustle of traffic are supposed to be conveyed by brushing the fingers over clothes of different texture—at least to those whose nervous systems are properly organized.

The Dadaists, "rubbish" the dadaists who make music with combs in schoolboy fashion and pretend at least to gaze enraptured at smudges of color, quite unlike anything except an accident, objected violently during Marinetti's speech. Both sides, however, are quite content so to fight, for in that way they make all the more noise in the world.

MILAN, Jan. 16.—A solemn decree of excommunication and suspension of Sacerdotal rights has been promulgated by the Roman Inquisition against the celebrated Dr. Ernest Buonaiuti, Professor of the History of Religions in the Royal University of Rome. The decree declares:

"The aforenamed priest has been teaching for many years and pertinaciously propositions which are theologically erroneous and also manifestly heretical. Admonished many times over, he has made repeated acts of submission but has not given signs of real and true repentance and, indeed, has lately dared openly to deny the dogma of the real presence of Christ in the Eucharist."

By the Congregation of the Holy Office, moreover, several Catholic monthly and quarterly reviews, devoted to philosophical subjects and the comparative study of religions, are prohibited. Count Gallarati Scotti's remarkable authorized biography of the famous novelist Antonio Fogazzaro, of which an English translation is being issued shortly by a London publisher, has been condemned in the index of forbidden books.

Proposes Taking Over of Internal Finance—Firm Against Union With Germany.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—A dispatch from Vienna says that the strike of postal telegraph and telephone employes has been settled by agreement between them and the Government. This appears to disprove a report from Berlin that a Soviet Government has been proclaimed in the Austrian capital.

Nevertheless, the French Foreign Office regards the Austrian situation as critical, and the new French Government will endeavor to have the Allies act at once to aid the unhappy country. The French will propose that the Allies lend Austria $200,000,000 to enable her to buy food. This same plan was recommended by Sir William Goode, the British member of the Austrian Reparations Commission. Furthermore, the French favor the taking over of Austrian internal finances by Britain, France and Italy.

In view of what France has done on her own initiative to keep Austria from starving, it is not fair to say that she is acting only from political motives, yet unquestionably France regards it as highly important that the well-shorn Austrian lamb be kept from falling into the clutches of what to France is the wolf—that is, Germany. France looks with alarm upon the prospect of such a gain of territory and influence by the Reich.

The French contend that the attitude of Austria in the last two years shows that there is no heartfelt and spontaneous turning to Germany. They hold that Austria wishes to live independently if she can do so, and that she would join the Reich only to keep from perishing. Therefore, the French reason, it is for the Allies to keep her from starving.

Should Germany extend her jurisdiction over Austria, she would be in immediate touch, politically and economically, with Hungary, which has a very strong pro-German faction. This would leave Czechoslovakia almost open to very strong German pressure. It would mean, according to the French, a large accomplishment toward realizing the dream of a sweep eastward which had much to do with starting the war in 1914. The Quai d'Orsay points out that it was the planning of Berlin and Vienna that started the World War and that it does not conduce to the peace of Europe to unite Berlin and Vienna now.

CALLS ITALIAN REDS TO 'NEW CONQUESTS'

Communist Leader Says They Must Seize Factories and Make Munitions.

LEGHORN, Italy, Jan. 15 (Associated Press).—The friction between the Socialists and the Communists continued today at the session of the Italian Socialist Congress. Deputy Misiano, one of the leaders of the Communists, in addressing the Congress said:

"There is but one fight, that of revolution and the dictatorship of the proletariat. The Red armies must go forward to new conquests. They must take possession of the Government, seize factories and make arms and munitions, discipline the proletariat for the offensive.

"Behold the glorious work in Soviet Russia! While capitalism in the whole of Western Europe has been organizing its white armies, while Japan has been building armies and navies for the control of Asia, and the United States is increasing its naval power, all heading toward war; while capitalism is massing its forces for a war to control the world markets in an endeavor to throw the world into a new imperialistic encounter the Russian Red armies are not standing still. They advance from offensive to offensive. We of the Italian Communistic Party are ready to join with them in their conflict against international imperialism and the capitalistic class."

The Moderates had their first orator this afternoon in Professor Baratono, who represents that branch of the party favorable to unity. He recounted the achievements of the Italian Socialist Party, how it built up its membership and organized newspapers and co-operative stores. He declared it now was the largest Italian party.

"Let us reply to Moscow," said Professor Baratono, "that we see our own situation better through our own eyes; that we are for a greater unity than Moscow. Moscow calls traitors men who are pioneers in the construction of our party.

"Let us not abandon that strength which it took years to accumulate. Why weaken the mighty machine of socialism by schisms over small details. We are united in one aim. Let us not destroy our power, but let us go forward until our ultimate aim has been reached."

HAVANA, Jan. 16.—The preliminaries have been arranged by Major General Crowder, with the assistance of the American Minister, during the last forty-eight hours for launching the second phase of his investigation into Cuban affairs, beginning tomorrow.

The first development in this will come tomorrow morning, when William A. Merchant, President of the National Bank of Cuba, with a branch in Wall Street, is to appear before General Crowder. There has appeared some strong editorial comment since General Crowder's first public statement to the effect that the National Bank of Cuba must be "saved." Fear is expressed that the American public would accept this bank, because of its name, as "the" Cuban national banking institution, especially because it was prior to the moratorium the depository of the nation's funds.

One feature of the Torriente law, passed by the Senate and now before the House, as a remedy for the financial situation, is a provision that hereafter state and national funds must be kept on deposit in the respective public treasuries until some national banking institution is organized. In his preliminaries General Crowder has talked with Directors of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Tomorrow morning the Business Men's Committee, which has already visited General Crowder over the week-end, will appear at a conference with President Menocal in the Palace. A committee of the House is expected to discuss the proposed Torriente law also with the President during the morning.

Although it has been generally accepted that the financial and economic phases of General Crowder's mission were independent of the electoral problem, it was said today that they might come together on an unexpected phase. This followed the news that General Crowder had been in conference with Dr. Freyer de Andre, who acted as counsel to General Montalvo, when the latter was forced out of the Conservative nomination. At this conference, it is said, the details of the manner in which General Montalvo was nominated by the Conservatives at their presidential candidate and later withdrawn in a second convention, were brought out.

Why General Rafael Montalvo suddenly became unacceptable to the Conservatives, requiring a second convention to withdraw the nomination from him, after he had positively refused to resign, has been a mystery since last June. The State Department said it is not to be in possession of the answer to this riddle.

General Crowder is looking deeply into the situation. One of the most gratifying developments since his arrival has been the expeditious clearing of the congestion on the docks. All fear of the necessity of an embargo at United States ports against Cuba now seems to be removed.

14 CAUSES FOR WAR SEEN BY FRENCHMAN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—"In 1921 there are more causes for war than in 1914." That is the verdict of M. Scelle, Professor of International Law at Dijon University, on the European situation today. Like another more famous Professor, M. Scelle sums up his views in fourteen points. They are as follows:

1. A portion of Asiatic Turkey is pregnant with immediate conflict, even among the Allies. Four or five nations are engaged in this struggle.

2. Baltic competition is more bitter than ever.

3. The Sarre Valley contains the germs of a conflict for the future.

5. Patchwork reconstruction of Poland, the Danzig corridor and the isolation of East Prussia are so many wasps' nests of trouble.

7. Jugoslavia cannot achieve her unity.

9. Austria cannot live alone.

10. Bulgaria is sulky and stealthily is plotting revenge.

11. Greater Greece of the Sevres Treaty is an absurd and impossible conception.

12. Rumania is threatened by her neighbors both on the Bessarabian and Transylvanian flanks.

13. Anglo-American rivalry.

14. Antagonism of the Japanese and Americans in the Pacific.

Over the whole dark picture the shadow of Bolshevism throws still darker gloom.

Such, says M. Scelle, is the present record of wars in embryo; such is the appalling fruit of the great world Peace Conference of Paris. The professor takes the foregoing as the text for an earest sermon to his countrymen. He reproaches them bitterly for their indifference to foreign politics, for the careless way in which they accept the dictation of secret diplomacy and refuse to take to heart the terrible lessons of the great war and the years that came before it.

More than ever is the warning justified today, he says, when the scales are still trembling between government by Briand, who will not shut his eyes to the voice of moderation and compromise, and Poincaré, with his nationalist war cry of "Make Germany pay at all costs."

9-HOUR DAY AT PULLMAN.

2,000 Car Shop Employes Agree to It, but Under Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Two thousand men in the operating departments of the Pullman Company, beginning tomorrow, will be required to work nine hours a day. The employes at a mass-meeting held Saturday night agreed to work the extra hour under protest.

John De Young, Secretary-Treasurer of the Calumet Joint Labor Council, told about the action at the meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor today.

"Information has been received," Mr. De Young said, "that the same order is effective in Pullman shops in Buffalo and Wilmington, Del. The employes here agreed to work under the new plan pending a decision on the matter from the Railway Labor Board, which already has our case under consideration. If the employes went on strike the board would refuse to consider further the claims of the workers.

"If the new schedule of working hours is put into effect in all Pullman shops, about 16,000 employes will have to work the extra hour."

Chinese Banks Unite In Big Loan to Government

PEKING, Jan. 15.—An important precedent was established today by the signing of a 6,000,000 yuan loan by a group of thirty-seven Chinese banks with the Ministry of Communications for the purchase of cars and locomotives for the four principal railways. This was the first time that there had been such concerted support of native bankers of the governmental constructive efforts. The bankers regard the experiment as foreshadowing further activities, which it is hoped may operate materially to reform the Government's financial policy and develop industry. The movement, it is said, is considered as putting the Government on probation.

TEXTILE WORKERS RESIST WAGE CUTS

CALL PAY INADEQUATE NOW

Appeal to the Public to Support Fight to Be Waged "To the Limit of Their Ability."

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—The Philadelphia District Council of Textile Workers, at a meeting here today, decided to resist "to the limit of their ability" any wage-scale reductions, and called on the people of Philadelphia to support them in their struggle "for fair play and for a chance to live as citizens of a great American city should live."

Most of the textile manufacturers recently announced wage reductions ranging from 10 to 25 per cent. and told the men that they either would have to submit to them or be thrown out of work by the closing of the plants.

Fourteen local unions, with a membership of approximately 20,000, were represented at the council meeting today. The adoption of resolutions setting forth their attitude followed the reading of a detailed report in which statistics and memoranda were quoted to show that the average worker in the textile industry was at present receiving wages "far below the amount needed to sustain in decency a family, while the manufacturer has reaped for the last five years exorbitant profits."

"Conclusive evidence," the resolutions read, "show that the textile manufacturing concerns in Philadelphia have made profits since 1914 which are grossly exorbitant. Such profits have furnished ample opportunity for the mill owners to create adequate financial reserves. During the same period the workers in the textile mills were denied any share of this prosperity and received wages utterly inadequate to support them in health and decency.

This low level of wages has made it impossible for the workers to lay up any financial reserves whatever, and 20 per cent unemployment in the local textile industry has already reduced the wages of workers to a point that breeds desperation and renders them a prey to destitution and disease.

"The textile workers denounce the attempts of the Philadelphia manufacturers to reduce wage scales at this time as contrary to the dictates of justice, human decency and the sound public policy, and they pledge resistance to the limit of their ability against any wage scale reduction at the present time."

THREATEN STRIKES IN LAWRENCE MILLS

Amalgamated Textile Workers Pledge Aid if New Pay Schedule Is Enforced.

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—Representatives of unions in many textile centres of Massachusetts and Rhode Island affiliated with the Amalgamated Textile Workers were authorized at a meeting here today to report to their organizations that the Amalgamated was pledged to render all the financial support possible, both moral and financial, to any local branch which should declare a strike as a protest against the recently announced wage reductions in New England mills. A. J. Muste, Secretary of the Amalgamated, said at the meeting that if any mill in Lawrence attempted to open under the reduced wage scale a strike would be declared against it.

"The Amalgamated Textile Workers," he said, "refuse to take the position adopted by the United Textile Workers and accept a reduction in wages. We do not believe that with the present cost of living and the profits piled up by the manufacturers a reduction at the present time is justified. Furthermore, if a reduction at any time is necessary, we believe that the workers should have a voice in saying what this reduction should be."

He said that at today's meeting it was voted to invite all independent textile unions to attend a conference for the purpose of forming an alliance of textile workers "to protect their rights," and to begin immediately an intensive organising campaign among the workers of every mill controlled by the American Woolen Company, and by this means try to prevail upon the workers to refuse to accept the 12½ per cent. wage cut announced at the company's mills.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 16.—Assurance that "when the time is ripe the United Textile Workers of America, backed by the American Federation of Labor, will seek restoration of the 22½ per cent. in wages stolen from us through the manipulation of the employers" was given employes of mills in this city by Vice President Thomas F. McMahon of the union in a statement issued after a meeting of the local branch of the organization today. He reminded the operatives that the organization on Jan. 1 had advised mill workers not to strike, as the time was "not opportune."

The One Big Union also met today and it was announced that a "council of action" had been unanimously endorsed, and that whatever action the council might take would be in accord with the recent Essex County labor conference at Salem and with the recent movement for local councils of all labor among the shoe workers of Haverhill, Lynn and other centres. A conference was called for Jan. 26, to which representatives of all labor organizations in Lawrence will be invited.

N. Y. CENTRAL CUTS FORCE.

HARMON, Jan. 16.—Reductions in the force of employes have been ordered in the motive power, transportation and other departments of the New York Central Railroad.

At the big Harmon shops, according to employes, 111 hands were ordered laid off, of whom eighty-five were employed in the electrical repair department and twenty-six in the motive power shops.

The so-called "second trick" in the Dobbs Ferry and Riverdale stations was abolished, so only one shift will be employed hereafter. Two laborers were ordered taken off each of the sectional repair gangs between New York City and Peekskill. The reason for the curtailment is said to be the slackening up of freight and passenger traffic.

This is the second reduction made in the working force at Harmon in three months.

LABOR PREPARES UNION SHOP FIGHT

SEE PRINCIPLES IN DANGER

Leaders Charge Certain Interests Have Opened a Campaign to Disrupt the Unions.

MAY FORMULATE PROGRAM

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The direct charge that powerful financial and industrial interests have entered upon a publicity campaign in the hope of shaping public opinion against organized labor, with the disruption of the trade union movement as a goal, was made tonight by Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor, in announcing that a meeting of the National and International unions affiliated with the Federation will be held here Feb. 23.

Labor leaders who are willing to discuss the forthcoming meeting at all agree that it will be one of epochal importance in the history of the American Federation of Labor. For some time there has been growing steadily talk that the labor interests are being made the object of concerted, subtle and unfair attack on the part of certain industrial and financial groups. A study of the situation was begun several weeks ago, and the conclusion reached that the labor unions must organize and fight back, or lose much of the ground won for various principles during the war period.

Will Consider "Attacks."

The call by President Gompers for a meeting in Washington of representatives of the 109 national and international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, on Feb. 23," said Mr. Morrison, "is for the purpose of considering attacks now being made on the trade union movement.

"These attacks include attempts to establish the anti-union shop, wage reductions, anti-strike laws, compulsory arbitration, labor, injunctions and a publicity that would mould the public mind to accept these backward steps.

"I believe labor will formulate a plan to expose the pretense of men who are only interested in cheap labor and a continuance of their profiteering policy. The trade union movement is alert to the forces against it and proposes to act vigorously and courageously. Our opponents are mistaken if they imagine that they have made the slightest progress in alarming workers, or that they will humbly accept a policy of reaction.

"The proposed conference will consider the publicity and other methods of our opponents, and it is quite possible that labor will launch an offensive movement against those who imagine they control practically every avenue of publicity."

Wants to Formulate Program.

For one thing, the Federation of Labor desires to have formulated a program and a new bill of rights, representing what it stands for and what it proposes to do at about the time the Republican Administration comes into power. By calling the meeting for Feb. 23 it was so arranged that this could be brought about. It is possible that the big conference will still be in session when President-elect Harding takes the oath of office.

It is charged that certain industries which are asserting to the public that their fight is for the open shop are in reality working to so disrupt the trade union movement that it will be possible for them to bring about the "non-union shop," or at least a condition where the labor unions would be helpless to protect themselves against most flagrant abuses.

It is understood that a good deal of data along this line has been presented to the organized labor representatives regarding in an effort to obtain the appointment of a union labor man as Secretary of Labor in his Cabinet.

CRAMPS END COMPACT WITH LABOR UNIONS

Shipbuilders Will Hereafter Deal Directly With Employes, Ignoring Union.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—J. H. Mull, President and General Manager of the William Cramp and Sons Ship and Engine Building Company, announced tonight that the agreement made a year ago with the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, had been discontinued. The contract, which provided that all intercourse between employer and employe should be carried on through a representative of the union, terminated on Dec. 31. Notice of its discontinuance was sent to the men on Jan. 1.

The company's action, Mr. Mull said tonight, was due to the breaking of agreements by the metal workers, about 500 of whom went on strike on Dec. 22.

"We have decided to discontinue the agreement with the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor and to deal directly with our own employes on and after January 1, 1921," the notice to employes said. "We are convinced that closer and more satisfactory relations can be maintained between you and ourselves by direct intercourse, rather than through individuals disinterested in the welfare of the plant and ignorant of practical shipbuilding, but more concerned over self-advancement and self-gain.

"We are indifferent as to whether our employes are members of labor organizations or not. Non-discrimination will be practiced by us and we insist that our employes shall act in a similar manner.

"We expect our employes to ignore all laws enacted by labor organizations for the restriction of output. It is our intent to deal fairly and justly with the rates of pay, and we shall expect our employes in return to give us an honest output for each hour of employment. We shall receive our individual employes for conference when they desire. We assure our employes that they will share with us the prosperity of the firm. Our prosperity depends upon the efficiency and economy which increases production and lowers the cost thereof."

HONORING FRANKLIN

Decoration of Printer-Philosopher's Statue in Park Row This Afternoon Is Chief Event.

MANY TO PLACE WREATHS

Colleges, Patriotic Societies and Other Organizations to Take Part —Franklin Society to Dine.

Exercises commemorating the birth of Benjamin Franklin and the beginning of national Thrift Week open today with "Bank Day" programs. The committee in charge of the movement, headed by William Fellowes Morgan and Adolph Lewisohn, announced that at 9:30 o'clock this morning William Guggenheim would place a wreath on the Franklin statue in the Hall of Fame.

The main event of the day's program, however, will be at 2:30 o'clock, when the Franklin statue in Park Row will be decorated. Participating in the exercises will be Charles M. Schwab, Chancellor Elmer E. Brown, Marcus M. Marks, Rear Admiral Glennon, Postmaster Patten, Street Cleaning Commissioner Leo, and Brigadier General Oliver Bridgman. Wreaths will be placed by representatives of the French Embassy, Harvard, Yale, College of William and Mary, University of Pennsylvania, Sons of the Revolution, Sons of the American Revolution, Daughters of the American Revolution, New York Printing Employers Association, Sphinx Club, New York Electrical Society, Music Industry Chamber of Commerce, American Association of Wholesale Opticians, the Pennsylvania Society, Y. M. C. A., and Girl Scouts.

Tonight in the Hotel Astor the annual dinner of the Franklin Society will be held.

In connection with the thrift plans, a letter from William L. Ettinger, Superintendent of Schools, making a plea for thrift, will be read at all public schools.

Deploring the impression in many quarters that the "thrift" movement means to put money away and to economize on the necessaries of life, W. F. G. Koelsch, Chairman of the Advisory Committee of the Prosperity League and President of the National Association of Credit Men, last night issued a statement strongly urging a resumption of orderly purchases as best calculated to open factories and halt the growth of unemployment. Mr. Koelsch, who is also President of the New Netherlands Bank, said:

"It is vital to industry that normal buying continue. If everybody were to suspend buying what he or she needs, an industrial breakdown naturally would follow. This would mean country-wide idleness, and we all know what idleness breeds. There are enough men out of work now. Our message is that the 'buyers' strike,' if prolonged, would paralyze the nation's business."

IN UPPER BROADWAY

Police Make Two More Arrests in Effort to Break Up Drug Traffic.

WORK OF NARCOTIC SQUAD

Detective Spends Month Tracing Source of Supplies in Riverside Drive District.

After working for a month in an effort to clean up a traffic in drugs reported to the police as being carried on in the upper Broadway and Riverside Drive district, Detective Harry Salls of the narcotic division at Police Headquarters, posing as a valet to a mythical millionaire drug addict, caused the arrest last night of two men who described themselves as Napolian Gervais, a waiter, of 251 West Fifty-fifth Street, and Elmer Sullivan of 910 Eighth Avenue. Sullivan is charged with trafficking in drugs and Gervais with conspiracy in aiding and abetting Sullivan.

Following numerous complaints made several weeks ago to Special Deputy Police Commissioner Dr. Carleton Simon, in charge of the Narcotic Division, Detective Salls was assigned to the upper Broadway district to gain information concerning the alleged drug ring. With a motor car at his disposal and a roll of bills which he displayed freely, Salls began his operations by going daily to an upper Broadway restaurant, much frequented by denizens of the Tenderloin, where he became known to patrons of the place as "Miller, valet to a Riverside Drive millionaire."

After several days Detective Salls approached Gervais, a waiter in the restaurant, who, according to the police, told him of a saloon in Eighth Avenue, near Fifty-fourth Street, where he could obtain drugs by asking for Sullivan. Both went to the saloon, where Gervais introduced Sullivan to Salls.

Sullivan, the police say, sold Salls a bottle of morphine for $15, and Salls made an engagement with him to get more drugs.

The detective and Sullivan were in the restaurant last night, as were also Detective Sergeant J. J. Mooney, of the Narcotic Division, and Ralph Oyler, Internal Revenue agent. Sullivan, the police say, passed Salls a bottle of morphine and two hypodermic needles and received two marked $20 bills in return. As soon as the sale was made Mooney and Oyler arrested Sullivan and a few moments later took Gervais into custody. Both men, the detectives say, admitted the charges.

The two men will be arraigned today before United States Commissioner Samuel M. Hitchcock.

Commenting on the arrests last night, Commissioner Simon said: "We will scour this city from the hovels of the east side to the palaces of Riverside Drive until this vile traffic is stopped."

The arrests of Gervais and Sullivan, Commissioner Simon believes, may lead to the cleaning up of the traffic in the upper Broadway district.

BAIL $10,000 IN DRUG CASE

So Seller Cannot Get Out of Jail, Magistrate Tells Prisoner.

Thomas Cusimano, 19 years old, of 349 East Thirteenth Street, and five boys arrested with him on Friday night in a drug raid, were arraigned yesterday. Cusimano was held by Magistrate Tobias in the Essex Market Court in $10,000 bail.

"I am holding you in this high bail because drug sellers are one of the greatest menaces to the public," said Magistrate Tobias. "The stuff they sell causes crime. The best thing in such cases is to hold men of your type in high bail so they can't get out of jail to peddle the drug again."

Cusimano's case was set for hearing on Jan. 17. The five boys were held in the Children's Court for hearing on Jan. 19, on charges of juvenile delinquency.

TACOMA BANK CLOSED.

Commissioner Says Internal Conditions Caused His Action.

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 16.—The doors of the Scandinavian-American Bank of Tacoma were officially closed last night by Bank Commissioner Claud P. Hay. "Gross mismanagement, building operations and accumulation of non-liquidated assets," was charged by Mr. Hay, who emphasized that the situation was caused by the internal affairs of the bank and not through financial conditions in Tacoma. Deposits are approximated at $4,000,000, representing about 12,000 stockholders.

...sentative Central Body.

PARIS, Jan. 15 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—The committee of Jewish delegations which has been in session here for a week concluded its meetings today with a decision to create one central representative body for the Jews of all countries.

The committee decided to take all possible steps to protect pogrom victims who are at present stranded in foreign countries, and aid them to reach some country where they can settle. For this purpose a special Emigration Committee was appointed.

GRAFT HUNT BY GRAND JURY.

Federal Investigators Present Lockwood Committee Evidence Today.

The Federal Grand Jury which will consider evidence of the infraction of Federal law by concerns engaged in making building materials, will be empanelled this morning. Presentation of evidence will begin at once under the direction of Colonel William Rand and Isidor Kresel, appointed recently for that purpose by Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer.

Large stacks of documents used by Samuel Untermyer before the Lockwood Committee have been turned over to the Federal investigators. During its inquiry the Lockwood Committee delved into combinations among twenty-five building material manufacturers' associations, nearly all of which, in the opinion of the members, were violating State and Federal laws.

The Brindell trial will continue at 10 o'clock this morning before Supreme Court Justice John V. McAvoy and a jury in the Supreme Court. More than fifty witnesses for the prosecution will be on hand and ready to testify to payments made to Robert P. Brindell, head of the Building Trades Council, indicted on charges of extortion and coercion.

The trial will last at least another week, after which the Lockwood Committee expects to continue the last phase of its inquiry, the investigation of banks and life insurance companies, and the reasons why these institutions do not lend more money on real estate mortgages.

FIREMAN KILLED IN WRECK.

Big Four Freight Knocks Passenger Engine Down Embankment.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 16.—J. J. Hollister, fireman, was killed, and Harry Lynch, engineer, was seriously injured when the locomotive on Big Four Passenger Train No. 11, westbound from New York to St. Louis, left the tracks at Linndale, near here, early today, plunged down a thirty-foot embankment and turned completely over, pinning the fireman underneath. Both men lived in Cleveland. Passengers were piled up in the cars, but escaped injury.

The tender stuck in the side embankment and prevented a combination baggage car and coach and a Pullman from rolling into a ditch. The wreck was caused by an eastbound freight train locomotive which jumped the track and sideswiped the passenger engine.

The Federal Reserve Position, the Money Market and the General Outlook.

The statement of the whole Federal Reserve system is of a character which will insure continuance of the interesting conflict of influences for and against a further decline in money rates. At the close of last week the system's percentage of cash reserve to deposits and note circulation was the highest since October of 1919. Last week's $157,390,000 reduction of rediscounts brought that account to the lowest since last March, and loans on United States Government collateral are now below any week since the statement of them separately was begun in March of 1918.

Outstanding notes have been reduced $110,000,000 in a week and $245,000,000 since Dec. 23; the second of these figures representing the largest consecutive reduction ever made in the history of the Federal Reserve. Nevertheless the total of rediscounts and the total of outstanding notes are, respectively, $340,000,000 and $310,000,000 greater than in this week last year—an illogical condition, in view of the state of trade, which means that further reduction should be on the cards, even if that means unchanged rediscount rates.

The past week's recovery on the Stock Exchange undoubtedly reflected the easier money rates which experienced financiers knew were bound to come, even if their coming was delayed in the first days of the year. It may not be unreasonable to argue, as Wall Street is apt to do, that it foreshadowed better things in general trade and industry exactly as the decline of fourteen months ago may be assumed to have foreshadowed the great trade reaction of 1920. But we have learned that Stock Exchange prophecy of this character is sometimes tentative and always far in advance of its fulfillment in the field of finance and industry. After the trade reaction and business troubles of 1903—whose resemblance to last year's readjustment, on a smaller scale, has hitherto been pointed out in this column—there were occasional sharp recoveries on the Stock Exchange which did not last; which occurred, indeed, while business developments were still exceedingly unfavorable. Recovery in Wall Street began in the Autumn of 1903 and was renewed in January, 1904. But it was as late as May, 1904, when "Steel common" touched its low-record price of 8⅜, and even such familiar preliminary signs of industrial recovery as increase in bank clearings and increase of monthly iron production did not come in sight until the Autumn.

A well-known financier was quoted last week as remarking, first that business recovery has begun and second that a few months of time will bring a distinctly better situation. He conditioned rapid and permanent recovery on five or six contingent possibilities; among them restoration of Liberty bonds to par and restoration of foreign exchange to normal value. No one will dispute the assertion that when the economic situation shall have returned to normal, here and abroad, these conditions also will have been fulfilled. Return of the Liberty bonds to par will depend, however, on three circumstances.

One is reduction of public expenditure so as to insure a yearly surplus revenue larger than has yet been yielded. The next is maintenance of the $253,000,000 annual sinking fund purchases provided by law, the full monthly portion of which has not been applied to such purchases in recent months, but whose strict observance would extinguish our war debt in twenty-five years. The third is such decline in the prevailing rate of interest on investments as would not only facilitate refunding of the Victory 4¾ per cents. in 1923 at a lower rate, but would make a United States 4¼ per cent. long-term obligation worth par, when measured by the market price of other securities. That time will come eventually, but it may not be near at hand, when the rate of interest asked and conceded on American loans to European Governments remains at its present abnormal height. Our Civil War 6s recovered 8 or 9 per cent. in price when the after-war credit crisis of 1866 was over, and they never sold below par again. But we had no European loans to make in that readjustment period.

Restoration of the foreign exchanges to normal parity is another matter. It presupposes not only the economic recuperation of Europe, but the adjustment of her war indebtedness and her trade indebtedness to the United States, the bringing down of her inflated paper currencies to the normal requirements of trade, and probably also the political rehabilitation of Central Europe. Complete fulfillment of that program will occupy many years. The practical question of the moment is, how soon such countries as England and France can so far overcome their existing economic handicaps and improve their foreign credit as to cause a continuous and important movement of exchanges in their favor. This is not at all an impossibility of 1921.

A WHEAT MARKET RUMOR.

Report That Corporation's Holdings Were Not in Trade Statistics.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—There is a story going the rounds in the grain market that the Grain Corporation had 70,000,000 bushels of wheat sold for export when it went out of business on June 1, and that this grain was not included in the "carry over" on July 1. The final statement from the Grain Corporation showed stocks of wheat in all elevators on June 1 as 111,000,000 bushels.

It is regarded as almost impossible however, that such a quantity of grain could escape the notice of the trade, especially in view of the fact that the Grain Corporation issued a report on the supply and distribution of wheat for the 1919-20 season.

Present Investment Opportunities

WE recommend for investment purposes the purchase of seasoned, long-term bonds of American corporations. Many such issues are now selling at prices materially lower than those prevailing under normal conditions in the pre-war period.

Investors who buy sound securities at the present level will obtain a substantial yield for a long period and may enjoy a handsome profit when interest rates decline to the low basis which always comes with industrial prosperity.

Montana Oil Fields

Tht Montana oil industry is a year old and ten producing wells, brought in during 1920, are capable of producing 12,000 barrels of crude oil daily, according to estimates of operators. The field now developed, in Fergus County, about 200 miles southeast of Great Falls, is twenty-five miles from the railroad and has two pipe lines, both connecting with the railroad at Winnett, Mont.

It is said that 250 wells were drilled in various parts of Montana prior to the first producer. In the Fergus County field, variously known as the Winnett, the Mosby and the Cat Creek oil field, approximately 50 wells are being drilled at the present time. From information we have received we believe that the Montana fields will have a large play in the Spring.

LONDON'S VIEW OF FINANCIAL OUTLOOK

WHY STERLING IS ADVANCING

Particular Financial Problems of England, France and Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 16.—With the new year fairly under way, optimism regarding general conditions in finance is slowly gaining ground. It is restrained in character, but the markets are now recognizing that the heavy liquidation in securities and commodities which occurred at the close of 1920 has resulted in a healthier condition, and there is evidence that stronger hands are now in control of the situation. Bank loans have been curtailed, weak speculative positions eliminated or reduced, and a check imposed on floating of new securities. Commodity prices, too, are falling—slowly in some directions, more rapidly in others. All this deflation is easing the monetary position. Great discrimination is still being exercised in granting credits, but funds are not unduly restricted when needed for legitimate productive enterprise and for the broadening of the trade basis.

The position of American exchange is now regarded as much more favorable. To some extent, the almost spectacular rise in sterling at New York since the month began is ascribed to the closing of speculative operations for the fall; but the present movement is believed to have a more solid foundation in the declining European demands for American products. The low level reached by sterling last Autumn was attributed largely to French demand for remittances to America, and not to any unfavorable turn in the financial position between London and New York. Absorption by America of all gold arriving on our open market during recent weeks, along with the gold shipments now being made from India to the United States, is having a strengthening influence on exchange; so is the favorable atmosphere created by Lord Chalmers's mission to the United States. In Lombard Street the view is taken that, while reactions will probably occur, the tendency of sterling will continue upward; always providing the Continental demand for dollars does not recur in important volume. There is a very general feeling that the four-dollar level may again be reached and maintained, under fundamentally sounder condition than when the similar level was touched on the recovery last Spring.

Interlocked as our market is with America, the deflation policy which has been so effectively pursued in the United States is viewed with considerable satisfaction on this side. That deflation is held responsible for the easier tendency noticeable last week in the New York money. If persisted in, the policy should have reflex action on London and the way be paved for relaxation of the restraints thus far imposed in our own money market. But easier money in the States is also regarded as likely to lead to more free investment of American capital in Europe, with consequent further benefit to exchange.

This week's Bank of England return showed the highest proportion reserve to liabilities since last September, a fact due to lessened demands for currency and to Government repayments to the Bank. Upon these grounds, and on belief that more normal conditions are returning in the United States and here, reduction of the bank rate is regarded as possible within a month or two. That opinion is not yet general, but it is growing, especially among those who recognize the need of stimulating trade.

Regarding the international situation, especially in Europe, the outlook is still unsatisfactory. The great handicap to trade with the Continent is the huge mass of unconvertible paper currency and the consequent demoralization of the foreign exchanges. Export credit rebates for the devastated countries are being actively discussed by bankers and insurance interests; but the governmental position bristles with difficulties. Banks express inability to risk their resources in this way; yet they are very sympathetic and promise limited support to any workable scheme. The situation outside of Europe is considered somewhat more promising, but in such directions also depreciated exchanges are severely checking resumption of more normal trade relations. The clearing up of the financial situation in France and Germany would have the most important effect on the international position generally. The present position of France is most disappointing, owing to what seems to be a lack of energy in tackling taxation and currency questions and to the absence of any arrangement for cash indemnity from Germany. But hope is expressed that the present political drisis will lead to a stronger Government.

Germany's export trade is steadily increasing, but a dangerous situation still exists in the enormously inflated currency. Some attempt is just now being made to reduce this. The low value of the German mark, however, is somewhat misleading; it is partly a result of the deliberate policy of German exporters in refusing to bring home balances created abroad by exports. Such a policy assists the German trade, but frustrates imports, and is likely to prejudice the situation ultimately.

The reduction in our own "currency notes" is attracting attention. Last Wednesday the amount outstanding was reported as £350,968,809, as against £357,938,895 a week before.

THE STABILITY OF EARNING POWER AND RELIABILITY OF GOOD WATER POWER DEVELOPMENTS HAVE BEEN PROVED DURING THE PAST YEARS OF ABNORMALLY HIGH OPERATING COSTS.

THE WATER POWER DEVELOPMENT OF THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER POWER COMPANY, SPANNING THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER AT KEOKUK, IOWA, COMPLETED IN 1913, IS ONE OF THE LARGEST AND MOST EFFICIENT IN THE WORLD.

The present installed generating capacity is approximately 150,000 horse power with foundations constructed for an additional 50,000 horse power. 468 miles of transmission line are operated.

The territory served, one of the natural transportation centres of the United States, includes St. Louis, Alton, Quincy, Burlington, Fort Madison, Keokuk, Hannibal and adjacent sections.

Present contracts cover an aggregate demand of more than 130,000 horse power, of which 80% is with public utility companies, thus insuring wide diversity of business, and the most important is with the public utility companies of St. Louis for 60,000 horse power for a term of ninety-nine years from August 1, 1913.

No other important water power is available within practical transmission distance.

Buy Income and Appreciation

WITH the period of readjustment well under way, the cost of money is gradually becoming normal and bond prices will inevitably rise.

Prevailing high yields of some of the soundest bonds on the market—the highest in many decades—will follow the downward trend of interest rates.

Every dollar carefully invested in bonds today secures about double the income of the dollar invested tomorrow.

Therefore buy bonds now—for income and appreciation.

The following are a few of the especially attractive issues we are in a position to offer, subject to prior sale and change in price:

WESTERN TRADE STILL UNCERTAIN

Recovery in Business Perceptible, but Progress Very Gradual.

EXPERIENCE OF RAILROADS

Possibilities of Violent Movement of Prices for Wheat and Other Grains.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Taken as a whole, trade conditions in the West show a slight improvement as compared with a week ago. Leading wholesalers of dry goods report that the actual amount of merchandise taken during the past week was fully as large in quantity as in the corresponding week last year; although, with prices so much lower, the sales from the dollar and cents standpoint would show a heavy decrease. Sales range all the way from orders for immediate delivery to orders for March shipment, but are in the main for the Spring trade. Road business is encouraging and jobbers are optimistic over the outlook.

But the steel situation is still unsettled, with the United States Steel Corporation's plants in this territory operating at about 85 per cent. of capacity, while the independents are running only 10 to 15 per cent. A better demand is noted for hides and leather, and railroads claim there is a better inquiry for lumber in the South. On the whole, bankers continue to express the belief that the worst has been seen, although there is considerable financing yet to be done.

No great increase in building operation is expected until there is a reduction of the interest rate on mortgages; but at the rate that the West is selling cash grains, some considerable easing in the money situation would not be surprising before long. Iowa, which has been the "sore spot" of that trade, is now shipping corn very heavily. The railroads are feeling the effect of the high freight rates, both in passenger and freight business, and loadings are now running at a rate about 10 per cent. less than last year taken as a whole. In some quarters a slight easing in money rates is already visible.

On the grain markets, "hedging" sales of corn have assumed immense proportions. It is conservatively estimated that there are over 25,000,000 bushels hedged at Chicago alone, to say nothing of the amounts in other markets. There is, in fact, a vast amount of grains hedged that never shows up at terminal markets, as is indicated by the fact that the visible supply of corn a week ago was less than 7,000,000 bushels. The aggregate of all grains in the visible supply is around 85,000,000 bushels, compared with 107,000,000 a year ago, and practically all of the holdings this year are hedged.

It is the general belief of the trade that the wheat and other grain markets are in a position to advance or decline with extreme rapidity from the prevailing level of prices. At the end of last week a majority of traders seemed to be looking for a further break. At the high point of last week, March wheat showed a rally of around 37 cents from the low figures on this crop, and was up 15 cents from the low of the previous week.

Much depends on the outcome in Argentina and Australia. The imposition of an export tax of around 19 cents on wheat from Argentina is expected to bring about a decline in the price of futures in that market, as would be necessary in order to compete with the United States. At the close of the week, premiums at the Gulf were off about 3 cents for the week, with February loading quoted at 21 cents over March and March loading at 19 cents over. Cash corn and oats closed last Saturday at the lowest prices on the crop.

TO OPEN HOOVER AID STANDS

Funds Will Be Asked on Wednesday for Europe's Starving Children.

Hoover Life Saving Station will be opened at noon today in front of the New York Public Library at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street and in front of the Sub-Treasury Building at Wall and Broad Streets, in preparation for the Day of Self Denial on Wednesday when contributions will be asked for the feeding of starving children in Eastern and Central Europe.

On the Day of Self Denial all the army recruiting huts in the city will be turned into life saving stations to remind people of the need for contributions to the children's fund. Contributions may be sent to the Women's Emergency Committee, 25 West Thirty-ninth Street, payable to Franklin K. Lane, Treasurer. The arrangements are in charge of Mrs. Willard Straight, Chairman of the Women's Committee of the European Relief Council. New York's share of the $33,000,000 fund is $3,500,000.

Just to show what a girl may do, Mary Schaefer, 16, of 713 Amsterdam Avenue will until Jan. 29, eat just what the hungry children in Europe get, the dinner that was served at opening of the campaign in this city, a bit of dry bread, rice and cocoa. "When I get hungry I am going to read and forget it," said Mary, "and if a lot of other boys and girls do the same thing they will make people think about those hungry children abroad."

English Financier in Palestine.

Sir Alfred accompanied the Zionist leader to Palestine in connection with the plans for the development of the country.

An Investment Message

This is our eighth effort to get a message to everybody who is so fortunate as to have ready money to invest at this time. This particular letter is to correct the impression that the bargains in investment securities have all been snapped up. When we have talked about "Investment Securities" we have meant strictly underlying securities, such as bonds and preferred stocks, or their equivalent. While we do not hold that there are no common stocks which may be classed as investment securities, nevertheless in this campaign we recommend only underlying securities.

"Perhaps never again will there be such bargains in investment securities as the market now offers, and so we say to all, and this means you,—scrape together all the money you can without borrowing and buy investment securities—and buy them now."

The financial pages of our papers devote most of their space to speculative securities—and for a good reason. Investment securities furnish little news. In normal times fluctuations in market value are small. A true investment security is not one on which you have to stand over a stock ticker and watch quotations; nor do you have to watch the daily reports on the financial pages of your newspaper. A true investment security is one you can lock up and forget until some day when it is convenient for you to sit down and discuss with your investment adviser whether there has been any change in general or specific conditions which would make a shifting of your investment advisable.

Now, on the other hand, the more speculative a certain security may be the more news it is apt to furnish. Newspaper headlines have bristled with news since we started this campaign of the rapid advance in this or that security—all of them, of course, speculative in character. This apparently has given many people a notion that they have already lost their chance to get investment bargains. Such is not the case. None of the true investment securities have advanced in market value to where they are no longer bargains. Some may have moved up, however, to where they are no longer the best bargains. Some of them have hardly moved up at all. There are still plenty of bargains to be had. Don't let newspaper reports relating only to speculative securities shape your investment thought. The spectacular advancing market we are now experiencing in speculative securities is simply a rebound from a long continued declining market. It is characterized by an irregularity and unevenness which might almost be termed disorderly—and this because in these speculative securities the battle is largely a struggle between professionals.

It will be strange indeed if the upward tendency of the present speculative market is not characterized by bear raids and here and there by marked reactions in prices. As many people have gotten the idea that they have lost the opportunity to buy investment securities at bargain prices because of the rise in prices of speculative securities we therefore fear that when a reaction in prices is reported for the speculative securities it will make them nervous about buying investment securities.

Our advice is to "buy—and buy now." A reaction in the market for speculative securities should have little or no effect on the true investment securities. However, if the reaction in the speculative market should be so heavy as to depress quotations on investment securities, our message would be to those who have not bought, as well as to those who may have bought, "buy—and buy then." While we expect reactions in the speculative market, we think it would be taking an unwarrantedly long chance to expect to get your true investment bargains at less than you can buy them for to-day. Our advice has been and still is to "buy—and buy now." We are sorry if you did not act on our messages published heretofore, for if you did not you have already missed some bargains, but there are many bargains still to be had practically as good as those you may have missed.

While we solicit your confidence and patronage, we don't want you to miss a bargain sale while we are getting you acquainted with us. If you cannot satisfy yourself upon information at your command that we can serve you as well as the best other agency could possibly do, then we urge you to go elsewhere. We do strongly advise, however, that you buy only on the advice of one of the many houses that have both a high moral and financial standing. As we have told you before, if you care to rely upon our judgment we will treat it as an honor transaction.

Yours cordially,

The Time Is Right For Buying

The price cutting campaign has been carried far enough. Very little inflation, if any, is left in the general level of prices. It is time for a general buying movement to set in if the vigorous industrial life of the country is to be sustained.

The advisability of buying applies particularly to the stock market where selling has been carried to excess and price declines have been carried to such extremes that there is especial incentive for buying.

We have just compiled a special article on the changing price trend, and shall be pleased to send copy upon request.

STEEL MEN AWAIT TURN IN MARKET

TIN PLATE MAKERS GLOOMY

Quantity of Canned Stuffs on Counters All Over the Country Dispirits Them.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 15.—Steel ingots are now being produced at the rate of about 26,000,000 gross tons a year, the rate of the United States Steel Corporation being about 21,000,000 tons, while independents are producing at the rate of about 7,000,000 tons. Production is probably at as heavy a rate as in the last week or two of December. In a few instances, there has been resumption of plants that were closed during the holidays, through orders piled up during the period of idleness. The present rate of steel production is nearly if not quite two-thirds of the average rate that obtained during the first nine months of last year, when demand was very heavy; and, as actual consumption has decreased by more than one-third, the prospect is that there will be declining production until there is a marked revival in actual consumption.

The Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage statement proved more favorable than was predicted. In many quarters a December decrease of more than a million tons was expected, while the report shows a decrease of 873,359 tons. Shipments during December were approximately 1,300,000 tons, so that, as there were some cancellations, the total bookings were somewhat in excess of 500,000 tons. The 8,148,122 tons of business on books Jan. 1 is equal to production for 6.7 months at 90 per cent. of capacity, but as deliveries will in many cases extend over a longer period, the corporation is not in position to operate at 90 per cent. for an indefinite period. Some new business, however, is coming in, at perhaps 30 to 40 per cent. of capacity, against bookings at 40 to 50 per cent. capacity in December.

Dollar Drop in Ore Likely.

Adjustments of ore inventories Jan. 1 indicates a belief that there will be a decline, perhaps $1 a ton, for the 1921 season. A reduction of $1 a ton would put ore prices back to where they stood for the 1919 season, making Mesabi non-Bessemer $5.55 at Lake Erie dock. In 1905 to 1914 inclusive, the price fluctuated between $2.85 and $4.

Finished steel prices are steady all along the line, and the predicted shading of Steel Corporation prices by independents is not occurring, except in occasional isolated instances. Some of the independents are absolutely opposed to any price shading whatever, no matter how attractive the order offered. Bars are $2.35, shapes $2.45, plates $2.65, blue annealed sheets $3.55, black sheets $4.35, galvanized sheets $5.70 and wire and wire nails $3.25.

In manufactures of steel there is a general declining tendency toward price levels that would be in keeping with existing prices on the regular mill products, prices previously having been in relation to the premium prices charged by independent mills. Rivets have declined in the last few days $2 a ton, being now quotable at $4.15 for buttonhead structural rivets and $4.25 for conehead boiler rivets.

Merchant blast furnaces have made no further reductions in their regular asking prices, the usual being $33 for foundry iron, $32 for Bessemer or malleable and $30 for basic, f. o. b. valley furnaces. It is understood that the foundry iron quotation of $33 has been shaded in some transactions. While the furnace interests in many instances have marked down their ore inventories they regard the decline in ore value as a reflection of the decline in pig iron that has already occurred.

The coke market is quiet and there is very little demand from furnaces. It is understood that there has been some turnover, but only a very little, in spot furnace coke at prices ranging from $5 to $5.50, and that range is quotable as the spot furnace market. Spot foundry coke has naturally eased off, and is quotable at $6.50 to $7.

Tubulars Still in Lead.

Shipments of tubular goods continue much heavier than of other classes of steel products. The independents have had some releases since they reduced prices, and on the whole are shipping a large tonnage. As to the leading pipe interest, its shipments are running at 140 to 150 per cent. of full capacity in several lines, production being at capacity while the last of the accumulations due to the prolonged car shortage are being moved. Stocks will probably be depleted by the end of this month. Specifications against contracts tend to confirm forecasts made some time ago that tubular goods demand in general would be heavy this year. Standard steel pipe is quotably firm at the Industrial Board or Steel Corporation schedule, with a basing discount of 57½ per cent. Oil-country goods, being delivered on the delivered basis, are on the Industrial Board prices, plus allowances for the freight advances of last August.

The 16,000-ton inquiry for sheets of various descriptions, for delivery over the first half of the year, which excited considerable interest about three weeks ago, has fallen through, the prospective buyer concluding that the time is not propitious. While there were some very favorable items in the inquiry, and quotations were acceptable for parts of the total, it is reported that the maximum concession offered from Industrial Board prices was only $3 a ton, which would probably indicate that on some of the items no concessions at all were offered.

Some of the independents are making a canvass for business, and presumably inducements are offered in some cases, but the volume of booking is very small. The leading interest has been making very heavy shipments, and last week operated its mills very close to 95 per cent. in point of number. Independents probably operated on an average of 25 or 30 per cent. of capacity. The leading interests' shipments of sheets in December as a whole were not far from the record month. A particularly good showing was made in galvanized sheets, the heaviest for quite a while past. For a long time the production was restricted by shortage in pickling capacity, caused by the large amount of pickling needed in the manufacture of special sheets for the automobile trade.

Independent sheet manufacturers have been seeking to book orders for early rolling rather than contracts for any period. The leading interest, on the other hand, is chiefly in the market in connection with contracts for the half year. As customers have considerable tonnage still due them on old contracts, they are making no particular haste to close for the remainder of the half year, and the seller is making no effort to push them. A very fair volume of contract business, however, was put through in December, and more has been booked since the beginning of this month. The market is quoted steady at 3.55c for blue annealed sheets, 10 gauge; 4.35c for black sheets, 28 gauge, and 5.70 for galvanized sheets, 28 gauge, with the possibility that on an attractive specification for early rolling some of the independents would shade these prices a trifle.

The Yorkville tin plate plant, which was entirely closed for a time, is understood to be running at 50 per cent. of capacity this week. Independents who closed their plants are accumulating some business during the idleness, partly in releases on suspended business, and resumptions are to be expected from time to time. As a general average the independents do not seem to be running more than, say, 30 per cent. of their mills this week. The American Sheet and Tin Plate Company has a regular program of scheduling 80 per cent. of its tin mills for operation, and last week came within 2 per cent. of operating the full quota desired. A good volume of specifications is in hand, but chiefly against contracts made for the second half of last year, there being more than two months of business carried over. This interest has booked one very large tin plate contract for the half year and some smaller ones, but the company is making no effort just now to induce customers to contract.

The independent tin plate producers are making no effort to close contracts, preferring to leave buyers take their own time. In this respect the tin plate market is somewhat different from the sheet market, for in the latter trade some of the independents are very actively soliciting business. The food packers are not sanguine of their industry's future, being much impressed by the stocks of canned goods now in existence. At the annual convention of canners next week there will be opportunity for an interchange of views. There is a general feeling that market prices cannot be higher, while they may be lower. Undoubtedly a large volume of business could be booked if producers would guarantee prices, but they have no thought of doing this, considering it decidedly bad form.

There has been no readjustment in chain prices since the declines in the independent market on wire, rods and bars, from which chain is made. The base price remains at 7.25c. A rumor in circulation has it that within a few days the leading chain interests will make a reduction in its prices, probably three-quarters of a cent a pound, whereupon the other chain makers will naturally reduce their prices also. It is not claimed that such a reduction would necessarily put chain in the proper alignment with the raw materials or with other similar manufactured products, but the reduction would probably stimulate buying to some extent for a time.

Consumers of scrap continue to be out of the market, which in general has been made by the prices that dealers would pay to put material into yard, and as the outlook has not become any plainer, there is no material change in the bids of dealers. In borings and turnings there is practically no market, by reason of production being extremely light.

THE COMMITTEE OF ONE HUNDRED

IN the crisis of the Revolution, some of the most important of that group which met later in 1799 to found the Bank of the Manhattan Company, were those entrusted with the control of the general affairs of New York. The Committee of One Hundred, the city's de facto government in 1775, which held its meetings at the famous Burns' Tavern, numbered among its strongest members, Philip Livingston, John Broome, Nicholas Roosevelt, Walter Franklin, William Laight, Daniel Phoenix, Leonard Lispenard and others who later became the guiding spirits of the new Bank. In crises, such as faces the structure of business today, men look with confidence to the sound experience and vast resources of the Bank of the Manhattan Company, which has been helping commercial and financial New York weather crises for the past 122 years.

MUST LIST PROFITS IN INCOME RETURNS

PROPERTY GAINS TAXABLE

Selling Price Includes Notes, Mortgages, or Anything Accepted as Cash.

Profits from all transactions, whether they are $10,000 on the sale of real estate or $10 on the sale of a second-hand automobile, must be accounted for in detail in income tax returns, a statement issued yesterday by the Bureau of Internal Revenue points out. The return must show the kind of property on which the profit was realized, the name and address of the purchaser or broker, the sale price, date acquired, cost of subsequent improvements, if any; depreciation subsequently sustained and cost or market value as of March 1, 1913, if acquired before that date.

"Profits from the sale of property is taxable income for the year in which the sale occurs," says the bureau. "The profit is measured by the difference between the cost, if acquired subsequent to March 1, 1913, or the fair market value as of March 1, 1913, if acquired prior thereto, and the consideration received for the property. The profit, so determined, is subject to a further adjustment on account of additions or betterments added to the property and to depreciation sustained.

"The bureau has not formulated any definite method for determining the market value as of March 1, 1913. What that value was is a question of fact to be established by the taxpayer.

"In the purchase and sale of real estate brokers' fees, commissions, lawyers' fees, recording fees, and like expenses connected with the transaction are considered part of the cost and many be deducted from the selling price in determining profit. If, in order to sell for a higher price, property is improved, as when a house is repainted or an automobile overhauled, the expense may be added to the cost.

"The selling price of property includes notes, mortgages, securities, or anything accepted as cash, and the profit must be included as income when received. Installment sales, involving a small initial payment, are governed by special Treasury regulations. The profit is apportioned to each installment and is reported for taxation as collected.

"If a note is found worthless, or if a deferred payment can not be collected, the taxpayer, after exhausting every reasonable means of collection, may deduct the amount as a bad debt in his income tax return for a subsequent year.

"Depreciation sustained on business property in years prior to the sale must be considered in the computation of profit. For example, a taxpayer acquired a building in 1913 at a cost of $10,000 and sold it on Jan. 1, 1920, for $15,000. Assuming that 3 per cent. is a reasonable annual allowance for depreciation, the total allowance since date of acquisition to date of sale would be $1,500. The profit to be returned in 1920 would be the difference between the cost, $10,000, less depreciation sustained, $1,500, or $8,500, and the sales price of $15,000. The profit of $6,500, so determined, is subject to tax in 1920."

CENTRAL AMERICANS AGREE ON FEDERATION

San Jose Congress to Sign a Convention, Treaty Dispute Having Been Settled.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Jan. 16.—Decision to sign a convention creating a Federation of Central American Republics has been reached by the Central American Union Congress, in session here. This step, which seemed almost impossible because of opposition to Article 40, the most bitterly debated section of the proposed treaty, followed an agreement by all the delegations. Article 40 stipulates that each member nation of the federation will continue loyally to comply with the terms of treaties with foreign governments, but that if extensions to those treaties should imply new demarkations of territory, a new Central American Union conference will be called to consider the changes proposed.

Several reservations were added to the text of Article 40 to meet objections from Nicaragua, and these reservations have been accepted by the delegates of other nations represented at the congress. The Bryan-Chamorro treaty between the United States and Nicaragua was one of the principal points at issue, and it was shown that compact did not violate or infringe upon the rights of other Central American nations.

A drive for $50,000 by the Lutheran churches of New York to increase the facilities of the Lutheran Hospital, Convent Avenue and 144th Street, started yesterday with a meeting in the Church of the Advent, Ninety-third Street and Broadway. The Rev. F. H. Bosch, of St. Paul's Church, the Bronx, presided. The money will be used for additional buildings. About $20,000 has already been subscribed in cash and pledges and the coming week will be devoted to raising the remainder of the fund.

RECIPROCAL TARIFF URGED AT HEARINGS

SOME REPUBLICANS FOR IT

But Fordney is Expected to Dominate House Committee—Penrose May Check Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Hearings on general tariff revision by the House Ways and Means Committee during the last week have given impetus to a movement for reciprocal duties in connection with the framing of new tariff legislation.

Two important interests, lumber manufacturers, who appeared before the committee yesterday, and automobile manufacturers, who were among the witnesses on Friday urged that reciprocal duties be incorporated in the new Fordney-Penrose tariff law to be enacted by the next Congress. The suggestions put forward were based, it was asserted, on their own special cases, but they are in line with the opinion of Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, expressed in a recent speech in the House of Representatives, and also in accord with the ideas of Senator Edge of New Jersey, in a speech delivered in the Senate during the last week.

Mr. Longworth is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee and has given much study to the tariff question. In his speech he urged that in the framing of the new tariff law consideration should be given to the question of providing for reciprocity with other nations in tariff matters. Senator Edge, who is the author of the Edge act for financing foreign trade, and has given close study to the question of promoting American trade abroad, is another member of the Republican Party who contends that the tariff views formerly held by the party should be modified to meet conditions resulting from the World War, which not only caused the United States to lend large sums to foreign nations but opened to American goods some markets that were previously inaccessible.

These and some other Republicans who are making a plea for reciprocity assert that they stand for protection of American industries wherever it is found to be absolutely needed, but argue that a well-worked out plan of reciprocal duties should be tried as a means of making it possible both for foreign nations to pay their debts to the United States and for American manufacturers to sell their goods abroad without fear of prohibitory duties.

Chairman Fordney of the House Ways and Means Committee, who is as high a protectionist as ever came to Congress, stated during the present hearings that he would rather sacrifice the money owed to the United States by other nations than to obtain payment by allowing imports to enter which would, in his opinion, injure American industries. Senator Penrose, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, on the other hand holds views more in accord with those of Senator Edge and Representative Longworth.

The expectation now is that the high protectionist views of Chairman Fordney will dominate the drafting of the tariff bill in the House Committee, but that when the measure reaches the Senate it will be subjected to considerable modification through the influence of Senator Penrose and others.

The reciprocal arrangement urged by some of the lumber manufacturers has special reference to the Canadian situation. The automobile manufacturers had in mind France and other foreign nations which have shown a disposition to retaliate against American automobiles because of duties now existing in this country.

As indicating the growth of sentiment for reciprocal tariffs the Senate Finance Committee in amending the House Agricultural Tariff bill yesterday included a provision for a change in duties on apples to correspond with any changes that may be made by Canada.

The case of lumber is significant as showing the changed situation which has resulted from the war with respect to many industries which formerly were anxious for protection. In former years the lumber lobby maintained in Washington to put through protective duties was so persistent as to be the subject of investigation.

CANADA TALKS RETALIATION.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Canada, Jan. 16.—"If Uncle Sam, without provocation, undertakes to practically embargo further importations from Canada, he must get ready for something like an embargo by Canada upon importations from the United States," says today's Toronto World, expressing surprise at tariff proposals now under way at Washington.

It is hinted that Canada can and will buy from Great Britain many of the manufactured articles now bought from the United States if there is an embargo against this country.

It is thought in Ottawa that Sir Auckland Geddes, now on his way from Washington to London, will discuss with Lloyd George the proposed United States tariff on Canadian wheat. Meanwhile, with the wheat market confused and different schemes of disposing of the crop under consideration in the West, the situation is being watched closely by the Government.

Among suggestions made by friends of the Government is the complete nationalization of the grain trade, with the elimination both of the farmers' co-operative concerns and the Grain Exchange, and the establishing of a grain board at Fort William. This, it is represented, would be a step toward national ownership without going to the full extent and incurring all its incidental expense.

Parliament opens Feb. 10 and this tariff question promises to come up for discussion.

FEDERAL TREASURER HAD BIG JOB IN WAR

Handled Billions in Cash and Securities With Losses of Only a Few Thousand Dollars.

THESE WERE BY THEFTS

Bill Is Introduced in Congress to Allow Correction in His General Account.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Although the Treasurer of the United States had more work during the war than any other Government official, and although his office was greatly disorganized by clerks entering the war, he had very few losses. There were losses amounting to a few thousand dollars, and, following custom, a bill was introduced in the House yesterday to permit the correction of the general account of the Treasury.

Discussing the losses and the work accomplished by the office of the Treasurer, Representative Edmonds of Pennsylvania, author of the bill, said:

"The Treasurer is the disbursing officer of the Government, and every claim against the Government that is paid is paid and cleared in the Treasurer's office. Every check issued by disbursing officers, of which there are over 6,000; every check issued by the War Risk Bureau, the Shipping Board, and, in fact, every obligation of any and every kind is not paid until it is settled and paid in the office of the Treasurer of the United States. The money of the country is an endless chain, coming in and going out of the Treasurer's office. The coupons from Liberty bonds, War Savings Stamps and Certificates come to the securities division of the Treasurer's office by the wagonload, and while there are at least a thousand people in the Treasurer's office handling money and securities, the Treasurer is the only person under bond, and he is liable for every employe in the office.

War Added Greatly to Work.

"The war more than doubled the work in the office and Congressmen going through the office at that time said they did not see how the Treasurer could keep track of the securities on account of the congestion. The corridors in the office were partitioned and on each side was a row of desks loaded down with coupons, certificates and war savings stamps, and other Government securities. The disbursing officers' checks from the various war activities poured in until the officials were clearing 150,000 checks a day, and in order to make room for the accounting division it was necessary to remove one division of it out of the building into one of the temporary war buildings and checks and warrants had to be carted backward and forward day by day.

"The money circulation increased until there was approximately $60 per capita in circulation. This great increase in circulation was in the Federal Reserve notes and Federal Reserve Bank notes, all of which came to the National Bank Redemption Agency, and at a time when there was only the same force as when only national bank notes were redeemed. It was necessary to store the money which could not be counted for redemption in the big silver vaults in the sub-basement. When Congress gave relief by providing for additional employes, the only place in the Treasury for the employes to work was in the sub-basement, where there are great pillars, and while roll top desks for the protection of the money counters were asked for, they were not furnished.

Two Packages Are Stolen.

"It was under these conditions that losses were sustained in the National Bank Redemption Agency. One package of $5,000 was stolen from a girl's desk at lunch hour, and it was discovered and reported to the Secret Service a half hour later. Later on a package of $7,400 was stolen, which was also reported to the Secret Service, but thus far no headway has been made in either case. It has been the custom to charge losses to the national banks, but not thefts.

"During the war all the young men between the ages of 21 and 31 in the Treasurer's office were obliged to enlist, and it was necessary to fill their places with whatever help could be secured. The employes are all under civil service and protected by civil service regulation and the law. The Treasurer cannot discharge any one on suspicion, although he can transfer him around. Every possible security to safeguard the public funds and securities has been made. In the National Bank Redemption Agency the money is canceled before it is counted. It makes it more difficult to count, but the counters soon get used to it, and that makes it practically safe from theft.

"When it is considered that to count, sort, place in numerical sequence 150,000 checks a day and compare the signature on each with the signature of the disbursing officers which are on file, and that there has been cleared and paid over $262,000,000,000 in the Accounting Division, it will be seen that the loss on account of forgery and raised checks is a mere nothing, and especially in the light of the well-known fact that during the war was the harvest time for sharks and crooks and forgers. The banks of the country lost millions and the employes of the Treasurer's office detected and reclaimed on all but a few."

CHARGE RELIEF FRAUD BY AMERICAN WOMAN

German Authorities Accuse Her of Importing Food and Selling to Speculators.

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—An American woman and two alleged accomplices in a swindling operation have been arrested here. The woman's maiden name is said by the police to have been Virginia Fairfax. They assert that she married a German named Moll, who died a year ago. Mrs. Moll is declared to have come to Germany nine years ago and since that time she has resided here.

The woman and her accomplices, according to the police, under the pretext of organizing a food relief bureau with the aid of American funds, a year ago succeeded in obtaining duty free import licenses for more than 100 carloads of foodstuffs. Of these supplies thirty carloads are declared already to have entered Germany, and been transferred to private speculators.

It is further alleged by the police that the woman induced some high officials of the customs administration to believe that she had unlimited sums of money which had been placed at her disposal in the United States for relief work.

'YOUR BILL, SIR,' SAYS CITY TO UNCLE SAM

"I'VE RAISED THE PRICE"

"It's the Best Jail, Your Men Clamor for It," Says Letter to U. S. Marshal McCarthy.

In an effort to collect a bill from the Federal Government due to the City of New York for the care of Federal prisoners in Ludlow Street Jail, Sheriff Knott sent a letter yesterday to United States Marshal McCarthy asking him to expedite payment, in view of the fact that the bills cover the last two years. The letter said:

"My dear Marshal—Your letter regarding overdue account received. Really, your assurance that the United States Government would pay was not necessary. I have felt certain of that all along, even since 1919, when the account now owing began to accrue. But, dear Marshal, the matter is like this: I, as Sheriff of New York County, keep your Federal prisoners in Ludlow Street Jail. We support them out of the meagre allowance we get for that purpose. I have to account for everything that is expended, so, if there is any money coming back, the Controller—who, you know, does not like to see accounts get mixed up—should receive promptly any such money due to the city through the Sheriff's office.

"As you also no doubt know, there is no better, yet, at the same time, cheaper jail than our Ludlow Street Jail. Prisoners clamor for its warm comfort and substantial, though plain, meals. My own prisoners are only civil defendants, alimoners, &c.; yours are, for the most part, men held in connection with crime. They do not add any social distinction to the jail. Yet, strangely enough, your prisoners are the more troublesome. They demand the best cells. One of these not long ago actually demanded a cell with a southern exposure. (This man is now in Atlanta, Ga., prison.) Also the Federal prisoners are so fussy about their meals.

"Now, the City of New York does not seek to make any money on Uncle Sam, but neither can I be a party to Father Knickerbocker being 'nicked.' We must get back what we lay out. We are hardly getting this at the present 70-cents-a-day rate charges, with the price of coal where it is. Therefore, I wish to confirm my prior statement to you that hereafter the charge for Federal prisoners will be 90 cents a day, the rate charged by the Commissioner of Correction for the maintenance of Federal prisoners in the Tombs.

"And, please, dear Marshal, hurry along that check to the city for 1919 and 1920."

MATERIAL MAKERS WARY ABOUT 1921

ALL EYES ARE ON ALBANY

Roll Roofing Advances as Raw Materials Jump 68 Per Cent. Over 1920 Levels.

Further building material price reductions, making up the greatest volume of commodities reporting since the first of the year, reflect the vigorous measures being taken by building material distributers to encourage an early start for the 1921 building season.

The principal items affected as shown in the latest list include asphaltum, certain kinds of face brick, window and plate glass, blue, black and galvanized sheet iron and plaster boards in certain sizes.

There are also price reductions reported in the lumber department in ash, basswood, both quartered and plain oak lumber, North Carolina pine, studding, roofers, ceiling and partition, and all hardwood flooring, including yellow pine.

These price reductions have originated at distributing points. There is a general loss-taking movement in market centres, so as to unload the material purchased at high price peaks of 1920. One distributer, for instance, has been caught with 20,000 plaster boards on hand, on which he is taking approximately a three-cent loss on each one he sells under the lower price that has just become effective.

There is significance, as far as the prospective builder is concerned, in the fact that most of the price reductions that have taken place in building materials since the first of the year have not originated at manufacturing points. In plain words, it means that the manufacturer, with his limited reserves of stock and his uncertain manufacturing conditions, realizes that with an active construction market, even if not stimulated by curative or invigorating legislation, he will be able to dispose of much that he has on hand this Spring, and will face a condition of demand in excess of supply far into the close of the year.

Cement salesmen have prophesied to their customers that delivery conditions of 1920 will be experienced in the Summer of 1921. They say that there will not be cement on hand in sufficient demand to meet the market's requirements. Most of the cement mills are closed at present because of lack of forward purchasing by dealers and distributers who cannot gauge their market requirements and are disposing of their stocks on hand as fast as possible.

Face brick distributers are talking exactly the same way and are warning their customers that if they expect to be covered by the mills on facade material in July and beyond, purely upon an expectation basis unsupported by contract, they must not depend upon precedent and previous trade custom when they find themselves in danger of being unable to supply their jobs with the manufacturers unable to take their order for specified delivery.

Building construction interests, according to the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports, are looking to Albany for speedy correction of past legislative enactments with reference to solving the housing situation so that prospective building material buyers can take advantage of the present sags in building material prices resulting from an almost barren market. The building trade learns that vigorous efforts are to be made at Albany by several important investors in real estate improvement to place early on the calendar for consideration tax exemption and rent-law repeal or modification. Health authorities support the general opinion that conditions of overcrowding in practically every municipality in the State demand that, as far as the State Legislature is concerned, the way be paved as early in the legislative year as possible for a resumption of home building as the surest and quickest cure for the housing problem.

Building material manufacturers are practically of one voice when asked as to which way building material prices will go after the first six months of 1921 elapse. Their opinion is that there is one hope for keeping building material prices at or near the 1920 precedents and that is for an early buying movement to develop. They have little hope for such a condition to develop as long as there is inimical building legislation on the statute books at Albany.

If the building material manufacturing industries of the country could be sure, by current demand, even though spotty, that there was to be a general building movement before the middle of Summer, they could take a chance and produce a reserve supply for midsummer and Autumn needs, but there does not appear to them to be much on the present surface of things to indicate that the current stalemate in new construction work is to be changed until all the dust of past and present legislation has been given a chance to settle. It simply means, in their opinion, that when the building bars are let down the demand for building material will be overwhelming.

In prepared roofing there is afforded the clearest possible view of what is developing. Trade advices of Jan. 10, in announcing that, concurrent with an exceptionally sudden turn in demand for roll roofing, prices have already started to advance, show that raw materials used in the production of this important building commodity have been jumped 68 per cent. in price over the 1920 prices. This is the symbol of the entire building material market at present.

It is proposed to construct a modern nine story building on a desirable plot of ground, conveniently located to every transportation facility.

There will be 61 apartments of from 3 to 7 rooms each, containing every modern convenience; kitchens, pantries, bathrooms, foyer halls, separate servants' rooms, electric light, refrigeration, etc.

This proposition is to be undertaken on a "truly co-operative" plan for the benefit of subscribers and not for the profit of Real Estate operators.

Rentals will average about 60% of current rates.

The individual investment will be nominal and will represent the following features: Safety of investment, satisfactory income return, housing accommodations on substantially pre-war rates and a reasonable opportunity for a substantial profit on the original investment.

Interested parties are invited to write or call for full particulars—a personal call solicited.
